Netherlands Asks Council to Send Troops or Leave Indonesia Alone

Council Called Failure

Lake Success, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Netherlands told the Security Council today that the United Nations' cease-fire order had only increased bloodshed in Indonesia.

The Dutch then told the Council that it must either "send troops" or let the Netherlands alone take measures to restore order.

The announcement that both sides would comply with the Council's cease-fire as of midnight August 4 had been hailed as the Council's greatest triumph to date in its peace-keeping efforts.

In a new appeal for the Council to take its hands off the Indonesian question, Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, Netherlands representative, declared:

"If you really want the fighting to stop, you must either send troops or allow us to bring about, together with freedom, that security for which millions there are yearning."

He branded the Council's efforts a dismal failure and bitterly charged:

"Never was there such killing on the part of the republican troops and bands since your cease-fire order. It is a strange and dreadful paradox that your cease-fire order has had an effect diametrically opposed to your humane intentions."

Claims Extremists Gained

Instead, van Kleffens declared, "you have played into the hands of the extremists."

"You chose to follow an illusion, the illusion that your cease-fire order would bring order and tranquility. . . . Are you going to make a second and worse mistake by solemnly ordering a commission to investigate to what extent your invitation is being flouted by the republic?"

Off the floor, Sutan Sjahrir, former Indonesian premier, said that recent reports from Java and The Netherlands "indicate that the Security Council's cease-fire order is hampering projected Dutch military action."

"It is evident," Sjahrir said, "that the Dutch, at the very start, accepted the cease-fire order because that order fitted in well with Dutch military operations at that point of time, but the Dutch—as declared repeatedly by the Netherlands representative to the Security Council—have never con-

Defense Pact Being Blocked By Argentina

Quitandinha, Brazil, Aug. 22 (AP). The 20-nation Inter-American Conference cleared its decks of economic topics today and began work on a mutual defense treaty, main business of the conference, but immediately ran into serious Argentine opposition.

This development arose when Argentina announced she wanted the treaty to outlaw the use of force against aggression from within the hemisphere, and permit the use of arms only in case an American state is attacked by a nonhemisphere country.

The Argentine delegation is the only one so far advocating this ban. Conference delegates pointed out that Argentina's position goes to the very heart of the 1945 Act of Chapultepec, which the defense treaty now being drafted is intended to implement. Argentina was not invited to the Chapultepec Conference but later adhered to the act.

Retreat From Chapultepec

A United States delegation source described the Argentine proposal as a "retreat from Chapultepec." He said the Argentine position differed from that of the United States and "most other American nations." Another United States source called the proposal "unrealistic."

Panamanian Foreign Minister Ricardo Alfaro, chairman of the important committee on aggression, on the other hand, said "I see some merit in the Argentine position. There are many who hold some differentiation between intra and extra-continental aggression, while not necessarily limiting the joint use of armed force to the latter case."

As a substitute for force to keep the peace within the hemisphere, Argentina would rely entirely on consultative procedure. Argentina said consultation among the 21 republics was sufficient assurance to each American state that the oth-

Nile Moslems Demonstrate Against U. S.

Cairo, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—A demonstration by some 2000 members of the Moslem Brotherhood shouting, "Down with the United States," erupted today into a hand-to-hand battle with shotgun-firing, stave-swinging Egyptian mounted police.

A spokesman for the brotherhood said tonight that at least 100 members had been wounded, including the leader, Sheikh Hassan el Banna. The spokesman pointed to 42 members of the brotherhood in the brotherhood dispensary. Most of them had buckshot wounds.

The police reported they had suffered 16 casualties—2 officers and 14 men wounded.

The demonstration, according to the brotherhood, was prompted by resentment over suggestions in the United Nations Security Council that Egypt and Britain renew their conferences on a treaty that will provide British evacuation of Egypt. The main reason that the conferences broke up was Egypt's insistence that it and the Sudan be brought under one flag. Britain contended that union with Egypt was a matter for the Sudanese themselves to decide.

After Egypt brought the dispute before the Security Council, Brazil proposed that Egypt and Britain resume negotiations and report regularly to the Council about their progress. Brazil was supported by

Many Koreans Arrested on Plot Charges

Hodge Cites Tieup With North, Avoids Mention of Russia

By Roy Roberts

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 22 (AP).—Prompted by an extraordinary Soviet complaint, United States authorities announced today the arrest of many Koreans accused of "widespread activity of a revolutionary nature."

Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, commandant of the American-occupied southern half of Korea, made the announcement and pointed cautiously to a tieup between the accused plotters and "the north." He specifically declined to attribute it to Russian inspiration. The Russians occupy northern Korea.

A Soviet official statement to the press brought the situation to light this afternoon and led one high American officer to retort that the Russians were "attempting to interfere in the conduct of the government of southern Korea."

Against Tense Background

[The charges, counter-charges and disclosures in a series of statements and press conference were laid against a background of sharp American-Soviet tension over this divided country.

Three American enlisted men who stepped over the line into the Russian zone on August 12 still are held incommunicado by the Soviets, and Russian negotiators have declined to make a joint statement with the Americans on the stalemated efforts to arrange a unified Korean government.

Col. Gen. Terenty F. Shtikov, chief of the Russian delegation in unification negotiations, issued his press statement this afternoon.

He said "mass arrest" of leftists in southern Korea in the past 10 days was apparently aimed at "disrupting the work of the joint commission." He demanded "immediate measures for restoration of normal conditions."

In releasing the statement, he said it was identical with a protest he had made at a commission

Warriors Burn, Pillage, Overrun 150 Indian Villages In 12-Days' Raiding

By G. Milton Kelly

Jullundur, India, Aug. 22 (AP).—Fierce Sikh warriors, rising by the thousands, were waging today what military authorities called a ruthless war of extermination against Moslems, trapped east of the Pakistan border.

In 12 days of savage fighting, while the subcontinent was being divided into the dominions of India and Pakistan, military reports showed the bearded Sikhs had overrun at least 150 rural villages populated wholly or partly by Mohammedans. Men, women and children were slaughtered by the hundreds. Shops and homes were burned and pillaged.

No one knows how many have died. Military records listed 1500. No one seemed to know how many villages would be left before the Sikhs call their job complete.

Buildings Still Burn

Military leaders expressed fear that the reprisals committed by the Sikhs in payment for atrocities committed in areas where Mohammedans are in majority would provoke a new wave of butchery of Sikhs and Hindus stranded in the Moslem dominion of Pakistan.

Troops and civil authorities in Jullunder have been attempting to calm the people and end the terror. The city has the appearance of one besieged during war. A curfew prevails. Tanks, trucks and patrol jeeps move among debris of the riots. Some buildings still are burning.

Two rifle shots sounded as this reporter rode with troops through the city. An officer said Sikhs were sniping from housetops at Moslems, and Moslems were sniping at Sikhs.

He said a Sikh mob fired on troops with a light machine gun Wednesday, but inflicted no casualty. The Sikhs, he said, were angry because the troops had hampered their attempts to clear Jullunder of Moslems.

Tara Singh Tours Province

The Mohammedans appeared better able to fight back in Jullunder than in the rural areas, which officers said fast were becoming death traps for refugees outside concentration camps. Even so, their position here appeared untenable and the military said it would be best to evacuate Moslems from Jullunder.

Master Tara Singh, recognized as the most powerful Sikh in both political and religious realms, has been touring the countryside urging peace and withdrawing his old militant orders to fight against the division of the Punjab, which so enraged his people.

The division of the province left the Nankana Sahib, the shrine and birthplace of Sikh religion, and many thousands of Sikhs in Pakistan.

At one time last spring, Tara Singh announced that the famous Akali regiments, a private army of Sikhs, were being reorganized to fight against the division of the Punjab. There was no confirmation that this was done.

However, the military has commented repeatedly that Sikh raids on villages have shown something very like precise military planning, with heavy casualties inflicted and

New Noiseless Bag For Popcorn Boon To Moviegoers

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (AP).—To the long list of inventions for the benefit of mankind, Theater Manager Irving M. Levin today added his own contribution—the noiseless popcorn bag.

Levin, describing it as the answer to plaints of theater-goers, said the "hushed" bag is made of specially processed, laminated cellophane.

The lamination cuts out the "craa-a-ackle," he claimed, which so irritates patrons just when Charles Boyer begins, "Cherie—."

British End Talks on Loan Modification

Plea for Relief On Clause Against Trade Favoritism Is Left Unsettled

By John W. Ball

Post Reporter

Discussions between this country and Britain on modification of the $3,750,000,000 British loan agreement were completed last night.

Left unsettled, as far as any public announcement was concerned, was the British request to be relieved of the "antidiscrimination" clause of the loan agreement. This is the clause that requires Britain not to favor other nations in its purchases unless she can get a lower price or better quality elsewhere.

The leader of the British delegation, Sir Wilfrid Eady, and Cameron Cobbold, deputy governor of the Bank of England, are returning to London at once "to report progress of the conference to their government and to discuss policy requirements."

Other members of the British delegation are remaining to continue technical discussions next week, a Treasury Department statement said.

In a brief statement following the third and last "top-level" meeting of he two delegations yesterday afternoon, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder asserted "it is not expected that further joint meetings of the National Advisory Council and the United Kingdom delegation will be necessary at this time."

His statement added that the two technical groups, one dealing with trade problems and the other with financial problems, will continue to meet.

"These discussions form part of a series of consultations," he said, "and the two governments will be

Raedy Auto Confusion Intensified

Judge Has Not Yet Produced Driver First Called Brother

Confusion reached the rampant stage yesterday in efforts to determine identity of the driver of Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy's auto when it nicked a parked car Tuesday.

A second day of hearings conducted by Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King heard varying versions of Judge Raedy's account of the hit-run crash at 1st and K sts. nw. about 9:20 p. m. Tuesday.

The judge, in a statement to King, has said she spent the entire evening in her Dorchester House apartment and that her auto was loaned to a friend she identified only as Edward Emerson of New York.

Herman P. Hevenor, 30, a reporter for The Washington Post, one of the witnesses called by King yesterday, testified Judge Raedy told him by telephone after the accident that the car was driven by her brother.

Three other newspaper reporters testified the judge had told them the car was driven by Emerson. John Keats, a reporter for The Daily News, said she told him she was "thinking out loud" when she told Hevenor that her brother was driving the car.

Judge Raedy has agreed to locate Emerson, but thus far has not produced him.

The hearings, King said yesterday, will continue "indefinitely" but no time was set for today's session.

An attendant at the Dorchester parking lot where the judge keeps her car, Manford Jones, told King yesterday that he had received a telephone call from her at 11:15 p. m. Tuesday, advising him that a man would come down to get the car. He told her, he said, that it was against the rules to allow a car out to anyone but the owner. No one came for the car.

In a Thursday hearing, Willia Allen, another parking lot attendant, testified that Judge Raedy, with another woman and two men, had driven into the parking lot at 11 p. m. Tuesday night in her car.

Another Thursday witness, Hilton Rheubottom, a filling station employe at 1st and K sts. nw., and a witness to the crash, identified Judge Raedy as driver of the car which struck a parked auto owned by Mrs. Elizabeth M. Wimbush. Damage was estimated by police at about $10.

Real Estate Broker Fees Face Probe

Nation-Wide Pact On Commissions Charged by U. S., Attorney States

A Justice Department spokesman tacitly admitted yesterday that commissions paid real estate brokers are a major consideration in the grand jury investigation launched here Wednesday.

David Kramer, a special assistant to the Attorney General, and the men entrusted with the investigation, was asked by reporters if brokers' commissions are listed in the United States Code.

"That is a point of law in this case," he replied, "and I can't comment on it."

The United States Code in the section devoted to restraint of trade states that it is illegal for brokers to conspire or agree among themselves to establish or maintain minimum resale prices.

"Kickbacks" Illegal

The Code also makes it unlawful for businessmen or brokers to "kick back" sums to customers unless the kickbacks are made on a "proportionately equal basis."

Henry Price, an attorney who has been retained as counsel by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and the association's local group, the Washington Real Estate Board, commented to reporters:

"From the line of questioning in the grand jury room, the Government apparently alleges a Nation-wide conspiracy of brokers to fix commissions."

Three more witnesses were called before the grand jury yesterday, bringing to nine the number who have testified so far. Yesterday's witnesses were G. Calvert Bowie, Washington realtor; Robert Gaylon, who said he had been in Dispute Highlights Hearing on GCS Of Greenbelt, Md.

By Adrienne Tassler

Post Reporter

The Mayor of Greenbelt, Md., and the general manager of the community's cooperative business structure split yesterday before a house small business subcommittee on whether the cooperative constitutes a monopoly.

Mayor George Bauer described Greenbelt Vonsumers Services, Inc., which runs 15 facilities in the new deal housing project, as a "cooperative monopoly." He said he had "always been opposed" to GCS and believed the "best interests of the town would be better served" by introduction of private business.

Samuel F. Ashelman, general manager of the cooperative, testified it is "not a monopoly at all." He described GCS as a "small business controlled by the people in the city." A monopoly, he said, "tends to exploit the people."

The differing views highlighted a full-day and evening hearing here, first in a Nation-wide series scheduled to probe the whole con-

NLRB Acts to Curb Jurisdiction Disputes; Shipping Is Crippled

Embargo of Freight To Docks Considered As Longshoremen Halt Liner Sailings

New York, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—A Federal embargo on all rail freight shipments to New York docks was threatened today as striking members of two longshoremen's locals tied up at least 10 major North River piers for the third successive day.

The Office of Defense Transportation said it would ban incoming freight to prevent a jam-up on the docks if the walkout spread to involve many freighters.

Five thousand Manhattan dock workers still refused to load ships, including the luxury liner America, queen of the United States passenger fleet.

Sailing Canceled

They walked out in revolt against terms of a contract signed last night by International Longshoremen's Association (AFL) officers and ship operators shortly before the Taft-Hartley law went into effect.

Sailing of the America, which has been held at its berth since Wednesday, was canceled this afternoon. Basil Harris, United States Lines board chairman, said the lines' flagship would be forced to remain in New York for at least three weeks awaiting its next scheduled voyage.

The 900 passengers, including film star Carole Landis and Sir Norman Angell, British economist and Nobel Prize winner, will be refunded their passage money.

Sympathy Strike By CIO

The strike spread briefly to Brooklyn but 1500 longshoremen there returned to their jobs this afternoon after an unauthorized strike this morning.

Three passenger vessels scheduled to sail today were held up by the strike. They were the Grace Line's Santa Paula and Santa Margarita, and the Diax Line's Marques de Comillas, all kept in port by a "sympathy" walkout of National Maritime Union (CIO) workers.

Miss Landis said she thought the strike "disgraceful."

"Why don't they go to another country," she said, "and see if they can do better."

Pacific Tieup Threatens

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (AP).—Harry Bridges' CIO Longshoremen, charging waterfront employers were plotting under the new Taft-Hartley labor law to fire union men in 16 categories, predicted today a West Coast maritime tieup "within a few days."

Shippers were considering withholding of perishable cargoes until the situation clarified.

Drug Firm Executive Gets 3- to 6-Year Term

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP).—William J. Cooney, 51, assistant treasurer of the Walgreen Drug Co., today was sentenced to three to six years in prison for embezzling $29,837 which he lost on horse race betting and investments.

Cooney, father of two children, changed an earlier plea of innocent to one of guilty before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward of the criminal court.

Printers Blast Communism But Beat Oath

Cleveland, Aug 22 (AP). — The eighty-ninth convention of the AFL-International Typographical Union today declared itself opposed to the philosophy of communism and refused to "accept as leaders those who associated themselves with communism."

The printers decisively defeated a proposal to prohibit Communists from holding office in the ITU, because they feared such a prohibition might "lead to dictatorship." Incumbents could merely label their opponents as Communists and thus eliminate opposition, it was pointed out. But, to make it clear how the ITU stood on communism itself, a resolution was adopted which said:

"It is the judgment of this convention that those who now espouse communism as a political philosophy are being led by those who have absorbed the theories and practices of a foreign power which are contrary to our fundamental concept of freedom and democracy."

"Therefore, we must tie to those communists who may be in this country and Canada, the acts of those who have a government functioning under Communist principles."

UAW Pickets Menace Men In Ford Shop

Guns of Supervisors Restrain Mob Until Policemen Arrive

Detroit, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Shouting threats to kill, a mob of roving pickets of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) stormed a strike-bound Detroit Ford dealer's shop today, but were restrained by the guns of supervisory workers until police arrived.

The group of about 100 pickets, members of the UAW's "flying squadron," had been in action repeatedly during the three-day strike of Local 415 for a new contract and higher pay for 3500 mechanics in Ford, Mercury-Lincoln and some Buick and Chevrolet shops.

The roving pickets descended on the shop of Floyd Rice shortly after Circuit Judge Thomas F. Maher granted four Chevrolet agencies a restraining order barring the union from mass picketing. The union had received reports that the shop manager and eight supervisory employes were doing the work of 60 striking mechanics.

An unidentified leader rushed into the shed and told Daniel D. Holahan, the manager, and the supervisory workers to "clear out or we'll throw you out."

Holahan said no repair work was

Speed Emphasized In Set of Rules Announced Under Taft-Hartley Law

By The Associated Press

The National Labor Relations Board last night announced a set of "fast and fair" rules for settling jurisdictional disputes between unions and handling other cases under the Taft-Hartley Act. The emphasis is on speed.

The new law went fully into effect yesterday, 60 days after its enactment, and unions and employers plowed further into a period of new and confusing problems.

The Labor Department reported about 125,000 workers were involved in 200 strikes before the law became effective.

Officials said there was a last-minute rush to settle disputes before the midnight deadline on the Taft-Hartley Act, which restricts unions in what they can do and what sort of contracts they can get from employers.

Unions Noncommittal

Several settlements were reached literally only a few minutes before midnight, and, in a few cases, representatives of labor and management used the legislative maneuver of "stopping the clock" until agreements were reached.

Union leaders were still noncommittal on their long-range plans.

The CIO said its nine vice presidents will meet again with President Philip Murray on September 4. The AFL's 13 vice presidents will meet September 8 in Chicago with President William Green. Clearer union policies should emerge from those meetings.

A few cases under the new law began trickling into the 28 NLRB field offices. The pattern probably won't be clear for several days at least.

NLRB 'Open for Business'

Robert N. Denham, NLRB general counsel, told a reporter, "We're open for business." He said he is "satisfied" with the NLRB staff and setup, but "nobody has yet nailed up a sign saying 'success'." He refused to make any predictions.

Employers now, for the first time, can file charges of "unfair labor practices" against unions. So can individual employes.

A union can still accuse an employer, provided the union complies with the registration and non-Communist provisions of the act.

A board spokesman said the "underlying theme" of the bulky new regulations is "an eye to fast procedure and fair procedure."

Jurisdiction Procedure

The Taft-Hartley Act gives the board power to stop jurisdictional strikes—that is, squabbles between unions over which one will perform certain work—and to settle the disputes. Here is the procedure laid down last night:

1. Charges against a union for engaging in or encouraging a jurisdictional dispute can be filed not only by an employer but also by any individual whatever.

2. Jurisdictional cases will be given "priority."

3. When a charge is filed in a regional office, the regional director makes a quick investigation and if he thinks further proceedings are in order, he holds a hearing within 10 days. The parties have this 10 days to settle their own dispute or arrange for settlement. If they don't, a hearing is held to get the "pertinent facts on the record."

4. The board in Washington re-

Sprayed Paint Reddens 8 Under Hair Dryers

New Complexions Not Ordered by Chagrined Patrons

By Don Olesen

Post Reporter

Faces—and several heads of hair—were still vivid red in Arlington yesterday following a freak accident in a Wilson blvd. beauty shop.

The trouble began quietly enough Thursday afternoon as eight ladies sat under dryers in Emma Lee's Beauty Shop, 2119 Wilson blvd.

Directly behind the building, painter Allen Connors sprayed red paint under pressure on a panel deliver truck on property owned by the Murray & Miller Decorating Co., 1523 N. Veitch st.

The red paint spray filled the air, was sucked toward a whirling intake fan at the rear of the beauty shop, poured through the ventilator, and—you guessed it—into the fans in eight sets of hair dryers.

Suddenly, customer Mrs. Richard Webb, 1734 N. Troy st., twisted beneath her dryer. "Everybody started staring at me," she said. "My face was red, and my hair looked like a henna rinse."

Seven other ladies were in a similar predicament. The red spray, invisible in the air, had left walls, curtains, chairs, and beauty shop copies of "Mademoiselle" untouched.

But under the dryers, faces and hair were bright, tomato red. Even the bobby pins picked up the color.

Chicago Democrat Warns President Against Hearing 'Anti-Russian' Advice

By the United Press

Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.) told reporters after a White House call yesterday that President Truman is pretty annoyed with the Russians because he feels they "don't carry out their promises."

Sabath said he went to the executive offices to talk over the international situation and to caution the President against paying too much attention to "anti-Russian" advisers.

He said he found the President "not angry but obviously not pleased with the Russians."

Sabath said the President remarked:

"The trouble is that they (the Soviets) don't carry out their promises."

Warns of Advisers

He said Mr. Truman did not specify which commitments he thought the Russians had failed to keep.

"I think he is being misinformed by those close to him," Sabath said, adding that he told Mr. Truman he believed the United States and Russia could resolve their differences and maintain world peace.

He said he warned the President against listening to "Nazi political gentlemen, Fascist groups and cartel leaders" who are trying to "magnify resentments and differences between the United States and Russia."

He named Republican foreign policy expert John Foster Dulles and former Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson as among those he thought were "misinforming" Mr. Truman.

Denounces Hoover Plan

"I do not agree with the Russians and I am in favor of safeguarding our interests," the Chicago Democrat said, "but I do not want to go to war for our oil interests or those who have interests in German cartels."

Sabath also had harsh words for former President Herbert Hoover's proposal to revive German industry. He said he told Mr. Truman that the Hoover plan could lead to a third world war.

Mr. Truman, he said, "seemed fully aware of that danger."

Sabath said he told the President that Mr. Hoover is "playing right into the hands" of Wall Street interests who, he said, want to restore the German industrialists who helped Hitler to power.

the United States, Britain, France, Belgium and China.

Shout For Unity

"Down with the United States! Down with Brazil! Down with Britain! Down with France! Down with Belgium! Down with China!" the demonstrating members of the brotherhood shouted today, "Long live unity of the Nile Valley."

After the demonstration-turned-riot had been broken up, police arrested seven members of the Moslem Brotherhood.

Members of the Brotherhood claimed they had shouted: "Down with the United Nations! Evacuation with blood!" The United Press correspondent who saw the riots did not, however, hear the United Nations included.

Council Interrupted

Lake Success, Aug. 22 (AP).—Egyptian demonstrations against Britain reached into the decorous halls of the United Nations today in concert with rioting in Cairo.

Demonstrators here twice interrupted the Security Council's deliberations on the Egyptian complaint against Britain over troop withdrawals and the administration of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Husky U. N. guards forcefully dragged the two struggling demonstrators from the crowded Council chamber. It was the first time the Council's deliberations had ever been disturbed by a spectator outburst.

The first disturbance occurred just as Egyptian Premier Nokrashy Pasha took his seat at the Council table to deliver a speech in which he turned down a Brazilian proposal calling on Britain and Egypt to make another effort toward settlement of their differences by direct negotiations.

Shouts His Demands

A bearded, red-fezzed youth named Mustafa Momen threw the chamber into confusion by stepping into the aisle and shouting demands for immediate withdrawal of British troops from the Nile Valley.

Council President Faris El Khoury of Syria banged his gavel furiously, but the youth continued. He waved a paper and shouted: "I have a document here written with blood from the youth of Moslem brotherhood."

The guards then moved in and dragged him, still shouting, from the chamber.

The second outburst came near the end of the Egyptian discussion, as British delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan was concluding a short reply to Nokrashy Pasha.

This time it was the president of the Egyptian Socialist Fellah (farmers) Party, Ahmed Kamel Kotb. He stood up in the audience and shouted:

"Either liberty, or death of international peace. Death of the Security Council. Down with imperialism. Long live the Nile Valley. Long live the King of the Nile Valley."

Guards hustled him outside.

Firemen Seek To Set Penalty For False Alarms

Montgomery County Commissioners and State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson will be asked to take action against persons turning in false alarms.

The county volunteer firemen's association meeting at the Hillandale firehouse Thursday night instructed the association president, Henry E. Marschalk, to appoint a committee to meet with the officials to map a plan of enforcement.

Marschalk announced yesterday that the committee will be headed by Attorney eLo Bender of the Silver Spring department and will include Joseph Serrin of Glen Echo and Melvin E. McBride of Takoma Park.

The association head pointed out that false alarms "tie up equipment which may be needed on a legitimate fire" and have resulted in injuries to firemen responding to such false calls.

meeting on August 20 (but which was not made public at that time).

General Hodge then called a press conference and disclosed the "revolutionary" activity.

Hodge said about 100 ringleaders had been arrested in Seoul and an unknown number of others in the provinces on charges of rioting, attacking police boxes and interfering with the government's rice-collection program.

Hodge gave no details except to say that Korean police had made the arrests, and that the "plot" was first discovered early in August among leftist employes of the south Korean radio system.

These employes, the American commandant declared, plotted to inject Communist propaganda into radio programs and to sabotage rightist political speeches. The government kept the situation under observation for some time before moving in to "prevent out-of-hand disorders," Hodge stated.

Although labeling the activity "revolutionary," Hodge insisted the arrests lacked "political significance" because all arrests were in southern Korea and because "some rightists were arrested, too."

General Shtikov, in his accusation, had alleged the "repression" came at "a responsible, tense moment" in the deadlocked governmental negotiations. He charged that it covered "mass arrests of leaders, the actual closing down of democratic parties and social organizations of leftist trend, 'pogroms' of leftist democratic newspapers, and arrests of workers of the leftist democratic press."

Shtikov asserted some of those arrested were designated representatives for consultation with the American - Soviet commisison on forming a provisional government.

Directions From North

General Hodge declared activities of organizatons to which many prisoners belonged had been "tied to directions from the north—I did not say from the Soviets, but from the north."

"It is surprising to me," Hodge added, "that the Soviet delegation should make a statement that we are interfering with the commission when the people we arrest have been interfering with the south Korean government."

Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown, chief American delegate, who also held a press conference, charged the Russians with "interference" with the south Korean government. He pointed out that the commission's duties were merely to plan for a future government, not to govern Korea now, and said he would reply more fully to Shtikov at some later date.

Soviet members of the commission said they had not filed a report of their work to Moscow, as suggested by the United States State Department on August 12, because "we have no instructions from our government."

Brown said he had filed his own report to Washington August 20, radioing a summary and sending the full text by air courier.

On the three American soldiers held by the Russians, American liaison officers said the only word they could get was the reiterated "When our investigation is over we will report."

much property destroyed. It is officially estimated that 30,000 refugees have been driven into camps in the nearby Hoshiarpur district alone.

An army medical officer said many wounded refugees had hidden for days in the fields and traveled at night to Hoshiarpur. He said that penicillin was needed urgently. He said doctors were scarce and that no one had requisitioned property for emergency hospital quarters.

In a 500-mile motorcar tour, I saw literally thousands of Sikhs armed with spears and swords combing the fields. I never saw them actually attacking. At one place, a young Sikh tried to slingshot a stone into our car, but missed by many feet. We did not linger.

Subcommittee investigators started the ball rolling by asking Dillon S. Myer, head of the Public Housing Administration, which has just signed a 10-year contract with the cooperative, whether the agreement "does not give a monopoly."

"It does not," Myer retorted. He admitted, however, the co-op has the exclusive right to operate businesses in a half-mile radius within the Greenbelt project but contended precisely the "same situation" exists in many privately operated housing projjects. He mentioned Parkgairfax in Alexandria, Va.

Spectators Jam Room

Later he objected to the "rather free" use of the term monopoly and reiterated that the co-op does not have a monopoly because "there is competition all around."

Scores of spectators jammed the small Old House Office Building hearing room, lining up two and three deep around the walls, sitting on the edge of tables and even on the window sills.

Robert I. Black of Norbeck, Md., president of the Maryland Economic, Council, testified that "in every community in Maryland where I have visited . . . the leading merchants and business men express fear and concern over the threatened or existing competition from co-ops."

He labeled the Greenbelt co-op a monopoly and submitted a resolution to the subcommittee "protesting the existence of said monopoly" and calling upon the "proper Federal authority to bring about its immediate discontinuance."

Later the council was scored by Rep. Wright Patman (D., Tex.) for "misleading and hoodwinking" small businessmen into believing cooperatives are their "enemies." The "common" foe of both the council, composed of chambers of commerce, and other business groups, is "monopoly," Patman asserted, and they "should both be fighting shoulder to shoulder."

A bashed, Black shouted at Patman:

"We Democrats in Maryland have always regarded you as a friend of the small businessman.

Patman retorted: "Well, I am."

War Crime Trials Waste Thousands, Attorney Charges

Omaha, Aug. 22 (AP).—Jay P. Gibbs, Omaha attorney who resigned recently as a war crimes prosecutor in Japan, said today hundreds of thousands of dollars are being wasted by confusion, incompetence and deliberate slowdowns in the war crimes trials.

"Seventy five per cent of the lawyers have never prepared a case," Gibbs said. "Most of them are former OPA lawyers from Washington, where they had been on Government payrolls for years.

"There's no question that some of them deliberately slowed down their work to prolong their $7500 to $8500 a year jobs, when they couldn't make $100 a month in private practice," Gibbs said.

2 Armed Bandits Rob Canada Bank Of $40,000 in Cash

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 22 (AP).—Holding 15 customeers and nine employes at bay with a sub-machine gun, two bandits robbed the Royal Bank of Canada at Ouellette and Ellis avenues of an estimated $40,000 late this afternoon.

Manager A. A. Kinihan said the gunmen entered the bank just before closing time, crying "stick 'em up." He added that he and the 23 others were forced into a line against the wall.

While one bandit held the machine gun, the other, with a revolver in his hand, raced through the bank, emptying the cash drawers of two tellers' cages and scooping up other money from an open vault.

Chinese Say U. S. Envoy Finds Lack of Leaders

Nanking, Aug. 22 (AP).—Chinese sources said today that Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, at a meeting with the state council at Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's home, had told the government's top policy makers China lacks capable management—not raw materials or resources.

The American presidential envoy, attending the meeting at the government's request, was reported to have described candidly what he found during his month-long inspection of China but to have left no hint of the policy recommendations he would make to President Truman.

The grand jury probe at first glance appeared to be concerned with local real estate operations for many prominent Washington realtors were among those who received subpenas.

However, it soon became evident that the Justice Department was concentrating on a national investigation, one which apparently involves principally the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Kramer, who is being assisted by Herbert Maletz of the Justice Department's anti-trust division, said the investigation will continue for some time. At least 20 and possibly as many as 40 witnesses have been ordered to testify before the grand jury. Sessions of the grand jury will resume Monday.

the spray. One of the paint victims, Mrs. Eleanor Johns of 2101 N. 18th st., looked at herself in the mirror and reported her red coating "scared me to death."

Attendants immediately removed it with a turkish towel and elbow grease.

Not so lucky was Mrs. Barbara Montgomery of 1009 N. Hudson st. Blessed with several extra layers of paint. She returned to the beauty shop yesterday to have her hair soaked in turpentine.

It worked, she admitted, "but it burned like fury."

Mrs. Montgomery, like the other seven, had her hair washed and reset by the amazed beauty operators.

Thomas B. Murray, co-owner of the Murray & Miller decorating company, said his painter had been unaware of the intake fan a few feet from his spray gun.

"It was just one of those things," he said. "We were on our own property, painting one of our cars and we didn't know this would happen."

He said the company had planned to sell the panel truck, and was giving it a new coat of paint before the sale.

The Snack Shop, a restaurant adjoining the beauty parlor on Wilson blvd., also has a blower at the back of the building, but stocks of food in the restaurant were almost untouched by the spray.

Four of the eight spray victims were reported only mildly coated by the far-reaching red paint, and beauty shop workers were able to remove most traces quickly with towels.

Britain, U. S. End Loan Talks

in continued communication, with the expectation that high level discussions will be resumed at an appropriate time."

Among the problems facing Eady and Cobbold on their return to London will be renegotiation of agreements for free convertibility of pounds into dollars with other nations.

About 30 of these were in effect until last Wednesday. Fourteen more were to be entered into before September 15. The British will seek to set up a method for screening requests for exchange of pounds into dollars under these agreements so as to limit them to current requirements.

The first of these agreements was entered into with Argentina a year ago. It originally provided not only for converting pounds into dollars for current transactions, but also gradually to "unfreeze" a large amount of pounds Argentina had on deposit in London. This agreement already had been modified by Britain turning over the Argentine Railways, which were British-owned, for 125 million of Argentina's frozen pounds.

American officials expressed complete confidence last night that Britain would take no action to set aside the "antidiscrimination" clause without agreement with this country.

Eady and Lovett Confer

The trade section of the technical groups left behind will continue study of this question, it was indicated.

Before the afternoon conference, Sir Wilfrid met briefly with Acting Secretary of State Robert Lovett.

Later he told newsmen he and Lovett had reviewed the British economic situation and the discussions that have been going on during the week.

He said the talks did not touch upon the question of reducing Britain's occupation costs in Germany. The United States and Britain share these costs equally.

British officials hope, it was reported, to be able to resume exchange of pounds and dollars under the convertibility clause of the loan agreement on a limited basis soon.

British Study Food, Coal

It is expected further discussion probably will not be resumed until Secretary Snyder goes to London September 10.

In London, meanwhile, it was reported British leaders have started mapping plans to stretch available supplies of food, coal and electrical power through the winter season.

Last winter, an exceptionally long and bitter one in England, caused great discomfort when coal stocks gave out, and many industries were forced to close.

At Ottawa Dr. W. Clifford Clark, Canada's Deputy Minister of Finance, declared that reports that Canada was one of the countries that contributed to the "run" for dollar exchange on the Bank of England were untrue.

"No country relatively to its size and resources has done more than Canada to meet financial problems of the United Kingdom," he asserted.

Late News Release Costs Scarce Dollars

A late Thursday night release by the British Loan Conference studying how to bolster Britain's dollar position, cost London morning newspapers some scarce American dollars.

The release from the conference was half an hour too late for the London correspondents to cable it at press rates of about 5 cents a word. They had to send it special, at about 25 cents a word.

being done by the supervisors.

The pickets began streaming in. Holahan said they were screaming.

"Get out before we kill you all and tear the place apart brck by brick."

Robert Cross, a supervisor in a control tower 20 feet above the floor level, stepped out on a platform with a rifle. He said he took the gun to work this morning because he had been threatened repeatedly by the union.

The yelling, pushing pickets fell back. Supervisor Jim Millikan, standing on the floor, produced a 22 caliber rifle.

Ten policemen then arrived and succeeded in getting the pickets out of the shop.

Two Soldiers Killed In Barracks Shooting

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 22 (AP).—Fort Sam Houston military authorities today, at the request of Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, investigated a barrack mail room shooting yesterday in which two soldiers died.

The enlisted men were identified as T/5 James L. Terry, 19, of Meadow, Tex., and T/5 Howard H. Campbell, 25, of Wellington, Ohio.

Each died as the result of a single bullet wound in the head. Terry died almost instantly. Campbell died an hour later in Brooke General Hosiptal.

NLRB Director Quits in West

JAMES M. SHIELDS
of Minneapolis, Minn., yesterday submitted his resignation as National Labor Relations Board director for the Eighteenth Region. He issued a statement saying, "I cannot conscientiously administer the Taft - Hartley Act." Shields said the act "seeks the complete destruction of organized labor" and is "administratively unworkable" ceives this record and makes a decision as to which employes shall perform a particular work.

5. Then the regional director confers with the parties and if satisfied they will comply, he dismisses the charge, and the case is over.

6. If the parties are not complying with the board's verdict, the regional director issues a formal complaint against the noncomplying union and from then on it is handled like any other "unfair labor practice" case—with ultimate court enforcement if necesasry.

Injunction Provision

At any time in the procedure, the regional director may ask for a temporary injunction to stop a jurisdictional strike while the various steps are being taken.

The board also announced that whenever a union files a charge against an employer it must present with the charge, or within 10 days afterward, a letter from the Labor Department showing that the union and all its parent organizations have registered.

It was decided, too, that whenever a union appeals from the adverse decision of a regional director:

If it is a charge against an employer for an "unfair" practice, the appeal goes to the general counsel in Washington.

But if it is a union petition for a plant election, the appeal goes to the board in Washington.

Taft and Hartley Differ

As unions plan meetings to determine their policy, employers face a choice between two basic views of the Taft-Hartley Act:

1. That employers should take full advantage of the law and that they are violating its spirit if they bargain away any of their new rights—such as the right to sue unions for damages.

2. That since the law is designed to promote industrial peace and encourage collective bargaining, employers can agree to anything they please, just so the letter of the law is not violated.

Representative Hartley (R., N. J.) is the principal supporter of the first view. Senator Taft (R., Ohio) appeared to place himself behind the second in recent comments on the bituminous coal contract. Taft expressed satisfaction with the contract, whereas Hartley denounced it as a violation of the "spirit" of the law.

Hartley Pledges Vigil

Hartley pledged a continuous congressional examination of labor-management contracts for provisions designed to circumvent the act.

ers would not vacillate in meeting a hemispheric situation or taking up arms to meet an attack from without the continent.

U. S. Yields to Pressure

The Argentine position was made known only a few hours after the United States gave in to Latin-American pressure and agreed to the holding of a special economic conference during the latter part of 1948 to work out plans for helping Latin America economically.

The United States, in giving formal expression to its assent by voting at this morning's plenary session for a Mexican compromise resolution for the special session, was reported to have done so in an attempt to clear the air of economic talk and get the conference down to the business of writing a defense treaty.

Another major economic topic was cleared from the conference program when the steering committee at a secret session this morning rejected by 15 to 5 Cuba's demand for treaty measures against economic aggression as well as political or military aggression.

Would Pass Economic Issue

Guillermo Belt, Cuban Ambassador to Washington, after the steering committee's session, said he had emphasized that "Cuba would accept the majority decision." He declared that the economic issue would be left for "another opportunity."

Belt stressed that in insisting on a vote, "Cuba was not maintaining its own interests but a question of principle."

An informed source said that Guatemala, Venezuela, Bolivia and Haiti had supported Cuba. The informant added that all delegates voted, although the United States, Argentina, and Brazil had opposed taking up the Cuban proposal.

Nicaragua, where a military coup overthrew the regime of President Leonardo Arguello in May, is the only one of the 21 American republics not represented at the conference. Chances that the new government would gain official entrance dimmed appreciably today after individual moves by the United States and Guatemala.

Marshall Continues Talks

The United States offered an amendment whereby the treaty "shall open adherence and accession to American states which may not have signed." Guatemala proposed an amendment for "recognition that the conduct of governments which depart from the basic norms inherent in the democratic system, and consequently violate the essential rights of man, is a threat to continental solidarity."

U. S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall continued a series of "get acquainted" conferences. He called on Colombia Foreign Minister Domingo Esguerra and Costa Rican Foreign Minister Luis Anderson Morua.

"The Dutch are readying themselves to go on with further military action and are therefore paving the way for suitably prepared excuses."

Meanwhile, the United States submitted a resolution calling upon the Council to tender its good offices to the parties in order to assist in the pacific settlement of their dispute. The United States earlier in the week withdrew its own good offices offer when Sjahrir chose to string along with the Council rather than be brought back into negotiations with the Dutch.

14 Clashes Announced

Batavia, Java, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Dutch army announced 14 clashes with Indonesians at scattered points in Java and Sumatra today, including one "furious firefight" in north Sumatra where 200 Indonesians were put to flight with many dead and wounded.

The Indonesians declare the city of Soerakarta, just south of Dutch positions which point toward the Republican capital of Jogjakarta, a special military area and named a military governor for the zone. The Indonesians declared the Dutch had attacked six villages, occupy ing two of them.

The Indonesian ministry of social affairs declared six million persons, about one eighth of the population, had been displaced from their homes in Java and Madoera since the outbreak of hostilities July 21.

U. S. Testing New Landing Techniques

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Little Creek, Va., Aug. 22.—New techniques in amphibious warfare are being evolved at Atlantic Fleet amphibious headquarters here to supplant the Normandy-Okinawa type of mass landing made obsolete by the atomic bomb.

One method soon to be tested by the Navy involves a combination of airborne and amphibian operations. Large PBM Martin seaplanes loaded with troops, field guns or other equipment will be flown from a distant base to a beachhead, land on the water, just offshore, deposit their cargo on the shore and go back for another load.

Rear Admiral Fred D. Kirtland, Atlantic amphibian commander, outlined the new methods to The Washington Post.

Helicopters Used as "Cops"

Already, he said, helicopters have been successfully tested as amphibious control ships—the "traffic cops" of invasions. They may replace surface craft in such work. Helicopters can hover over the successive waves of alligators and landing craft, keeping them in line as they dash for the beach. However, the rotor craft are more vulnerable than patrol vessels.

Admiral Kirtland says that invasions involving large concentrations of ships in close formation are a thing of the past. The atom bomb makes another Iwo Jima, Sicily or Omaha Beach very unlikely, he says.

But he is also convinced that a modified type of amphibious operations will be employed in any war in the foreseeable future—even when "push-button warfare" may be perfected in the next 25 to 50 years.

Doesn't End Wars

"I don't see how we can get away from it," said Kirtland. "Atomic bombs and long-range missiles can cause great distruction, but destruction does not end a war. The doughboy has to go in and occupy the enemy's country.

"There's got to be some way to get him there—either amphibious or airborne or probably both." Kirtland said the "trend" of the amphibious experiments under way here is toward greatly dispersed forces, speed-up of unloading operations, faster landing craft and transports and more concentrated fire-power in the covering and bombardment fleet. Tests are planned in which submarines will be used to land invasion troops.

"Control of the air will be more important than ever before," he said. "If complete control is obtained an enemy cannot get an atomic bomb into your invasion fleet."

Admiral Kirtland commanded a squadron of destroyers in the Atlantic fighting U-boats during the early part of World War II. Then he commanded the battleship Alabama during two years of Pacific battles and was commander of the U. S. Naval Operating Base, Okinawa, during the closing days of the conflict. He is a native of Salina, Kans.

Inserts Request On Agenda for Assembly Meeting

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 22 (INS).—Australia—angered by the 18 Soviet vetoes tossed at the Security Council over a period of one year—demanded today a showdown in the United Nations general assembly on the entire Big Five veto question.

The Australian move climaxed a growing resentment among all but the Soviet bloc delegates against what the U. S. has branded a misuse and abuse of the veto power and what Australia condemned as the most pernicious and sinister instrument given to forestall a majority will.

W. R. Hodgson, Australian representative, sprang his veto surprise less than 24 hours after Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko resorted to the Big Five veto privilege for the eighteenth time and for the eighth time within one month. Gromyko swung the last two vetoes to bar Italy and Austria from admission to U. S. membership.

Both the United States and Australia attempted to overcome the last two Russian vetoes by suggesting that the Security Council request the general assembly to rule on the eligibility of the twelve membership candidates, but Gromyko remained adamant.

After consultation with the U. S. representative, Hodgson beat today's eleven a. m. deadline for assembly Agenda listings, and in addition to the veto proposal further defiled Russia by placing the entire question of U. N. memberships on next month's discussion calendar.

World Bank Grants Loan To Denmark

By The Associated Press

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development yesterday granted a 40-million-dollar loan to Denmark to "hasten economic recovery." It will enable Denmark to import farm and textile machinery, machine tools, trucks, steel, textiles and chemicals, the bank said.

The credit is to be repaid in 25 years and will bear 3¼ per cent interest. Modest payments on the principal will begin in 1953 with amounts increasing until the loan reaches maturity in 1972.

The bank said:

"With its national budget in balance, production increasing and price and wage levels under control, a degree of economic stability appears to have been reached and Denmark is in a position where the assistance afforded by the bank's loan can become quickly effective."

The bank noted that, before the war, "Denmark had never defaulted on any external debt."

Drought Forces Slaughter

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—The withering continent-wide drought today had forced Danish farmers to slaughter so many cattle that unrationed meat will be available to consumers next week for the first time since before the war.

Because of the desperate water shortage, 30,000 cattle are to be slaughtered next week, compared to 14,000 in the corresponding week of 1946. Apparently only rain can save the bulk of the nation's livestock.

Statue of Bryan To Guard Door—But Temporarily

Lincoln, Nebr., Aug. 22 (AP).—The controversy over where a statue of William Jennings Bryan should be placed was settled by compromise today.

The statue of the "Great Commoner" will be erected at the main entrance of the State capitol, exactly where the Bryan memorial commission wanted it—but it will be there only temporarily.

Commission Chairman W. Bruce Shurtleff, who deplored the "unseemly controversy" which followed architects' objections that the site was architecturally unwise, announced signing of the agreement with Governor Val Peterson.

As soon as one of two alternate sites is available, the statue will be moved, according to the formal compromise. The alternate sites are a proposed State historical society building and a mall to be formed by widening of a street abutting on the capitol.

Stone Expected to Yield $2,500,000 in Gems

The Bureau of Mines said yesterday that gems worth $2,500,000 are expected to be cut from an aquamarine almost a foot square flown to New York from Brazil.

The bureau said the stone was found last October near Resplendor, Mimas Gerais. A rough, rexagonal prism weighing 56 pounds, it was 11 inches high and 10 inches in diameter.

Liquor Truck Hits Post and Bowery Loses a Weekend

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—An elevated pillar got in the way of a well-stocked liquor truck today on the Bowery. Result: the biggest free binge in the memory of the street's thirsty habitues.

Within minutes after the crash occurred, men rushed from doorways and cheap lodging houses to clamor around a golden stream of liquor—Scotch laced with rye—pouring from the side of the truck.

Some cupped their hands beneath the stream and sucked noisily. The more provident arrived with bottles, pots, pans—anything that would hold liquid.

As the driver, who had lost control of his truck, and his helper were carted off to have bruises and cuts patched up, one Bowery denizen held a jug aloft in a toast.

"What a driver," he shouted. "God bless him!"

'Washington, Here We Come'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

FOUR OF A KIND—The Cirminello quadruplets were all set, theoretically, yesterday to come to Washington from their Philadelphia home. A little thing like finding a place in the Capital wasn't worrying them. No, sir, that's up to Daddy Joe Cirminello, an analyst for the SEC. The quads are (from left) Kathleen, Maureen, Eileen and Michael

Being as Cute as All Get Out Won't Get You in Home Here

Be they ever so appealing, there ain't gonna be no place like home for the Cirminello quadruplets in Washington.

Not to mention the kiddies of a lot of other Federal families now on the way or soon destined to return to the Nation's Capital.

This is the view of Robert F. Cogswell, administrator of rent control for the District of Columbia. Summing up the housing situation rather succinctly, said Cogswell:

"I just don't understand it."

"Unless," he added, "returning Federal employes own their own homes here, I wonder just where they expect to find a place to live."

Joseph Cirminello, whose unusual housing problem started anew the local interest in roofs-over-heads, found out ruefully yesterday that houses are to be had in Washington—for a price.

That price, as offered by about 25 individuals and real estate dealers, is $15,000 and up.

They called Cirminello's sister-in-law, Mrs. Docia Hatcher, at her Park Lane Apartments yesterday to make their offers. Cirminello figures that he can spend about $60 a month on a mortgage to provide shelter for his wife and four small children.

Cirminello is taking every weekend to look for a house in Washington. The only thing he has to offer is a swap with his four-bedroom home in Broomall, Philadelphia suburb.

The Cirminellos' housing problem is more dramatic than most, what with quadruplets and all, but when you get right down to brass tacks, it's going to be no more acute than that of approximately 4500 Federal workers and their families slated to be returned to Washington within the next six or eight months.

That is the latest estimate of Public Buildings Administration on returning employes in eight agencies. Of that number, only figure in doubt is the Veterans' Administration, which hopes to bring back 2500 persons as soon as PBA finds space—office space, that is.

Cogswell, who has as good an indication as any one in officialdom of changes in the housing situation, said yesterday that he hasn't seen the "slightest bit of omprovement" so far as housing is concerned.

"I have received more requests through friends, and friends of friends of mine for housing during the past six months than in all of the nine months preceding that time," he said.

The rent control administrator said that so far as he can see, the only let-up in the housing situation in Washington is in transient hotels and in rooming houses.

"And I don't think that particular type of housing will appeal to returning Federal employes," he said.

They might or might not be interested in the type of housing offered the Cirminellos yesterday through Mrs. Hatcher.

Lowest bid was a house for $12,500, 45 minutes out of Washington toward Baltimore, with four bedrooms, two finished.

Houses offered in the $15,000 to $17,000 bracket were, Mrs. Hatcher reports, almost invariably row houses, with three or four bedrooms.

She was offered a house for $20,000 with five bedrooms, near Chevy Chase. But, she pointed out, it's a frame house, and Cirmillo wants a stone or brick house.

Most of the calls Mrs. Hatcher received yesterday were from individuals who planned to list their houses for sale anyway.

Nobody had a house for rent.

Talk Delayed On 'Quoddy' Plan for DPs

Eastport, Me., Aug. 22 (AP).—A Washington conference scheduled for Monday to consider a plan to convert the abandoned Passamaquoddy tidal power project into a training school for displaced persons has been postponed, City Manager Ralph T. Colwell said tonight.

Colwell said a teelegram advising him of the postponement did not say when the meeting would be held.

Under the plan, devised in the office of Senator Brewster (R., Me.) the city would acquire "Quoddy" village from the War Assets Administration and turn it over to a nonprofit syndicate headed by Frank Cohen, New York and Philadelphia tractor manufacturer.

The syndicate would train displaced persons in technical trades, languages and somemaking skills and send them to Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil to make permanent homes.

Firemen's Parade Marks Victory At Newport News

Alexandria's firemen paraded again last night to celebrate the first prize they took in a parade at the Virginia Firemen's Convention last week in Newport News.

The Alexandria citizens' band, which took a blue ribbon at the convention, led last night's procession up King st. from Fairfax to Payne sts.

Retiring Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., whose resignation becomes effective September 1, marched with his men, probably his last official act.

GOT AN EYE FOR A BUY?

Most everyone these days has an eye peeled for a "buy." It's the time-honored way of getting more for your money . . . more quality, more quantity, more of whatever it is you're looking for.

And while you're looking and comparing, be sure to check the Transitads (car cards) as you ride the streetcar or bus. A host of products and services are up "for sale" in every transit vehicle. Check them carefully because each Transitad-vertiser is getting the benefits of low-cost Transitad-vertising that generates volume sales. That's why so many Transitad-vertisers can make such attractive offers.

Aboard the streetcar or bus, a peeled eye, cast over the Transitads, can help locate a "buy."

Corn Future

Further gloomy news about the 1947 corn crop should occasion no particular surprise. The drop of 223 million bushels in estimates between August 1 and August 15 was predictable because of the extreme heat and near-drouth conditions in the Middle West. The prospect now is for a crop of 2437 million bushels, the lowest since 1936. Nor is there any reason for optimism even if the weather should change. Corn planted in wet fields is soft and takes root poorly. Its quality is substandard and its low mineral content reduces its value as feed. Moreover, this type of corn is peculiarly vulnerable to an early frost, and in a year of unusual weather such a frost is a distinct possibility.

The unhappy results of the corn famine, which are already becoming apparent, afford a dramatic illustration of the close interrelation of agricultural components in our economy. Corn prices already are at an all-time high, $2.45 a bushel in Chicago yesterday. Less corn available for feed means higher meat prices, higher dairy and poultry prices, in fact higher prices for practically everything associated with corn. That is bad enough news for domestic consumers, but for dollar-short nations looking to us for meat and other products in which corn figures, it is much worse.

Obviously there is not much the Government can do now to controvert the hard facts of nature. One thing it can do, however, is to scrutinize the handling of our wheat crop, with a view toward asking additional controls if necessary. For manifestly there will be an extra demand for wheat as feed, which will compete with the demand for wheat exports and will strain even this year's record output. It will take the utmost in precise balancing to assure that the wheat crop is used most expeditiously. That puts a premium on husbanding supplies, eliminating waste and marshalling the transportation to move wheat rapidly. Most of all, it will call for widespread self-control in a situation that could easily become an emergency.

Warning Signal

The BLS wholesale price index attained a new postwar high during the week ended August 16. During that same week the Federal Reserve Board index of department store dollar sales showed a decline of 6 per cent below sales in the corresponding week a year ago, although the index was slightly higher than for the preceding week. Considering the interim rise in prices of goods sold over the counters of department stores, it appears that a pronounced shrinkage in the August volume of department stores' unit sales has occurred compared with a year ago. Moreover the monthly expansion in the dollar volume of department store sales prior to August had been tapering off despite price increases.

Of course, a good many factors help to explain fluctuations in weekly retail sales, but we have no doubt that the greatest single factor at work to reduce department store sales is the high cost of living. In mid-June the BLS consumers' price index topped the mid-March all-time peak, and with wholesale prices steadily advancing, retail prices will no doubt continue to advance. Clothing manufacturers have, in fact, raised prices of fall goods, pleading as a defense the higher cost of materials. With August department store sales already showing the effect of higher prices, the possibility of a further sharp recession in buying cannot be ruled out if prices go still higher.

The effect of high prices on consumer buying has to be gauged not solely with reference to the prices charged for the particular goods sold by any firm but by the prices charged for food, household equipment and all the other items that enter into living costs. A rise in the price of eggs or milk may be reflected in a decline in buying of clothing or household accessories. In other words, the threat to continued high production has to be met by an all-out frontal assault on high prices.

If prices continue to rise as they are now doing, the time cannot be far distant when consumers will be forced to make drastic cuts in their buying not only of luxuries but also of essentials. Higher prices may for a time conceal the extent of the curtailment, as in case of department store sales. But not for long, because a shrinkage in the physical volume of sales at retail results in reduced manufacturing activity, loss of profits by distributors, growing unemployment and increasing industrial stagnation.

The Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report is planning to hold hearings next month to get at the facts on the rising cost of living. These hearings will, we trust, afford the public a better understanding of the seriousness of the present situation. We are, as Senator O'Mahoney says, "in an inflationary spiral," and the causes of that inflation "are much deeper than the mere wish for extortionate profits." By arousing the public to a perception of the dangers of spiralling prices, it may be possible to build up consumer defenses against excessive charges and check unsound trends instead of waiting for a corrective depression to bring about inevitable downward adjustments.

Law Of The Land

Years will pass before the full meaning of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, which became fully effective yesterday, will be known. Even its authors disagree as to how the various provisions of the law should be interpreted. Experience suggests, too, that some of the interpretations announced by the NLRB will be modified under the impact of events and court rulings. Indeed, the much less complicated Wagner Act was still being reinterpreted by the NLRB and the courts when it was superseded by the new law. No one can know at this time, therefore, precisely what the effect of the new law upon organized labor or upon industry will be.

But the meaning of the law is not so obscure as to justify some of the misconceptions of it that seem to be prevalent in the ranks of organized labor. When the act was passed it met with emotional denunciation as the "slave-labor law." Now some of those who thus denounced it seem to assume that they can wholly escape its provisions by refraining from carrying complaints or representation disputes to the NLRB. It is difficult to see how a statute which could be thus easily evaded could be called a slave-labor law. Of course, the truth is that both assumptions are wrong. While the act does not compel any individual to work, it does impose certain obligations upon unions which cannot be disposed of by ignoring the NLRB.

Probably the most notable example of this illusion is the action of the International Typographical Union in voting at its Cleveland convention virtually to abolish collective bargaining. Instead of signing contracts, as in the past, it is reported that local unions will prescribe "conditions of employment" which employers will be expected to accept without a contract. Should the employer reject this unilateral dictation, his action would be regarded as a "lockout." Some leeway might be left in some cases for the acceptance of satisfactory terms proposed unilaterally by the employer, but collective bargaining appears to have been ruled out.

All this is in naive disregard of the fact that the new law makes unions no less than employers liable to NLRB discipline for unfair labor practices. One such unfair labor practice is the refusal to bargain collectively with an employer. The law specifically says: "For the purposes of this section, to bargain collectively is the performance of the mutual obligation of the employer and the representative of the employes to meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment, or the negotiation of an agreement . . . and the execution of a written contract incorporating any agreement reached if requested by either party. . . ."

No good can come from arbitrary resistance to the law as if unions were not amenable to national statutes. For better or for worse, the Taft-Hartley Act is the law of the land. Of course, it must be enforced as such. We think that all unions would be well advised to manifest at once their cooperation with the NLRB in applying the provisions of the act. By following such a course they would be in a much better position to press for amendment of those ambiguous or overly rigid provisions that may impose undue hardships on organized labor. And they would avoid the bitter disillusionment that must necessarily come from any scheme to nullify the act by ignoring the NLRB or by abolishing collective bargaining.

Bewildered British

After listening to the Wednesday radio speech of Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, a newspaper delivery man exclaimed, "What the hell is he talking about?" No doubt his bewilderment was shared by millions of Britons unschooled in the intricacies of trade balances and ignorant of the significance of currency convertibility and the part it has played in cutting down Britain's dollar reserves. It is hard, indeed, for the man in the street who is earning good wages (in money at least) and doing a regular day's work to understand why he must endure privation in order to release more goods for export.

The British government has fallen down on the job of explaining why such sacrifices are necessary if the nation is to survive as an independent governmental entity. The explanation has to be made ultrasimple—a difficult task since the subject is complicated. Newspapers such as the London Times and the Economist carry articles that are unexcelled for clarity of exposition and grasp of the essential issues at stake. But they are not for the untutored public. To be appreciated the reader must have had considerable training in following closely reasoned discussions dealing with economic abstractions. The British government has been inexcusably dilatory in facing up to the problems that confront it, as we pointed out yesterday. As a consequence of its ostrich-like policy the public does not appreciate the seriousness of the crisis that is now at hand.

If the people had been told day in and day out that nations, like individuals, cannot live without producing the means of self-support and that national self-support presupposes ability to pay in goods for what the nation as a whole consumes, the new austerity program would, we believe, have been accepted as an ineluctable consequence of Britain's inadequate economic resources, instead of being received with a mixture of bewilderment and resentment.

To Socialize Or Not

One of the underlying problems at issue in the current conference between British and Americans concerns the future of Ruhr management. The British feel that the miners of the Ruhr should be told right now that the mines will be socialized. They think that such an assurance would act as a spur to output. As to this, the evidence is unclear. We may grant that the miners are deeply interested in the eventual socialization of the coal mines, but we doubt whether this is more than a subsidiary aspect of the problem of Ruhr production. Food comes first, and after that consumer goods. Already the incentives that have been introduced into the Ruhr have raised output, though this is still only about 50 per cent of the prewar figure.

Even if it be granted, moreover, that more work might result from an international pledge of socialization, more coal would not necessarily be forthcoming. Successful mining requires good management as well as hard work; brains as well as brawn. And the improvement in worker morale that might accrue from a socialization pledge might well be offset by a decline in managerial morale. For the German managers are anti-socialist. In our view, therefore, the issue should be postponed for a later decision in state elections. It is necessary at this time to face the present rather than the future, and the present has to do with production and more production. To this end the Ruhr needs a fresh approach in terms of management, with reliance on the civilian side of occupation rather than on the military and with more Germanization; coupled with better and more transport and machinery.

In other words, the problem of the Ruhr is practical and not ideological. The British in the Ruhr as in England have been getting themselves into a state of mind about socialization which may have interfered with administration. But we may ourselves be falling into the same bad habit with our anti-socialism. The plain fact of the matter is that if a system of private capitalism cannot function without capital, then the case for socializing heavy industry in Germany is strong, for Germany is a country without capital. But this is for the Germans in their laender to decide, and by the same kind of specific polls that have already been taken in Hesse. Our occupation authorities last year objected to the inclusion in a proposed constitution for Hesse of a pro-socialization clause, requiring that a separate vote be taken. The people decided to give the state socializing authority, the vote being heavier, incidentally, than the vote for the constitution; this may be a foretaste of what would happen in the Ruhr.

Mountain And Molehill

When Gen. Omar N. Bradley took over the direction of the Veterans' Administration after the war, he attempted to infuse a new sense of mission among its employes. This was manifestly necessary in order to handle the tremendously expanded work expected of the VA. Whereas, before the war the bureau had coasted along cozily with a maximum load of about four million cases, soon it was to be called on to serve a total of 18 million veterans, with a whole host of benefits that never before had been extended. To do this adequately—and service is not yet adequate in all respects—requires the utmost cooperation on the part of the Veterans' Administration staff. When a labor organization attempts to disrupt this cooperation, as has been done recently in New York, in our opinion it is guilty of the most flagrant irresponsibility.

The union in question is the local of the United Public Workers of America. Two examples published in The Washington Post Thursday illustrate the kind of malarkey the union is distributing. One handbill was headed "Does the Whip Crack Over You?" and another, "Beware of 'Productionitis'!" Both obviously were directed at bringing about some sort of slowdown because of alleged speed-ups and poor working conditions. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, of course, and on that score the union efforts so far amount to a tempest in a teapot. The Veterans' Administration reports that efficiency is high in its New York office. Presumably the handbills are intended to increase the small local union membership by fanning dissatisfaction.

The Veterans' Administration has a peculiar problem in that its work load is still increasing while it is forced to dismiss employes because of budgetary cuts. It may be that some local officials have become overly zealous in emphasizing the high production standards necessary to meet schedules. This is a possibility that warrants scrutiny—though even with heavier work occasioned by reduced appropriations, few Government offices to our knowledge equal the efficiency found in most private industry. In any event, the way to remedy grievances is not through sapping the morale of workers by the sort of incitement the New York union is dishing out. Its actions look very much like an attempt to stir up trouble for its own ends. This is a distinct disservice to all veterans. If the UPWA wants the confidence of the public, we think the national organization should sit down hard on its bumptious New York offspring.

Pinpoint Bombing

Within the last few weeks The Washington Post has printed several detailed and obviously carefully compiled letters from Stuart Barber of Arlington, who seems to be carrying a grudge against the Army Air Forces. Judging from the vitriolic content, Mr. Barber is out to get some sort of belated glory to the Navy's dive bomber pilots at the expense of the Army's heavy bomber boys. Rather than argue, I would like to give Mr. Barber a few points to think about.

Primarily, this theory of a well-placed bomb being so much better than a smothering assault is questionable. I can remember when the Twelfth and Fifteenth Air Forces had the Brenner Pass cut in 57 places, only to hit the same targets the next day. The German repair crews were that good. Often the missions were timed to catch the workmen repairing our havoc. Although this was highly successful, even then the bridges were down only four days.

Oil refineries, factories, marshaling yards and airdromes were no exception. A constant pounding of great tonnage was needed to keep them merely disabled, not destroyed. Scattered, well-placed bombs would not have lasting effect, as in Japan, and to deliver tonnage via dive bomber would encourage flight fatigue, prompted by repeated, flak-mad sorties.

Secondly, how are you going to get these dive bombers to their targets? The massed guns of a heavy bomber formation were feeble enough, but how about the cumbersome dive bomber? The Germans quit using Stukas in favor of high altitude bombing because of prohibitive losses in the Battle of Britain. I hate to think of dive bombers at the mercy of German jets. I wish you could see as formidable a fighter as our P-51, the best we had, chase a German jet. It's pathetic.

Finally, why not read the testimony of the defeated Nazi leaders? One by one they humbly bowed their heads to the earth-rocking might of the heavy bomber. One need only look at the scorched, hollow shell of Germany today for convincing proof of this awful weapon which would make the efforts of dive bombers punitive indeed.

When we hit a bridge, Mr. Barber, we not only blew it up, but smothered the approaches as well, and once, I recall, even dammed the river beneath it. However, while we would have welcomed a fleet of dive bombers to relieve us of this tedious and exacting work, please do not offer dive bombers against the vast expanses of rail yards and factories, but if you will, let pinpoint accuracy give way to the earthquake of pulverizing tonnage. Plowing entire cities under is no job for a dive bomber. It was too much for even the ingenious Germans.

"Mr. Churchill's Blast"

I thank you for your editorial of August 18, "Mr. Churchill's Blast." Americans do not understand what is taking place in Britain and our daily papers are not doing enough to help educate us.

There is the subject of subsidy. Britain has subsidized all essentials—food, clothing and housing at below cost. I would like to ask at below cost to whom? Americans?

In the drastic measures against which Churchill raises his voice there is another sign not recognized by many. If these drastic measures are needed, it would seem to indicate that individually the British people are failing their government and steps are necessary to compel them to serve whether they wish to do so or not.

Recently Bertrand de Jouvenel in describing the black market situation in France and its legal and moral implications called this attitude on the part of the citizens there, "A revolt of the people against the people's decisions." And de Jouvenel recalled a like situation in America under prohibition. We voted for the law but individually we did not support it.

It may be necessary for the Attlee government to face the facts that seem to show themselves: The revolt of the people against the people's decisions—and what will his government do about that?

Legislation and force and work camps and slavery are not the answer—but Mr. Attlee's program would seem to lead to only those conditions—slavery, work camps, prison for people who revolt against the people's decisions.

Puerto Rico Policy

I have just come from an address by a woman on "America's Disgraceful Stewardship in Puerto Rico." She had never visited the island, was herself a victim of propaganda.

Those who have been there know that the United States has little reason to be ashamed of its Puerto Rico policy. We, on the contrary, have been too good to its people. When the Spanish flag was lowered, Puerto Rico's birth rate and death rate were in balance. The garbage collectors were the vultures. Many babies arrived, promptly died.

Then came our Navy's medicos. Sewers were installed where once all garbage was dumped in the street. Everyone was vaccinated. Malaria, typhoid, tuberculosis were controlled. A heavy reduction in deaths ensued. Meantime the birth rate continued. Now there is intense overpopulation.

Is it not unjust that those who never were in Puerto Rico defame our officials there?

Carlyle And Wagner

In the book review section of The Washington Post Sunday, August 17, under the heading of comment on a book on 'The Last Days of Hitler' occurred an objectionable statement as follows: "Here was a monkey house of double-crossers, traitors and other followers hypnotized" . . . "That Hitler was doped by quacks, hornswoggled by astrologers, duped by 'yes men' and bolstered by the silly romanticism of Thomas Carlyle and Richard Wagner is now a fact beyond question."

I don't think the life and works of either Carlyle or Wagner need any defense from me. But what are the facts of the real influence in Hitler's life, of course, beyond the hidden neurosis, as compared to this purported influence under question? They rest in a simple incident of history, the visit of Mussolini and Hitler. What gift or token was exchanged, a set of specially bound books? Why the works of Nietszche, of course, he whose end was miserable insanity.

Carlyle was the lonely genius out of the rugged hills of Scotland, a man so simple and honest that when he was ushered into the presence of the Queen of England who stood awaiting the customary obeisance he said, "Pray be seated, Madam." His pen did more than any other in the pre-dawn of comparative study to set in true light the significance of Mohammed, founder of Islam.

It has been the decline of religion into meaningless human and literal interpretations that first caused its divisions and later the loss of its influence. Carlyle in literature restored its values, notably in his works on Mohammed. Wagner and the other great ones in music lifted up the souls of countless numbers to contemplate the glory of God, of which both beauty and intelligence are aspects. The world should emulate the sacrifices of such men.

"Limits Of Aggression"

In your August 20 editorial, "Limits of Aggression," you correctly state that "what constitutes aggression is the $64 question that always bobs up in international discussions on security."

The reason why there has never been an agreement on the subject is indicated precisely by the economic proposals at Rio. The League of Nations spent years of futile discussion along the same lines. Fair international economic policies are of course desirable and every attempt should be made to establish them; but if we must await the perfection of agencies for that purpose before the use of armed force can be outlawed, then, in my opinion, any expectation of international peace in the sense of freedom from war is quite hopeless.

The continuance of our existence in this age of weapons of mass destruction is dependent not only upon the willingness of the international community to denounce a breach of the international peace as a crime against international law but upon its ability to provide effective means for its prevention and punishment. No civilized society can exist which does not protect its members from breaches of the public peace. If a man attacks another, the arresting policeman does not stop to inquire whether the attack was justified. Matters of defense are left to the judge or jury.

The statement imputed to one of the delegates that the Rio Conference was not called merely to "rubber-stamp" the Act of Chapultepec is to be deplored. That act contains a specific definition of aggression as follows: "Invasion by armed forces of one state into the territory of another trespassing boundaries established by treaty and marked in accordance therewith shall constitute an act of aggression."

Should the Rio Conference do nothing more than reenact this provision and agree upon effective sanctions to be taken against actual or potential aggressors within the meaning of this definition, the conference would accomplish more for the peace of the Western Hemisphere than was done at San Francisco in the Charter of the United Nations for the world at large. The folly of that conference in refusing to define aggression or to provide effective steps for its suppression is demonstrated by the present inability of the Security Council to take action in the case of Greece.

The Inter-American system, after more than 50 years of successful operation, had a narrow escape at the San Francisco Conference. Regional organizations were not favored there because it was feared they might detract from the authority of the United Nations. The timely promise of President Truman that after the war he would propose to make the Act of Chapultepec permanent in treaty form saved the Inter-American system. Failure of the Rio Conference in this matter would be a serious blow not only to the future peace of the Western Hemisphere but a grave disappointment to peoples elsewhere who are still looking for leadership from the despair of war.

Deference For John Doe

By Malvina Lindsay

Courtesy Campaign

AT A TIME when blunt-speaking little short of name-calling has succeeded the polite parlance of diplomacy in the United Nations, courtesy strangely is attaining new popularity among the populace.

But more ecenomics than altruism is back of this. In the United States business emphasis is shifting from production to distribution, from a seller's to a buyer's market. Polite persuasive salesmanship is the need of the day.

Mass production, which raised the average man socially by giving him the material comforts of his so-called betters, now is beginning to offer him more deference as it seeks markets for its accumulating products. The change is evident already in many shops. It begins to look as if the happy days that downtrodden consumers of wartime looked forward to were at hand.

IN MANY foreign countries people desperately in need of American dollars are according special courtesy to visitors who dispense this exchange. Returned travelers, tell glowingly of the patient courtesy of London underground guards and of bus operators, and of the way in which waitresses almost weep when they say, "Oh, I'm so very sorry, but we're not allowed to sell that." They tell of the bowing and scraping in Continental shops and restaurants and on foreign passenger boats.

In this country retail stores have launched a Nation-wide effort to train and to hire more efficient and courteous help. With prices climbing almost hourly, they realize that plenty of politeness will be needed to break down buyer resistance. Also they want to weed out churlish, snooty, inefficient employes left over from wartime.

The National Federation of Sales Executives says two million more efficient, courteous salesmen with good personalities are needed to keep goods moving. They warn that the 11 million more people now employed than before the war can be kept in their jobs only if salesmanship helps stimulate demand.

Schools are joining the be-polite movement. Vocational high schools in New York and other cities are putting in speech and personality courses at the request of employers who say they want young people with a "pleasant manner" as a change from smart aleck and bored youth. Vocational authorities have found that greater numbers of people lose their jobs because of unpleasant manners and personalities than because of inefficiency.

IN FACT schools generally are emphasizing training in getting along with people. In colleges and universities this is known by the fancier name of human relations. Research in this field is being undertaken widely by colleges, endowed institutions and industrial firms. It is hoped that ultimately such knowledge will help peoples of the world to be polite enough to each other to sheath their swords.

There is also more emphasis on politeness from public employes. Even the Russians who speak so brusquely in their contacts with nationals of other countries repeatedly campaign in their press for more courtesy from the comrades who serve the Russian public. Lessening of war's pressure and more competition for jobs is improving demeanor of this country's public servants.

But to attribute this growing interest in courtesy wholly to commercial motives is not quite fair. In England during the Nazi blitz the kindliness of people to each other was generally noted. Americans familiar with wartime Britain have been struck on recent visits by the continuation of this attitude, despite some grumpiness caused by inadequate diets.

Throughout the world, even in backward areas, changing social forces are giving people new respect for themselves as individuals and also for others. Even in this country where human beings have long felt their personal importance many are becoming aware of a new inner dignity. Courtesy is one of the tools for expressing this, in fact it is an important tool of democratic procedure. Many fear that its decline in diplomacy is a dangerous primitive reversal.

British Mandate

According to our Sunday Express newspaper, a writer to The Washington Post, Mr. Harry Brickman, suggests in a letter of August 9 that the "United States should take over Britain as mandated territory and use American police to keep order." Since Mr. Brickman's masterpiece found its way into print, it occurred to me that there may be others in the United States who think it a good scheme.

May I, then, as an English-man-in-the street be permitted a word with Mr. Brickman?

I would point out that his idea is not novel. Someone else has similar ideas and received a very warm welcome. Mr. Brickman may have heard of the Battle of Britain, Spitfire, Hurricane, Royal Air Force, but perhaps these names don't ring a bell with him. This was before the United States was stung into action by the other exes of the Axis. We're still capable of putting on a similar show.

It may be tired, as a lot of Americans appear to be tired, of Great Britain being in trouble but I think it true to say that in the battle for freedom, Great Britain put her everything into the pot. That's why she's broke.

By the way there's been a certain amount of trouble and destruction of property in a place called Palestine. What about "taking it over"?

Fears And Blunders

By Andre Visson

Report On Europe: II

THE COMMON denominator in Western Europe, in the summer of 1947, is fear. One does not hear this fear expressed in the offices of Western European foreign ministers. European statesmen responsible for the foreign policy of their respective countries are practically unanimous in declaring that they do not believe in the imminence of a world war.

This optimism is supported by the following argument: Soviet Russia is going to be too weak for at least five or ten years to wage a world war, and the United States is too peace-loving to take advantage of its present superiority. I heard this argument in London and in Paris, in Brussels and at The Hague, in Rome and in Berne, and in tiny Luxembourg.

One cannot question the sincerity of this official optimism. But one also cannot help suspecting that European statesmen must cultivate this optimism, playing up anything which supports it in order to strengthen their energy and to carry on their very responsible activities. Furthermore, during the course of the discussion a number of Western Europe's foreign ministers admitted to this writer that while they do not believe in the imminence of a third world war, they cannot deny that in the atmosphere of extreme tension which is likely to prevail during the coming years some fateful accident may always occur.

AS TO THE common man of Western Europe who, in the formation of his judgment, depends on the press and on gossip, he is certainly much more afraid than are his leaders. The man in the street in Western Europe lives with the conviction that a new world war is on its way, that only the date of its outbreak is uncertain, and that only some miracle can prevent it.

Under those conditions of mass fear which prevail today in Western European countries, one must really admire the creative effort of Western Europeans who are busy rebuilding their destroyed homes and plants, trying to ignore the shadow of a new world war which blackens their horizon.

When Molotov said "No" to Marshall's plan and walked out of the Quai d'Orsay, Messrs. Bevin and Bidault were certainly shocked but not too surprised. The little people in Paris, however, began to whisper in all Parisian markets that the new war would come no later than "within two years." The fact that Molotov brought with him to Paris about 90 Soviet experts made many people believe that he came to Paris for serious "business talks." The people of Western Europe did not know that a considerable number of these Soviet "experts" were NKVD agents who remained in Paris after Molotov's departure as an addition to the impressive figure of 822 persons on the payroll of the Soviet Embassy in the French capital, and protected in their subversive activities by Soviet diplomatic passports.

THIS FEAR of a new world war which one discovers in practically all Western European countries is most skillfully exploited by Soviet agents and pro-Soviet elements. The Soviet propaganda aims to present Americans either as "Machiavellian economic imperialists" in an all-out offensive for the conquest of new markets for American products, or as "immature and inexperienced" people who, confusing "foreign policy" with "missionary work," may by their "loose talk" and "aggressive attitude" precipitate a war which American leaders officially are trying to prevent.

It is amazing to discover not only how little Western Europeans know about the United States but also how many false ideas and prejudices about Americans are circulating in Europe, even among those people who are—and cannot be anything but pro-American. Under those circumstances, one cannot find words strong enough to deplore and to condemn the absurd, even criminal, cut in the budget of American information services in Western Europe. One need not approve all the activities of the United States information services in Europe, but after a tour of Western European countries one returns to the United States with the firm conviction that American information services in Europe should be reformed and expanded, but certainly not suppressed.

SOVIET DIPLOMACY and Soviet propaganda, which work hand-in-glove, never miss an opportunity to exploit all the blunders which we make, or even more to stir up the great confusion which exists in so many European minds. A real diplomatic "terror campaign" was set in motion early in July between the time of Molotov's departure from Paris and the opening of the 16-nation conference called to discuss the Marshall Plan.

Soviet diplomats were fortunately unable to put on the Western European countries the same pressure which they did on hapless Czechoslovakia, but their envoys in Western European capitals presented diplomatic notes which were supposed to intimidate Western European policy makers. In one capital, the chef de cabinet of the foreign ministers was awakened in the middle of the night by a telephone call from the Soviet Embassy, which insisted that the foreign minister receive the Soviet Ambassador immediately.

The sharpest notes were presented to the Scandinavian countries. Somewhat more moderate notes were conveyed to Belgium, Holland, and Switzerland. In France, an indirect approach was used. The French Communist leaders whispered in the ears of their personal friends in the French cabinet that France's adherence to the Western European bloc, headed by the United States, would meet with serious reprisals on the part of Soviet Russia and would lead nowhere because "the Americans would only build a strong Germany and leave France in the lurch."

IN SWITZERLAND the Soviet note produced an effect contrary to Soviet expectations. The Swiss government was hesitant about accepting the invitation to the Paris Conference. Forty per cent of the "Council Federal" were in favor of accepting it while 60 per cent felt that an acceptance would be incompatible with the traditional Swiss neutrality. But after the Soviet note, the Swiss felt that they had to go to Paris so that Moscow would not believe that they had been intimidated by the Soviet note.

Western Europeans may have a number of doubts about American ability to understand their complex political and economic problems. They may find ground for anxiety in the American lack of experience in dealing with European problems. But a majority of at least 90 per cent in countries like England, Belgium, Holland, and the Scandinavian countries, and a 75 per cent majority in countries like France and Italy, have made their choice. They know that only "immature and inexperienced Americans" can efficiently protect them against the "over-mature and over-experienced Soviet Russians."

Reviving Germany

By Barnet Nover

The London Conference

AS MIGHT HAVE been expected, Moscow has strongly protested the American-British-French conference now being held in London to consider an upward revision in the limits hitherto imposed on Germany's steel output.

NOVER

Any discussion of an increase in German production above the level agreed upon at Potsdam, the Soviet government insists, can only legitimately take place in the Council of Foreign Ministers.

In other words, having consistently used her veto power in that body to prevent the Potsdam agreement from being carried out, Russia now falls back on that very pact in an effort to secure the veto which she lost, so far as the Anglo-American zone is concerned, when she refused to let the Potsdam plan work.

THE MEN in the Kremlin undoubtedly knew better than to believe that their devil-quote-Scripture tactics would frighten Great Britain, the United States and France into calling off the London conference.

They know full well that the day is gone when a blast from Moscow was enough to stir London and Washington into a frenzy of appeasement. Russia's obvious purpose in making that protest was to frighten the French, whose sensitivity to currents of opinion emanating from the U. S. S. R. is still great.

THE RUSSIANS are perfectly well aware of the somewhat schizophrenic attitude of the French on the subject of German industry.

On the one hand, the French realize that as long as Germany is allowed to remain an economic desert the recovery of all of Europe, including France, will be retarded. Nobody has, for instance, been more irritated by the failure of the Brtiish to increase coal production in the Ruhr than they.

On the other hand, the French have an acute and understandable fear of a powerful Germany. For that reason the French fear that anything which tends to bring about a revival of German industry automatically makes possible a revival of German military power with all the evil consequences that might hold in store for them and for the world.

THIS FEAR the Russians have been playing upon in their propaganda to France. They have raised the cry that the Anglo-American purpose in permitting Germany a high level of industry is to give Germany priority in European reconstruction for the purpose of rebuilding the German war machine.

This, of course, is sheer nonsense but it has had its effect. The French for their part, have come to London determined that the rebuilding of the German steel industry should follow and not lead the rebuilding of the steel industries of France and western Europe.

UP TO A CERTAIN point the French case is reasonable and is likely to get a sympathetic hearing from Great Britain and the United States.

In the extreme form in which it is sometimes argued, however, it is wholly self-defeating. For unless something is done about building up German steel production and German industrial production generally, only limited results can follow the efforts now being made to boost the coal output in the Ruhr.

In the first place, increased coal production in Germany depends on supplying more food, more consumption goods and better housing to the Ruhr miners and their families. Since the Anglo-American zone cannot pay for the supplies needed to carry out such a program unless exports from the zone are increased (most of the supplies have to be imported) the corollary to increased coal production in the Ruhr is increased industrial activity throughout the combined zones.

In the second place, German industry, even at the low level it has been operating since the occupation, has been living off its reserves, now just about gone. The machines are beginning to wear out and sooner or later will have to be replaced. Unless an additional burden is to be placed on the American and British taxpayers, the wisest course would seem to be to let the Germans produce the machines.

In the third place, increased Ruhr coal production would do little good unless the German transportation system is rehabilitated. The time is not far distant when, should the present gratifying rise in the coal output in the Ruhr continue, the German transportation system will be unable to handle the additional volume of coal unless more steel is made available for freight cars and locomotives.

France cannot have it both ways. She cannot insist on a greater volume of coal and coke production without agreeing to permit an increase in German steel production. At the moment that production is at the rate of only three million tons a year. Great Britain and the United States favor an increase to 11,500,000 tons.

Such an increase would make possible a partial revival of German economy, an increase in German exports to pay for the food and raw materials needed by the people and industries of the combined zone. It would also mean a lowering of the present burdens which this country and Great Britain are being called upon to bear. All Europe would benefit by the development.

Whether France will permit her security fears to dominate her basic economic needs remains to be seen. In the last analysis, the best security France can have lies in continuously close, intimate and cooperative relations with the other Western Powers.

Red Rejects U. S. Appeal For Petkov

The United States suffered two rebuffs from Communist-controlled European countries yesterday.

First, this country's demand that the Allied Control Commission for Bulgaria review the death sentence of Nickola Petkov, anti-Communist leader, was rejected by Russian Lieut. Gen. Alexander Cherepanov, acting deputy chairman of the commission.

Second, the Hungarian government rejected as an "unfounded generalization" an American protest against wholesale disenfranchisement of Hungarian voters by new election laws.

Cherepanov's abrupt denial of British and American appeals on behalf of Petkov came as John Horner, Acting United States political representative in Bulgaria, was protesting directly to President Vasil Kolarov against Petkov's sentence.

"Unfortunate," British Say

Petkov, recognized as one of this country's oldest and most loyal friends in the Balkans, was sentenced last Saturday by a Bulgarian People's Court.

He was charged with plotting to overthrow the Communist-dominated Bulgarian government.

Great Britain joined with this country in the protest to Cherepanov. The two protests were made four days ago.

In London yesterday, a foreign office spokesman said Britain had informed Bulgaria Petkov's sentence was having a "most unfortunate effect" on the British government and people.

The American protest was delivered by Maj. Gen. Walter Robertson, this country's member on the control commission. He charged that Petkov's conviction "appears to be a gross miscarriage of justice."

Held Purely Bulgarian Affair

In his reply Cherepanov declared:

"I do not consider it possible for the Allied Control Commission to interfere in any way in the affair of Nikola Petkov, inasmuch as it is purely an internal Bulgarian matter."

Petkov has been active in Bulgarian politics for many years. Both his father and brother were killed by assassins while carrying on a campaign against repressive measures under the Bulgarian regime of 1923.

Petkov was one of the signers of the armistice with the Allies in October, 1944, and was a member of the first Fatherland Front coalition, into which he took the Agrarian Party. He resigned in September, 1945, declaring the government had come under Communist domination.

Hungary Denies 3 Charges

In Hungary the American protest was denied by Acting Foreign Minister Ernoe Mihalyfi. Milhalyfi denied American charges that Communists supervised the selection of the candidates of other parties, denied that the Communists controlled the electoral committees, and denied that police organs had anything to do with elections.

He charged that persons omitted from the election lists went to foreign legations and the press with their complaints.

"It is very sad for diplomats and foreign correspondents to draw such general conclusions in scattered cases," he said.

Axis Failure Laid to Hatred For Fascism

By the United Press

The Axis powers failed in World War II because they built up such a "world-wide hatred of fascism that it finally destroyed them, a report prepared by Library of Congress experts on "fascism in action," said yesterday.

The controversial study made was the request of Representative Wright Patman (D., Tex.) who warned in a foreword that there are "many strong symptoms of fascism in our own democratic society."

"This movement in the United States masquerades under other names than the discredited one of fascism," he said, "but whatever it may be called, its peculiar characteristics are alarmingly evident."

Subject of Bitter Debate

The report, a companion to last year's "Communism in Action," was made public on authorization of the House after weeks of bitter debate.

Dr. Ernest C. Griffith, who directed the experts of the library's legislative reference service in preparing the report, made a comparison of fascism and communism in the preface. He did so, he said, to prevent Communists from taking any aid or comfort from the exposing of the other form of totalitarianism."

He said there appeared to be no Fascist equivalent to the Communist program of world revolution, although the Rome-Berlin-Toyko Axis "potentially had international aspects." He listed these major differences:

1. Communism is frankly atheistic and intolerant of religion, but fascism attacks specific religious groups and practices because they stand in the way of the full achievement of the Fascist program.

Frowns on Private Property

2. A Communist frowns on private property and nationalizes industries banks and agriculture while fascism develops large private property holdings to simplify control of the nation's wealth.

3. Communism favors state-owned farms, Fascist agriculture is built around an agricultural class which produces according to a state program.

The report itself noted that fascism in Germany, Italy and Japan differed in many details, but said that all those countries built up the "overwhelming importance of the state."

This was accomplished, it said, by sacrificing many facets in the life of the common people, including free use of leisure time, labor union rights and forcible cartelization of business enterprises.

But the Fascist regimes toppled, it added, because they could thrive only on military victories and because the states were "limited by the intellectual, physical and emotional capacities of their leaders.

Ultimately Consumed

"By feeding upon and fanning the hatred of groups both at home and abroad," it concluded, "fascisms built up such hatred in the world that they were ultimately consumed by it."

The report recalled the squabbling among Nazi leaders and their attempts to gain power. This alone, it said, should dispel the "popular impression" that fascism is an efficient form of government.

Patman called for "fearless exposure" of pro-Fascist organizations in the United States and warned that fascism "is an ever present danger to our democracy."

He urged that the Nation's educational system be bolstered to fight un-American creeds and said that full employment "is a prime necessity in the defeat of fascism.

He called for steps to increase American living standards, to alert labor unions to the dangers of fascism and to make certain "that the existing government operates honestly and efficiently."

The Gallup Poll

25% of Voters Want More Data On Nation's Foreign Policy

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 22.—About one fourth of the Nation's voters want the Government to give out more specific information concerning foreign policy.

Another one fourth believe the Government is holding back vital information, but that there are probably good reasons why Washington cannot give out more.

The remaining one half of the voters are either satisfied that the Government is telling enough about international policy or have no opinion.

A cross-section of voters was asked in a coast-to-coast poll:

Do you think our Government is giving the people all the important facts about world conditions today or do you think the Government is holding back on a lot of important information which the people ought to have?

The results show that 18 per cent think the Government is giving out enough, while 59 per cent think it is holding back, and 23 per cent have no opinion.

Voters who said that the Government is holding back information were then asked, "Is there anything in particular on which you would like to have more information?"

Only 26 per cent, or less than half, mentioned anything specific. Their chief concerns were:

1. Russia, relations with Russia	8%
2. General world conditions, chances of war	4
3. United States foreign policy, Marshall Plan	2
4. Atomic energy and bomb	1
5. Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill talks	1
6. Relief shipments abroad	1
7. Miscellaneous	9
8. No subject named	1

*Adds to more than 26 per cent because some gave more than one answer.

Recent institute polls have shown a steadily increasing number of voters expressing concern over world affairs. While 47 per cent today say that foreign policy is the most important problem facing the Nation, only 16 per cent held that view a year ago.

The State Department has a special section devoted to placing information on foreign affairs before the public. It maintains distribution centers for educational material in Boston, New York, Chicago, New Orleans and San Francisco, and provides speakers to explain current policies and provide background for understanding issues.

It should be pointed out that the Administration can go only so far in informing the public before it runs into the charge of "propagandizing." However, the results of this poll should prove helpful in determining the fields in which the public itself demands more concrete information than it now gets.

Chile Gives Broad Powers To President

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla began ruling Chile today with special political and economic powers granted him by Congress in an effort to solve the country's most pressing problems.

Congressional action on the special power bill was completed at 2:50 this morning, when the Senate passed it by 22 votes to 5 and two abstentions. The House passed it yesterday, 82 to 29.

Under the special powers, the President can proclaim a state of siege in all or in part of the national territory when national production is threatened by disorders or sabotage.

The government has charged that Communists, acting on directions from the outside, have launched an "unbridled and unheard of campaign" against national production and tranquility. They said the coal mining strike was only one of the stoppages with which "extremists seek to stimulate and maintain, until a general strike is reached to jeopardize the stability of the Republic."

Latest reports on the coal strike in the Concepcion-Arauco area, where some 20,000 miners are idle, said the strike continued throughout the mining region but that railway and other public services were being maintained at normal levels.

Soviet Spirits Rise as Food Prices Drop

Moscow, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Food prices in Moscow stores were toppling today and the average citizen, glancing at reduced price tags and increased grain production figures, felt more optimistic about the future than at any time since the war's end.

Most Russians felt that the Soviet Union really was on the road to postwar recovery. Prices on basic foods had been slashed in the past few days and rumors of other decreases followed.

Food price cuts were not yet general and no important drops had been noticed in ration stores. In commercial and cooperative stores, markdowns today included an 8 per cent decrease in meat prices and a 10 to 12 per cent drop in egg prices.

They followed by a few days a downward plunge of 30 per cent in potato and 45 per cent in cabbage prices and corresponding reductions in other fruits and vegetables.

Milk prices had fallen once before by 25 per cent in commercial stores.

Most of these adjustments were considered seasonal, but the reductions were greater than usual. Bumper yields were reported from grain fields, truck gardens and orchards and Muscovites thought lower prices would hold into the winter.

Democratic Party To Hold Radio Rally

A national radio rally of the Democratic Party over facilities of the American Broadcasting Co. will be held September 2, Gael Sullivan, Democratic National Committee executive director, announced yesterday.

The 10 to 10:30 p. m. EDT radio show will include a series of broadcasts from various parts of the country, featuring Mayor William O'Dwyer from New York, Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas from Los Angeles, Senator John Sparkman from Birmingham, Ala., Marshall Henley, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Indiana, from Indianapolis, and Sullivan from Washington.

Oil Official and Sen. Wherry Clash in Chicago Hearing

Chicago, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Senator Kenneth Wherry (R., Neb.) and an oil company official clashed today at a Senate subcommittee's investigation of the Midwestern oil shortage and a United States marshal was summoned to restore order.

The hearing was disrupted when Wherry, subcommittee chairman, rejected the demand of B. L. Majewski, vice president and director of the Deep Rock Oil Co., for a chance to testify orally.

Wherry previously had said evidence gathered yesterday indicated major oil companies were trying to force small, independent distributors out of business. He said he was convinced a full investigation was justified.

Today Wherry announced he would not be able to hear all those subpenaed.

Majewski, who had not been subpenaed, demanded an opportunity to testify.

"You don't want to hear my testimony," he shouted.

A Federal marshal warned Majewski not to disrupt the hearing again.

Wherry indicated the hearing would develop into a full-scale investigation of the oil shortage. He said the evidence "indicates to me strongly that there is a definite and progressive process being followed by these major oil companies not only to produce the oil but to distribute it to the consumer." He said the fuel oil supply for this winter "looks pretty tight."

New Air-Mail Stamp Goes Into Use Aug. 30

Sale of a new ten cent air mail stamp for use on mail to Latin American countries will be inaugurated at public ceremonies in the Pan American Union patio at 11 a. m. August 30.

The first letter bearing the new air mail stamp will be sent to Secretary of State George C. Marshall at the conference of American nations in Rio de Janeiro by Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan.

National Park Visitors May Total 26 Million

By The Associated Press

The National Park Service said yesterday 26 million persons may visit scenic and historic areas in the travel year ending September 30—an all-time record and one of the most tremendous travel increases in history. Last year's total was 21,684,000, also a record.

Some of the parks had particularly astonishing increases this year. Acadia, Me., for instance, had a 100 per cent increase. But Shenandoah Park in Virginia, had a 5 per cent decline, and several other eastern parks had slight declines.

Romanian Treaty Voted

Bucharest, Romania, Aug. 22 (AP).—The foreign affairs committee of the Romanian chamber of deputies approved the Romanian peace treaty today and recommended that the house ratify the accord.

Head of NAM Urges That U. S. Combat Threat of Serfdom

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—If the "threat of everlasting serfdom is to be wiped off the earth," the United States must do it in the present world-wide struggle for freedom, Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, asserted today.

Bunting, addressing the annual meeting of the Southern Hosiery Manufacturers Association, declared that modern American machinery, productive equipment and capital "are the keys to the dynamic progress we have made and must continue to make."

The NAM president added that "we have barely scratched the surface of what Americans can do in leading the world to victory over the pinch of hunger, the nightmare of insecurity, and the dead hand of medieval dictatorship."

Declaring that world freedom is in the balance in the current "life or death economic race," he said:

"If this country—the last tower of strength among freedom-loving lands—can do the fabulously better job that we can equip ourselves to do, even the peoples who are neck down under the curtain of serfdom will choose freedom, and there will be no dictator to ignite World War III."

Bunting, who has traveled this year more than 35,000 miles throughout this country, said collectivists are "betting their bottom dollar that we can be split—class against class until our economy collapses and their crippled production sweeps in for a dark-horse finish.

"The one thing that can keep them from cashing in on that bet is something that they refuse to believe . . . that caste and class are things we just can't stomach."

Democratic National Committee to Move

Permanent headquarters of the Democratic National Committee will bet set up in the Ring Building, 1200 18th st. nw., by October 1, committee officials said yesterday.

Present headquarters of the committee is the Mayflower Hotel. Officials explained that the move will give the committee more adequate space for a press room, for conference rooms and for office and clerical workers.

Sears Resigns

The Commerce Department yesterday announced resignation of W. J. Sears as chief of the rubber division of the Office of Materials Distribution.

Job of Re-Rigging Perry's Flagship Goes Unclaimed

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 22 (AP).—The job of restoring the rigging on the brig Niagara, flagship of Admiral Perry in the War of 1812, went begging today.

The Department of Property and Supplies, Pennsylvania State building agency, announced not a single bid was received on the project which includes the construction of masts, sails and rigging of the vessel.

The hull and decks of the ship, which now rests in a special cradle at the foot of State st. in Erie, already have been restored under the direction of the State Historical and Museum Commission.

"The specifications for the rigging were prepared by Howard I. Chappelle, marine architect of Cambridge, Md., one of the foremost in the country, and they will make the ship look exactly like it did over a century ago," explained Dr. Donald K. Stevens of the historical commission.

"We had a lot of difficulty getting someone to do the work on the hull become some of the timbers had to be cut specially for that purpose."

The President's Calling List . . .

The President yesterday had the following callers:

10 a. m.—Cabinet.

11.—Secretary of Interior Krug.

11:15.—National American Legion commander Paul H. Griffith.

11:30.—Representative Sabath (D., Ill.).

11:45.—W. John Kenney, assistant Secretary of War.

New York Police Told to Be Easy On Legionnaires

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—The city's 19,000 police today were ordered to extend "every consideration and courtesy" to the thousands of delegates and others at the three-day national convention of the American Legion, beginning Thursday.

Among other things, Acting Police Commissioner Thomas F. Mulligan said that Legionnaires taken into custody because of inability to care for themselves "and not in connection with the commission of a crime" were to be turned over to the Legion's service committee.

Also, said Mulligan, the police must remember "the convention will be attended by persons from every State as well as from other countries who will be unfamiliar with traffic regulations" adding beyond warning on lesser infractions the police "will not serve a summons except in the case of a flagrant violation."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Monty's New Book Is Self-Glorifier

By Robert S. Allen

The Washington Merry-Go Round this week awards its brass ring—in reverse.

Recipient of the bob-tailed decoration is Field Marshal Bernard L. Montgomery. Occasion: The distribution in the United States by the British Information Service of Montgomery's amazing post-operational report of the war in the ETO.

Montgomery

Bearing the quaint title of "Despatch," the report is an astounding concoction of misstatements of fact, half-truths, innuendoes, omissions and self-glorification.

That Montgomery should compose this kind of a document is not remarkable. On the basis of past performances, the report is wholly in character. What is remarkable is that the British government should not only permit the report to see the light of day, but to distribute it in this country far-reaching. Eisenhower repeatedly uses the expression "our decisions," as it was only decent and honorable for him to do under the circumstances.

In striking contrast, Montgomery not only lays categoric claim to full authorship of the plan, but, in keeping with his self-proclaimed proprietorship, makes only three fleeting references to Eisenhower in the first 44 pages (one-half) of the "Despatch." And only one of them is by name. In the other two instances, Eisenhower is referred to merely as the "supreme commander."

Passing the Buck

There is another very significant, and characteristic, aspect to the references to Eisenhower in Montgomery's report.

The first time the "supreme commander" is singled out for marked attention is on page 45 in an italicized precede summarizing the operations beginning with September 1, 1944. This was the beginning of the tragic period of the war in the ETO. The period that started with the order, at Montgomery's vehement insistence, halting Patton on the Moselle, when his Third Army had in front of it only a decimated and disorganized enemy and an unmanned Siegfried Line barring the way to the Rhine.

Nazi Germany could have been conquered before winter if Patton's blasting tankers and slashing doughboys had not been sat down so that Montgomery could launch his costly and abortive offensive in the North. This ill-conceived and bungled campaign was a defeat surpassed only by the Ardennes disaster. And it was this period, also, that witnessed the bloody Hurtgen Forest battle, the period that culminated finally in the Ardennes disaster.

It is of more than passing note, therefore, that Montgomery should single out the "supreme commander" for special mention in this particular portion of the "Despatch," especially in view of the manner in which the reference is made. Says Montgomery, "In September the supreme commander assumed command and direction of the army try at this time. Its publication is a blunder as offensive and provocative as Montgomery's extraordinary opus.

It is traditional that high-level postoperational reports are not noted for complete candor. Frequently they are more illuminating in what they would omit and gloss over than in what they actually relate.

The reports of Generals Marshall and Eisenhower, published last year, displayed marked symtoms of this occupational disease. Hanson Baldwin, veteran military analyst of the New York Times, sharply criticized the Eisenhower report on this score. Baldwin particularly ridiculed Eisenhower's bland claim that everything in the ETO had gone according to plan.

But, while tainted with considerable mumbo-jumbo lily-gilding, the Marshall and Eisenhower reports were dignified and restrained. They were meticulously accurate on the details that were covered, all participants were studiously given full recognition, and the perpendicular pronoun was used sparingly and modestly. As far as the reports went, they were gentlemanly and soldierly.

Mr. Fix-It

Montgomery's report is inaccurate, vainglorious, petty, and mischievous.

On the very first page is an extraordinary misstatement of fact. Montgomery declares "Headquarters Twelfth U. S. Army Group were formed in London . . ." that is not so. Headquarters Twelfth U. S. Army Group did not come into existence until just before the jump-off of the Third U. S. Army's epic break-out of the Cotentin through the Avranches corridor. The U. S. Army group headquarters set up in London was the First (FUSAG). Months later, when this headquarters became operational under Gen. Omar Bradley, it was secretly redesignated the Twelfth for deception purposes.

Immediately on the heels of this misstatement of fact, Montgomery on the next page, makes an even more extraordinary pronouncement. He lays claim to sole and complete authorship of the assault plan of Operation Overlord. "My plan," he says flatly and unequivocally.

The basic outline of this plan was agreed upon before Montgomery reached London in January, 1944. And a number of senior commanders participated in working out the details of the plan. A large part of the first chapter of Eisenhower's report consists of a detailed account of the evolution of this plan. Eisenhower makes it crystal-clear that the report was the result of many lengthy conferences, in which Montgomery was only one of a number of participants, and that changes were frequent and groups himself . . ." this will be very interesting news to Eisenhower. According to his report, he was in personal command of all army groups from the jump-off of the invasion.

Amazing Omissions

There is much more of this sort of thing in the "Despatch." But the most amazing feature of the report is its omissions and half truths. The report is filled with them from start to finish.

There was plenty of glory in the war in the ETO to cover all participants with acclaim and decorations from head to foot. Why Field Marshal Montgomery considered it necessary to be niggardly in his official report is something only he can explain. But that kind of "tidying up" does not foster good will and understanding.

Looking at Hollywood

John Mills Would Like to Do Film Opposite Bette Davis

By Hedda Hopper

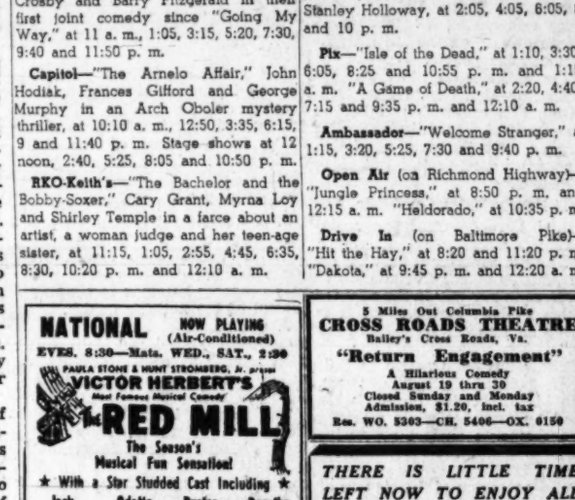
Hollywood—Roy Rogers tells me he has bought 342 acres atop a mountain 60 miles from Hollywood and will move there so his kids can grow up in the great open spaces. His San Fernando Valley place is for sale. He'll buy a small home to live in while he works in pictures. Roy sold his big car, bought a jeep . . . While East he picked up a 69-year-old uncle who has been blind since he was 7, brought him home by plane. If the uncle likes it here, he'll live with the Rogerses. Roy says his uncle, though blind, has lived alone, doing all his housework, even cooking. Roy also is concentrating on raising more palomino ponies. He already has 28 brood mares . . .

After finishing "The Gay Ranchero," Roy will open his rodeo in Philadelphia in September, travel two months, and do his next picture the end of November.

He Is Homeward Bound

Johnny Mills, so wonderful in "Great Expectations," stopped by my house the day before he left for England. Tells me he would love to play opposite Bette Davis in "African Queen," one of the best scripts he ever has read. The Milises bought a beautiful Georgian home, 20 miles from London, built in 1790. It is surrounded by 10 acres. He and his wife took home hundreds of yards of curtain material, dish towels, cottons and all the things they can't buy over there. Johnny, like all English I have talked to, is heartsick over this 75 per cent tax on American films. He denied the story widely printed here that it was the Queen herself who persuaded him to remain in England to make pictures for J. Arthur Rank.

Anna Lee expected to stay in England for a year, but is back playing in John Ford's "War Party." When she finishes it, she and her husband, George Stafford, will live on their cattle ranch in Texas. She'll come back only for pictures.



WELL, HERE'S Janet Thomas of Paramount with a beautiful prop phone and a rather spectacular hair job. Janet's from Kentucky, suh, and will be appearin' at the Palace come Thursday in a movin' picture called "Variety Girl." Pardon our Southern style

Tomatoes Look Alike

Heroines Are a Poser In 'Gunfighters' at Metro

(Mr. Brady, an instructor in the speech and drama department at Catholic University, has been a frequent contributor to The Washington Post theater page. He will handle theater reviews while Richard L. Coe is on vacation.)

By Leo Brady

YOU expect the horses to look alike in cowboy pictures, but "Gunfighters" at the Metropolitan presents a curious poser. It has two heroines and they look as alike as political platforms. They're sisters and they're played (the cast list says) by two actresses named Barbara Britton and Dorothy Hart (or vice versa).

No effort is made to distinguish between them. Just when you think you've got one pegged as the girl who wears dresses and the other as the tomato who goes in for breeches—bang! Sister No. 1 offers Sister No. 2 the loan of a rock. Early in the picture one of them leaves a footprint in the sand near a murder, but you can bet the audience doesn't get a chance to examine that.

In the end, one of them shoots her father and one of them rides off with Randolph Scott. But just between you and me, I think Scott, who doesn't look as quick on mental activity as he is on the draw, has a surprise coming when he gets over the horizon.

Scott's Trying

In addition to this who's-got-the-heroine charade, "Gunfighters" presents R. Scott as a man who is making an attempt to lay a pistol down. Acknowledged fast-draw man of the West at an unspecified time—there's a picture of Lincoln on the wall but nobody produces a calendar—Scott gives up shooting when his best friend takes a shot at him on the theory that a champion is bound sooner or later to get under the skin of his social circle. He ambles on to see another friend who turns out to be dead—murdered by rustlers. Then he meets those girls—and the guessing game begins. The solution of the murder is nothing to this little trick.

"GUNFIGHTERS" — Columbia release of Harry Joe Brown production. Directed by George Waggner. Screenplay by Alan LeMay, adapted from Zane Grey's novel, "Twin Sombreros." At the Metropolitan. The cast:

Brazos Kane	Randolph Scott
Bess Banner	Barbara Britton
Jane Banner	Dorothy Hart
Bard Macky	Bruce Cabot
Inskip	Charley Grapewin
Jose	Steven Geray
Hen Orcutt	Forrest Tucker
Sheriff Kincaden	Charles Kemper
Deputy Bill Yount	Grant Withers
Johnny O'Neil	John Miles
Banner	Griff Barnett

Western fans will find all of the usual ingredients, a little more complicated than usual perhaps. The chases seem longer but Randolph Scott kept winning them and the producers are careful to let him get no more than six-for-six out of one gun. Scripter Alan LeMay, an old cowhand at this genre, goes in for some fancy dialog here and there which is pretty good, but mostly he tailors the lines to Scott.

Two Good Scenes

There are at least two good scenes: Scott teaching John Miles how to shoot at the same time he lectures him on the fate of gunfighters; Scott, rolling and tossing to keep from being pinned by a wrestling horse. Bruce Cabot, Charley Grapewin, Grant Withers and Steven Geray do what's expected of them, and local boy Forrest Tucker looks like Sonny Tufts (here we go again). He, by the way, has a nice habit of snuffing cigarettes out on the palm of his rugged hand. Sounds like a possible testimonial: "Smoke Nicos, they're kind too your hands."

Oh, Scott solves the murder, of course—mostly by pumping lead into the rest of the cast—and then rides slowly away to find another friend—or what seems more likely—to practice bigamy. Those two girls!

Sullivan May Keep High Post in Party

Reported No. 2 Choice to Anderson As Committee Head

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The question of who is to succeed Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan as chairman of the Democratic National Committee is expected to be settled definitely next week.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, according to those who ought to know, is the best bet to take over the chairmanship and master-mind President Truman's campaign for a full, four-year term in '48.

Both Hannegan and Anderson are now in Hawaii.

Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, was reliably reported last night to be the No. 2 choice for the chairmanship.

Sullivan May Remain

Heretofore, many of the politically minded have taken it for granted that Sullivan was on his way out of the committee. They assumed that the new chairman would have his own choice for a right-hand man.

The new report that Sullivan is himself under consideration for the chairmanship would suggest that, at the very least, he may stay on as executive director.

From all indications, Hannegan has reconciled himself to the fact that his health won't permit him to run Mr. Truman's '48 campaign. He had not done so when he took off for Hawaii on August 11. The last thing he told reporters was that he would wait until he returned to Washington on September 1 and underwent an examination by Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, the White House physician.

Meantime, Hannegan has been talking with Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, who also is vacationing in Hawaii.

Anderson's Health a Factor

Preesident Truman wants Anderson to take over the chairmanship if Hannegan resigns. Ordinarily this would settle the matter; and, in fact, may have settled it. The only reason there has been any doubt is the state of Anderson's health.

As a youth, about the time of World War I when he tried to get in the Army, Anderson had to move from South Dakota to New Mexico to fight against tuberculosis. He arrested that disease, but later on was stricken with diabetes and high blood pressure.

Nevertheless, Anderson would have to be in bad shape, indeed, before he would turn down an assignment from President Truman. His official biography tells of a remark he made when he was a House member from New Mexico, and Mr. Truman asked him to join the Cabinet as Secretary of Agriculture.

"When Harry Truman gives you a job to do," Anderson said at the time, "you do it."

Job for Sullivan

Gael Sullivan, 42-year-old executive director of the national committee, was put into that post last February at a time when Hannegan was in Florida trying to recover his health. He has been running committee affairs ever since.

President Truman on one of two occasions has had to repress Sullivan's zeal, but apparently has retained a fondness for the energetic pedagogue who turned politician.

Sullivan, if he should stay on with the committee, would be a liaison man with the big-city bosses who played such an important part in Franklin D. Roosevelt's victories of 1932, '36, '40 and '44. A native of Providence, R. I., Sullivan went to Chicago to teach English literature at De Paul University. He got into politics in 1933 when he became an administrative assistant to Ed Kelly, then mayor as well as Democratic boss of Chicago. He later became Second Assistant Postmaster General.

Other Names Mentioned

While the Democratic chairmanship remains unsettled, the air of Washington is filled with names of those reported to be under consideration.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island was reported yesterday to be in line for the job. Leslie Biffle, former secretary of the U. S. Senate and now director of the Minority Policy Committee, also has been mentioned. Still another is John L. Sullivan, who, Thursday, was appointed Secretary of the Navy.

President Truman will actually choose the new chairman. His choice will be ratified at a meeting of the Democratic National Committee, which at the same time will choose a city for the 1948 Democratic National Convention.

Actress Inherits Socialite's Estate

IRENA POPELSKA-WAGNER, 36-year-old New York actress, born in Poland, was left an estate estimated at "more than $100,000" by the late Augustus L. Putnam, Boston millionaire, who made no mention of his wife in the will. Putnam, nephew of A. Lawrence Lowell, former Harvard president, died at the age of 48, while visiting friends in New York. Mrs. Lucy Balch Putnam, widow of the socialite and yachtsman, has challenged Miss Popelska-Wagner's right to the estate

D. C. Officials Study Stronger Law on Weeds

A strengthened anti-weed law for the District, more fitting for this era of DDT than the 1899 act which now governs weed-fighting activities, is being studied by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

Through the District Commissioners, West has received a recommendation from the Committee on Cleanliness and Sanitation for legislation that would permit District authorities to eradicate weeds from private property and add the costs to the property owner's next tax bill.

The corporation counsel said yesterday he did not believe authority for such action would be assumed by the District authorities without an act of Congress, which would mean the proposed ragweed control would have to wait until next year at least.

Fines Allowed Under Law

The present legislation allows District authorities to levy fines for private property that is infested with weeds, on property owners if they live in the District. There is no provision for absentee owners.

The recommended legislation would provide for weed destruction with the owner's permission for patches under 4 inches in height, while weeds of 4 inches or more could be eradicated by District authorities with the cost charged to the owner.

Legal machinery provided under the present regulation is slow and the law is seldom used. If weeds are not cut after attaining a heighth of 4 inches, the District government must give the owner seven days' notice to get rid of them. If he doesn't comply in that time, he may be tried in Municipal Court and fined $10 a day until the offending grasses are chopped down.

Must Publish Notices

In the case of out-of-town owners, notices must be published twice during one week, before court action.

The Health Department, which previously handled the District's weed operations, turned them over to the Police Department about a year ago. Police have been taking no action except when neighbors complained.

The committee on cleanliness and sanitation, appointed in June, 1946, includes 12 representatives of Federal and District government agencies concerned with education, law enforcement and health.

Burglars On Job

Topeka, Kans. (U.P.)—"I'll leave this for the burglars," Marcus Reeves, manager of a lumber company, said jokingly as he stuck $2.65 from a late sale into a desk drawer rather than reopen a locked safe. The next morning burglars had taken the $2.65, leaving a note: "Kilroy was here."

Tenants Hit Maintenance, Oppose Boost

Tenants of the Maryland Court Apartments, 9th and E sts. ne., testified yesterday that they are ashamed to bring home guests because of the unsightly condition of the apartments.

They appeared at a hearing before Rent Control Examiner James Tyson to oppose rent hikes of 13 per cent requested by Mrs. Lois B. Asher, owner of the 128-unit apartment. Rents now range from $30 for a one-room apartment to $62.50 for four rooms.

Clyde B. Asher, husband of the owner, testified that the higher rents are needed to cover increased costs. Taxes alone are more than $900 above last year, he said.

Tenants, represented by Attorney Charles Ford, complained that stairways are poorly lighted, lobbies and corridors dirty, and walls have not been painted in eight years.

During winter months heat is turned off for a five-hour period every day while the furnace is cleaned, they said.

Pregnancy No Cause to Wed, Army Decides

By Barret McGurn

Rome, Aug. 22.—The United States Army in the Rome area does not consider pregnancy a sufficient reason for marriage, it was learned today.

The Army's marriage attitude was brought out today during an investigation conducted by Max W. Sorensen of Philadelphia, national commander of the Catholic War Veterans of the United States.

Since March 31, the War Department, without explanation, has forbidden all marriages of American Army personnel "unless in exceptional circumstances." The order applies to all troops in Italy. So far as is known here, it also concerns other overseas areas.

The War Department order did not explain what it considered exceptional circumstances so that in Rome the decision has been up to Col. A. L. Hamblen of Washington, a 31-year veteran of Army service. He is commanding officer.

The colonel was clearly unhappy as he discussed the matter today.

"Initially, I considered pregnancy an exceptional circumstance—after all a man's got to do the proper thing," Colonel Hamblen explained. "Then it became evident that they were getting girls pregnant just to marry them. I took it up with theter headquarters. We decided pregnancy was not an unusual circumstance." The colonel smiled ruefully. "After all, it's just the result of nature taking its course."

Colonel Hamblen has turned down more than half the marriage applications he has received since March 31.

Novelist's Letters Go to Lehigh Library

Bethlehem, Pa. (U.P.)—A collection of 84 letters written between 1893 and 1898 by Richard Harding Davis, late journalist and novelist, has been added to the collection of the Lehigh University library.

The collection consists largely of letters discussing publishing problems between Davis and the late Henry Harper, one of the founders of Harper & Brothers, publishers.

Included are several letters criticizing proofreading of his magazine articles, advertising campaigns for new books and choice of artists to illustrate his work.

While a student at Lehigh in the early 1880's, Davis scored the first touchdown in the university's football history against Lafayette in 1884.

Eviction Fails

Court Rules Mrs. Belt May Stay

The little old lady on the hill won't be moving.

For almost 40 years Mrs. Roberta Belt, 84, has lived in a house at 517 E. Capitol st., in the shadow of the Capitol dome.

She has seen Presidents ride to the Capitol in horse-drawn carriages. She has seen the Capitol lights blaze into the nights as crises came and wars developed.

And a Municipal Court jury, sitting in the court of Judge Ellen K. Raedy, decided yesterday that there she should stay.

Mrs. Belt's eviction had been sought by Joseph G. Herbert, jr., who testified that he is in the real estate business with his father and that his father had purchased the house occupied by Mrs. Belt in 1945.

Paid Rent Regularly

Mrs. Belt had n't been negligent in paying her $55-a-month rent, Herbert said. But he neded the house.

He explained his problem. He was married for the second time last March 11. His father gave him the house as a wedding gift. Herbert said he wouldn't have needed such a large house (it has seven bedrooms) except that an agreement with his first wife calls for him to take care of their four children during the summer months and during weekends in the winter.

In addition, Herbert testified, he plans to bring his new wife's aged parents here from Oklahoma to live with him.

Baby Sitter Elopes With Father of 10

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 22 (U.P.).—A father of 10 children was held today for running off with the baby sitter.

Joseph A. Bray, 37, admitted that he left his family packed in their trailer at Bell Gardens, Calif., and ran off with the plump blonde sitter, Betty Joe Roberts, 16.

He took most of the family relief check with him.

Bray's wife, Gladys, 34, said Miss Roberts began sitting with the kids a week ago when Mrs. Bray came home from the hospital with her tenth child.

"We got acquainted while she was sitting with the children," Bray said. "We met on the street Wednesday and decided to leave town together."

Mrs. Bray's story wa sa little different, however. She charged that Miss Roberts, an orphan of Morrison, Colo., visiting at Bell Gardens, was an accomplished siren despite her youth.

"She teased, tortured and tantalized my husband," Mrs. Bray said. "We've been together 14 years without any trouble but this girl came between us and broke us up.

"She just wouldn't leave him alone. She would sit down beside him and run her fingers through his hair and tickle him. I asked her not to, but she didn't mind."

Police arrested Bray and Miss Roberts after State officials broadcast the license number of Bray's car.

Age No Barrier

Whitehall, Wis. (U.P.)—Age doesn't seem to mean a thing to W. J. Webb. The Whitehall pioneer was reelected to his eighth consecutive term as president of a bank here. He celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday the day before.

Unions Direct Fire at New Labor Law

Chicago, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The CIO United Public Workers executive board today urged its local unions "to take all possible steps, within the framework of existing law, to further the election of a Congress in 1948 which will be truly representativ of a majority of Americans."

A resolution adopted by the 35-member board meeting said Congress and 30 State legislatures "have this year enacted a torrent of antilabor laws . . . designed to weaken, undermine and destroy organized labor.

"This is apparent," the resolution continued, "from the monstrous Taft-Hartley law which with one blow purports to wipe out all of labor's hard earned gains over the past 50 years."

Robert Weinstein, UPW organization director, reported that in the last six months more than 7000 additional dues paying members have joined the union. The UPW now claims a membership of 110,000.

Guild Plans Boycott

New York, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The Newspaper Guild of New York (CIO), which claims 8000 members and is the largest local in the National Newspaper Guild, said today its members had voted to boycott the new National Labor Relations Board set up under the Taft-Hartley law.

The Guild in a resolution said the act created many new devices that would prove "an obstruction rather than an aid to collective bargaining rights." It pledged an "all-out fighat" for repeal of the law.

Backs Union Solidarity

Chicago, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The AFL International Photo-Engravers' Union today voted to "exert every effort upon the AFL to unite the various divided labor unions" in the United States and Canada.

The group unanimously re-elected all its officers and passed resolutions stating that:

Local unions in States where restrictive labor laws are passed urge their members to take active part in defeating those who voted to pass such laws, and that the international-secretary treasurer be instructed to insert in the union magazine at the appropriate time the names of all members of Congress who voted for the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

Political Club Inquiry

Cleveland, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Democratic State Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum today made public a letter to U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft (R., O.) inquiring whether incorporated political clubs violate the Taft-Hartley Labor Act by engaging in "normal political activities."

Naming several Republican clubs, which he said were Ohio corporations, Menzenbaum quoted a section of the Taft-Hartley Act to the effect that is was unlawful "for any corporation whatever" to make a contribution or expenditure" in connection with presidential and congressional elections, primaries, political conventions or caucuses.

To Seek Direct Ties

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, called today for complete unity of organized labor and said his organization would seek direct union affiliation "when the CIO and AFL join forces."

Robertson said the Brotherhood sought such affiliation because "selfish but short-sighted, but very powerful interests" were attacking American labor at home while "allen political parties" from abroad were joining in the attack.

Ford Contract Beats Deadline Of Labor Law

Detroit, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The Ford Motor Co. and the CIO United Auto Workers had a new two-year contract today, sidestepping, at union insistence, several stipulations of the new Taft-Hartley Labor Law but leaving to 107,000 production workers decision as to whether they want an old age pension of a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase.

The new contract was initialed just 40 seconds before last midnight when the new labor law became effective. By beating the clock the union preserved its union shop rights, outlawed by the Taft-Hartley Act unless a majority of the workers voted for it, and also formalized a company promise not to sue the union for unauthorized strikes at least during the year ahead.

The workers themselves, however, will decide in a referendum expected to take three weeks, whether they want a pension plan and a seven-cents an hour wage hike, or no pension and a wage increase of 11½ cents an hour plus six paid holidays each year.

Chrysler Workers Strike

As tension over the possibility of strike action against the widely scattered Ford plants was eased, Chrysler Corp. announced that 82 UAW-CIO employees in its Jefferson Avenue plant here had walked out in a "wildcat strike" on the first day of the new Taft-Hartley Law.

The men returned to their jobs later in the afternoon, however. While the new labor law permits an employer to sue a union for any alleged contract violations, Chrysler spokesmen said no such action was contemplated for the present. The spokesman said the strikers objected to the rehiring of a former employee instead of the upgrading of a union member in the plant.

Before the men returned to their jobs, a UAW-CIO official said the company declined to discuss the dispute with the workers in advance of the strike.

180 Millions for Plan

From unofficial sources it was learned that the Ford Co. will pay an estimated 180 million dollars to blanket all its employes into the pension plan and that it expects to pay from 7 million dollars to 15 million dollars a year to maintain it.

Employes who would begin paying into the retirement fund after September 15 of this year would contribute 2½ per cent of their earnings up to $300 a year and 5 per cent on earnings above that amount.

It was understood retirement age, fixed at 70, would gradually decreast to 65 by August 31, 1950, and that allowances under the program take into consideration the social security payments an employe and his wife might be entitled to.

Examples were cited where a workers retiring this year at 70 years of age and with 30 years service behind might receive $1150 from the pension fund and social security, plus what his wife might receive from social security. An employe hired this year at 20 years of age and retired at 65 would get a total of $1592 from the pension fund and social security benefits plus any benefits accruing to his wife from social security.

In both instances these calculations were based on an annual wage of $2234.

D. C. Theaters Ready to Drop Free Film Row

The Motion Picture Theater Owners indicated to the District Recreation Board yesterday that they'd just as soon drop their dispute over free movies at playgrounds until next year.

In a letter addressed to Harry Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, which sponsors summer playground movies, the MPTO suggested that "as the season is almost over, this all might wait until the subject comes up next spring."

MPTO's contention has been that the films constituted unfair competition were being shown under unsanitary conditions, and that in some cases might corrupt young minds.

A commercial film, produced by a major cigarette company and describing modern tobacco production and preparation, was cited as being bad for youngsters.

Dollar Now $1.40 In Old Account

Houston, Tex. (U.P.).—A dollar's a dollar even to a millionaire, W. P. Hubbard, Houston superintendent of money orders and postal savings for the United States Government, notified a former Houston man, now a New York millionaire, that the dollar he had left in postal savings bank there more than 20 years ago was now $1.40.

The man said he'd claim the money, as it represented one of the first dollars he ever made.

Illinois Sweetens U. S.

Chicago (U.P.).—Illinois, the candy-making State of the world, produced a quarter of the United States production in 1945 and 1946, the Encyclopedia Brittanica 1947 Book of the Year says.

Shop Well Named

Boston (U.P.).—The Thrift Shop, a charitable enterprise operated by Boston women, has amassed and distributed more than $225,000 to seven local charities in the last 21 years.

State Denies Bounty For Unborn Foxes

Madison, Wis. (U.P.).—An unborn fox warrants no State bounty in Wisconsin, it was ruled recently.

The decision came when Fred Cooper caught a female fox in a trap. While in the trap it gave birth to a little fox. Four more were about to be born.

Warden Wesley Newcomb reported the case was settled by paying bounties on only the old fox and the one that had been born.

The trapper could not get any credit for the "potential" foxes.

Nats Back in Form, Lose 2 to Tigers

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, AUG. 22.—Reid Moseley of the University of Georgia led the Nation's pass receivers in 1945, and in 1946 was Georgia's second-string end. The man who moved in on him was Joe Tereshinski, who is taking a 3 a. m. plane tomorrow morning to join the Redskins in California after tonight's business with the Chicago Bears in Soldiers Field.

POVICH

The Redskins had to outbid the New York Yankees of the All-America Conference for Tereshinski's signature on a pro football contract and they think they have come up with some kind of a prize. Mr. Frank Leahy, who coaches the College All-Stars against the Bears, also thinks somewhat highly of Mr. Tereshinski. There are 14 ends on the All-Star squad and Tereshinski has gotten a starting job.

Ray Flaherty, coach of the Yankees, who used to play end himself in the pro league and credits himself with knowing pro league timber, especially ends, all but busted a gut trying to sign Tereshinski at the Sugar Bowl game last fall. He didn't lose any enthusiasm for the big boy when he saw him intercept a North Carolina pass, and lateral it at midfield on a touchdown play that put Georgia out in front in the third quarter.

THE ROUGHEST MAN on the field that day in New Orleans was Tereshinski and when a Northern football writer remarked to Mr. Zipp Newman, of the Birmingham Press, that "that big right end plays rough," Mr. Newman said, "It's a very mild day for him. You should have seen Tereshinski against Georgia Tech. He is a very nice boy who thinks football should be played roughly, and Coach Wally Butts does not discourage that kind of right-thinking."

Later that same afternoon, Charley Justice, North Carolina's 165-pound quarterback, suddenly became tired of Tereshinski's boom-lowering tactics and decided to discourage the fellow, at least temporarily. It was on a Georgia line play, and Justice was playing safety, and Tereshinski took dead aim on him with the snap of the ball.

The play didn't gain a yard, but Tereshinski was unaware of that fact and oblivious of any whistle, rammed his head into Justice's belly and carried the back-stepping safety man 10 yards farther down field. Whereupon Justice, with pardonable anger, brought his knee up against Tereshinski's chin and watched him fall, out cold. Tereshinski took approximately an eight-count and walked back to his position.

THE REDSKINS MAY, indeed, have something in Tereshinski. Like Charley Trippi, his teammate at Georgia, Tereshinski is a Pennsylvania "Cracker." He found his way to Athens, like Trippi, by the merest coincidence. They worked together in a Glen Lyon, Pa., Coca Cola bottling plant managed by Harold Ketron, a Georgia alumnus, who pictured campus life at Athens so seductively that both Tereshinski and Trippi chucked offers from all other colleges.

Tereshinski played for Georgia in the Rose Bowl game of January 1, 1943, when UCLA took a 9-0 beating, but there was a two-year interlude in his football after that. He was one of the most-drafted players in history. The Redskins drafted him in 1945 and the Yankees drafted him in 1946, but he was drafted originally by Mr. Roosevelt who greeted him with "Greetings." He wound up as an infantry sergeant with the Ninth Army in Germany.

Washington's Touchdown Club tapped Tereshinski for one of its trophies last year but he didn't make the annual dinner because of bad flying weather out of Atlanta.

He's all hepped up about joining the pros. He never saw the pros' football until tonight's game against the Bears. He doesn't look like a great big bully at all. He's a blond 200-pounder of 6 feet 2, definitely on the handsome side, and sort of shy, which is somewhat startling in the light of his bruising tactics on the football field.

When he joins the Redskins tomorrow, he'll be in shape. He has put in three weeks with the College All-Stars, but he has been in a football uniform ever since July 1 when he was in summer practice with the Georgia squad, "just for the fun of it," he says.

"THEY'LL TAME HIM down in the pro league," Ray Flaherty said of Tereshinski after resigning himself to the loss of the fellow to the Redskins. "If he tries to play that rough with the pros, they'll know how to take care of him. They'll hit him a couple of times from two sides, and maybe he'll lose some of that extra enthusiasm. But if he was playing for me, I'd want him to have it."

Jack Lavelle, the Giants' scout, who was appraising Tereshinski for Steve Owen until he was drafted for the Redskins, says, "He's the roughest end I've seen since Catfish Smith, who also came out of Georgia U. Catfish came up to Yale and tried to start the Civil War all over again.

"The Giants stopped Smith the next year in an All-Star game he was playing in. He acted as if he wanted to pick your eyes out and eat 'em for grapes until we put an end, a halfback and a flanker on him one play and hit him from three sides. After that, he was well behaved."

AN UNDERPASS TO SAFETY—Maybe the Dodgers are leading the National League because they're always quick to take advantage of every situation, like this one for example. The gentleman sliding in to score a vital run in the Bums' 6-5 win, 12 innings, yesterday over the Reds is Eddie Miksis, Dodger third baseman. Eddie is sliding under the leg of Reds' catcher, Ray Lamanno, who is having a little trouble

Griffs Blow 6-0 Lead in First, Lose 7-6 and 2-0

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Detroit, Aug. 22.—The temperature and the Nats both went down here today.

A mass of cool air from Canada dropped the thermometer a few notches while the Tigers alone were responsible for the Nat descent, 7-6 and 2-0.

The Nats deserve a swift kick in the pants for blowing that first game. They entered the last half of the ninth leading, 6 to 0. They staggered out of it beaten to a pulp as the Tigers paraded 11 batters to the plate who produced nine hits and seven runs.

Houtteman Gets Second

Art Houtteman, a young right hander with a bushel of stuff, was responsible for the second setback. He pitched a beaut of a five-hitter and when the Nats threatened to do something in the ninth he simply struck out the last two batters to leave the tieing runs on base.

Ray Scarborough piched well enough to win himself, allowing only five hits before yielding to a pinch hitter in the eighth. But the way the Nats were not hitting, the best he could have gotten out of his effort was a scoreless tie.

Walter Masterson had a four-hit shutuot and his tenth victory all but in the record books when the Tigers stirred up themselves and the 7709 customers in the final inning of the opener.

Vernon Homers

He was backed by an 11-hit offensive which included a three-run homer by Mickey Vernon in the first inning and was a prohibitive favorite to stretch the Nat victory skein to three in a row.

But he didn't and it wasn't his fault. He got no relief from Milo Candini and Tom Ferrick, who were ushered into the contest to bail him out.

The only relief afforded was to the spectators who were on the verge of seeing the Bengals lose their fourth in a row.

Masterson, like Scarborough, was pitching with only two days' rest. That's how tough things are with the Washington pitching department.

He got the first man in the ninth and didn't appear tired when Manager Ossie Bluege yanked him after Evers, McHale and Wagner had singled to ruin his shutout.

But he vacated the premises in favor of Candini.

That's All Brother

Candini's last effort resulted in an eight-run inning for Cleveland Tuesday night. He didn't have a chance to be that bad today as Bluege, trusting no one these stormy days, got him out of there after the first pitch—a single to Pinch-Hitter Fred Hutchinson which brought in the second Bengal run.

Then in trudged Ferrick to see what he could do. It turned out to be nothing for Lake greeted him with the fifth straight single and the score was 6-3. Ferrick fanned Mayo, but he didn't have that much luck against the next batter, Outfielder Vic Wertz. Not quite.

Wertz looked over two pitches and slammed the third one into the right field seats for a three-run homer. Ferrick then had a chance to be either the winning or losing pitcher and the Tigers elected to select him for the latter. Wakefield singled and Kell, up for the second time, also singled. Evers, joining in the spirit of the moment, singled, singled, too, and Wakefield raced over with the seventh and winning run.

10 Minutes Damage

It took only 10 minutes of concentrated effort to wipe out what the Nats had built up in over two hours.

Vernon's fifth homer brought Yost, who had doubled, and Robertson, who legged out an infield tap, home in the first. Most of the damage was done at the expense of Johnny Gorsica who took over from starter Dizzy Trout. Trout pitched two balls, the second a double to Yost, and came out with a sore arm.

Gorsica wa stagged for two more runs in the third and the Nats made it 6-0 off of him in the fifth.

Evans Is Beaned, Out for 10 Days

DETROIT, Aug. 22.—Catcher Al Evans was lost to the Nats for at least 10 days today when George Kell of the Tigers, hit him in the head with a bat in the ninth inning of the first game.

Evans received a nasty cut just back of his ear when Kell accidentally hit him as Evans reached to pick up a foul tip. As Evans reached for the ball, Kell, off balance after fouling the pitch, started to bring his bat back and struck Evans.

He was taken off the field in a stretcher to Ford Hospital where he remained under observation tonight. Doctors said there was no fracture. Seven stitches were required to close the cut.

Firemen Oust Merrick From Series, 5-4

The Fire Department pushed over a run in the ninth inning to defeat Merrick Boys' Club, 5-4, yesterdya in their city play-off game on the South Ellipse before more than 1000 persons.

The loss eliminated Merrick from the series. The Firemen play undeaten Heurich's Monday. If Heurich's win, it will represent Washington in the tourney at Harrisburg. If the firemen triumph, the two teams play again Tuesday to determine the District champion.

Deadlocked at 4-all going into the last half of the final frame, Dave Wallenstein singled, advanced to second on Bill Moore's sacrifice, and scored on Dick Farr's single.

Merrick Scores First

Merrick spurted into a two-run lead in the first inning. Bud McManes singled, stole second and scored on Al Cesky's one-bagger. Cesky tallied when an error was made on Bob Lamon's single.

The Firemen evened the count in the second. Bernie Davis walked and scored on Bill Vaughan's double and Vaughan crossed the plate on Farr's one-base blow.

The Firemen went ahead in the third as Wallenstein singled, was sacrificed to second by Moore and scored on Al Krug's single.

Merrick Ahead Again

Merrick snatcahed the advantage in the fourth when John Condon doubled to center, went to third on a bad throw-in and scored on Al Guiffredas's fly. Jim Galloway walked, stole second and scored on Gene Gould's single.

The Firemen came back to tie it up with a run in the fifth to set the stage for the ninth-inning development.

Don Purdy, former Anacostia High athlete, pitched the eight-hit verdict for the Firemen. Gould, former Western High star, hurled for Merrick and was hammered for 15 hits.

Krag paced the winners with three for five.

Stars Take 13-0 Lead Over Bears In 1st Half

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, Aug. 22.—The underdog College All-Stars played the Chicago Bears, National Professional Football League champions, off their feet in the first half tonight, leading 13-0, with 103,000 fans enjoying the proceedings at Soldier Field.

It was the fourteenth renewal of the grid extravaganza and the Bears' sixth appearance in the classic. The All-Stars defeated the Los Angeles Rams last year and the Bears are seeking revenge for their league member.

The Bears have never been beaten in the series although they were tied back in 1934.

The Bears took the opening kickoff on their own 42, and were forced to punt after three plays netted only six yards. Trippi made a ten-yard return that was nullified by a clipping penalty and the Collegians put the bayy in play on their own 18.

Never losing possession, the All-Stars marched 82 yards to the game's first touchdown after 7 minutes of the opening quarter. Buddy Young gained 4 yards on a lateral from Arnold Tucker of Army, and two plays later on a faker pass he raced 34 yards to the Bears' 38 before being run out of bounds.

Jim Mello, of Notre Dame, stunned the Bears with a 15-yard smash through the middle on a quick opening play, with Hocovak hauling him down finally.

Blanchard Scores

Trippi now took a turn at the ball carrying and two plays later he cut outside right end for 18 yards to the Bears' seven. Rykovich of Illinois, smashed out a yard at center and then Doc Blanchard, on a reverse, skirted toward left end, cut back through tackle and bulled his way to a touchdown.

Ernie Casee's place kick for the extra point was blocked by George Wilson, veteran Bears' end.

The Bears bounced back after the next kick-off with Sid Luckman flipping a long pass to Hugh Gallarneau for a 32-yard gain that gave the Bears a first down on the Collegians' 42, but the Collegians stalled both the Bears passing and running game at that point.

Young Sprints 45 Yards

When the Bears punted, Trippi gambled and took the ball on his own 3, but gained only 3 yards. Julie Rykovich got the All-Stars out of trouble, however, with a 16-yard smash through the Bears' line.

Never losing the ball, the Collegians moved back to another first-quarter touchdown. George Batterman ,Notre Dame quarterback of last year, was thrown for a 7-yard loss on a passing attempt by Wilson, but on the next play he flipped a pass behind the line to Buddy Young, who , behind superb blocking, swept 45 yard sdown field to the Bears' 46.

With the Bears now assigning two men to the elusive Young, wsho was playing the left flank, Batterman picked out an old Notre Dame teammate, John Zilly, for his next pass and it succeeded beautifully for a touchdown.

Zilly outran the Bears' secondary to take the ball 10 yars from the goal and prance over unimpeded on a 46-yard play.

Ernie Case placekicked the extra point and the All-Stars led, 13-0, with 1 minute of the quarter remaining.

Tribe Stops Yanks, 4 to 3, In Opener

Cleveland, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians edged the New York Yankees 4-3 in the opener of a twilight-night double-header before approximately 50,000 tonight.

Bob Lemon received credit for the win, but had to have help from Ed Klieman in the eighth. Vic Raschi was the loser. Joe Gordon clouted his twenty-third home run of the season for the Tribe in the third.

Dodgers Nose Out Cincy in 12th, 6-5

Brooklyn, Aug. 22 (AP).—An error by Catcher Ray Lamanno enabled the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers to defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 6-5 in 12 innings today.

Dixie Walker scored the winning run. Walker opened the frame with a double, his fourth hit. Pee Wee Reese bunted but was automatically out when he stepped on the ball. Walker moved to third on Stan Rojek's infield hit and dashed plateward when Al Gionfriddo bounced to Shortstop Eddie Miller.

Miller's throw to the plate had Walker beat but Lamanno dropped the ball as Walker ran into him.

Reds Tie It in Ninth

The Reds sent the game into overtime by tying the score at 5-5 with a two-run rally at the expense of Hugh Casey, third Dodger pitcher, in the ninth.

With one out, Tom Tatum singled. Grady Hatton followed with another one-bagger and Tatum scored and Hatton reached third when Pete Reiser let the ball roll through his legs.

Bobby Adams then doubled to center to score Hatton with the tying run. Hank Behrman relieved Casey and held the Reds hitless the rest of the way.

Gumbert Finishes

Joe Hatten started for the Dodgers but left in the eighth when the Reds scored once to deadlock the count at 3-3. The Dodgers came back in their half against Harry Gumbert, second Cincinnati pitcher, with a two-run drive.

With two out, Bruce Edwards singled. Walker followed with a triple and Reese with a two-bagger before Gumbert got the side out. Gumbert went the rest of the way, allowing seven hits all told.

Griffs Blow 6-0 Lead in First, Lose 7-6 and 2-0

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Detroit, Aug. 22.—The temperature and the Nats both went down here today.

A mass of cool air from Canada dropped the thermometer a few notches while the Tigers alone were responsible for the Nat descent, 7-6 and 2-0.

The Nats deserve a swift kick in the pants for blowing that first game. They entered the last half of the ninth leading, 6 to 0. They staggered out of it beaten to a pulp as the Tigers paraded 11 batters to the plate who produced nine hits and seven runs.

Houtteman Gets Second

Art Houtteman, a young right hander with a bushel of stuff, was responsible for the second setback. He pitched a beaut of a five-hitter and when the Nats threatened to do something in the ninth he simply struck out the last two batters to leave the tieing runs on base.

Ray Scarborough piched well enough to win himself, allowing only five hits before yielding to a pinch hitter in the eighth. But the way the Nats were not hitting, the best he could have gotten out of his effort was a scoreless tie.

Walter Masterson had a four-hit shutuot and his tenth victory all but in the record books when the Tigers stirred up themselves and the 7709 customers in the final inning of the opener.

Beau Wynn Triumphs at Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 22.—N. Scava's Beau Wynn, sent postward a hot favorite by the crowd of 5000, splashed a mile and one-sixteenth in 1:57 over a sloppy track, an easy winner of the Thomas B. Finan Memorial, the day's feature.

Sammy Palumbo snugged the gelding behind the pace for a mile. Once set down, Beau Wynn rushed to the front to win easily from J. E. Crider's Alhalon. Mrs. Mary Knieriem's Red Wrack was third.

The late Harry A. Manley, who served either as general manager or president from 1925 to 1943, inclusive, will be commemorated tomorrow when the twelfth renewal of the $1200 Manley is carded over the five-eighths route.

In addition to the purse, the owner of the winner will get a leg on a silver trophy imported from England, and which was once the property of King George 3d.

A rainstorm, fourth in as many days, struck this track before post time, inundating the racing strip.

Patsy Grant of Charles Town, W. Va., rode the winner of the first two races. He took the fixe eights opener with Mrs. R. H. Clemson's Maryland Morn, favorite at $3.80 and then landed the second, also run as five eighths with S. J. Flammia's Pandoramint $4.00. Due to both winners being public choices, the 4-1 daily double paid only $10.

Phalanx, Fervent Favorites

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP).—Four starters, the smallest field since 1916, will go to the post in the 37th running of the American Derby at Washington Park tomorrow.

The mile and a quarter event for three-year-olds will have a gross value of $93,250, with $70,950 going to the owner of the winning thoroughbred.

Pre-race favortism rests between Phalanx, C. V. Whitney's topranking colt, and Calumet Farm's Fervent, but Cosmic Bomb, William Helis' speedy entrant, also will draw support. The dark horse is Captain Flagg, owned by Mrs. Rea E. Warner.

Seek 3-Year-Old Title

Phalanx will be striving to strengthen his claim to the three-year-old championship of 1947. The Eastern colt attained top ranking by stake victories in the Wood Memorial, Belmont, Dwyer and Empire City. He was beaten narrowly by Jet Pilot in the Kentucky Derby, and lost to Faultless and On Trust in the Preakness.

Phalanx is the leading 3-year-old money winner to date, with $227,900. His total winnings for two years is $285,010. The thoroughbred, shipped from Saratoga to run in the Derby, will be ridden by Ruperto Donoso, 35-year-old Chilean rider, who has guided him to victory in his major triumphs.

The Whitney colt must carry top weight of 126 pounds, based on his previous impressive victories. His three rivals will carry 118 pounds. Whether the stretch-running Phalanx can spot either Fervent or Cosmic Bomb eight pounds is problematical.

Fervent's poor showing this season was against Cosmic Bomb in the recent mile Drexel Handicap, when he was beaten two lengths on a fast track.

Previously he had finished second to the sensational King Ranch's But What Not in the Arlington Classic. Phalanx whipped the filly in both the Dwyer and Empire City stakes.

If the track remains fast tomorrow, Cosmic Bomb may upset both Phalanx and Fervent.

The dark horse, Captain Flagg, has never won a stakes event in a light campaign. He is a full brother to The Dude, surprise winner of the 1946 Arlington classic.

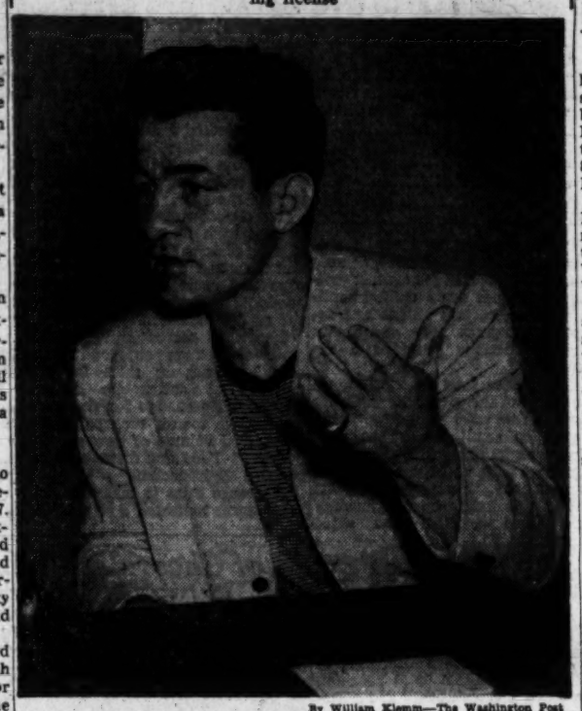
ROCKY GRAZIANO, usually tousled-headed, is the picture of neatness as he says his piece at the D. C. Boxing Commission yesterday before signing contracts for Monday's exhibition at Griffith Stadium and renewing his local boxing license



By William Klemm—The Washington Post

'Swamped With Offers'

Rocky Plans Big Tour After Monday's Date at Stadium

A tour of the Pacific Coast and three countries outside the United States is being planned by Rocky Graziano, new World's Middleweight Champion, after Monday night's Griffith Stadium exhibition against Heavyweight Cliff Keorkle.

One of the New York scrapper's managers, Dewey Fragetta, revealed this yesterday as Rocky made a flying visit to Washington to clear up details for Monday's show.

"We're being swamped with offers," Fragetta said, "and we'll accept as many as possible. Everyone wants to see Graziano fight, and we'll oblige, even in exhibitions."

"Keorkle is a big, tough kid and will make a good showing for himself. He'll make Rocky work. It was Keorkle who floored Conn when Billy was training for the second Louis fight, getting himself thrown out of camp."

Graziano yesterday claimed he was misquoted in the New York bixing probe in which he was barred for failing to report a $100,000 bribe offer.

Backing up the Graziano-Keorkle affair will be three eight-rounders. These bring together Featherweights Sonny Boy West and Harry Lasane, junior middleweights Aaron Perry and Bobby Cummings; and middleweights Kid Wolfe and Al Wright.

18 Groups Seek Harness Races

Football Player Wins Lefty Golf

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP).—Robert Buchanan, 18-year-old Indianapolis, Ind., High School graduate, won the National lefthanded golfers' championship today by defeating Loddie Kempa, Stillwater, Okla., 2 up in their 36-hole final at Suburban Cog Hill Course. Kempa is quarterback of the Oklahoma A. & M. football team.

Two Title Games Today in Johnson League's Series

Their championship double-header called off yesterday by a soggy Griffith Stadium diamond, contenders in the Walter Johnson League "little world series" today try to settle titles in the 12-year-and-under and 12-14-year classes.

At 11 a. m. Kelly Miller and Banneker take the field in the younger class and at 2 p. m. it will be the Takoma Yellow Cats against Rosedale.

Takoma will be favored to tuck away its game, despite the fact the teams have split their first two meetings. The Cats made a farce of Wednesday's tilt, winning by 19-2 in just four innings of play.

A third Johnson League title already belongs to the Anacostia Eagles.

Giants Win Battle of Homers, 8-7

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—The home-run hitting New York Giants slammed three four-baggers today, but a pinch-hit single by Ernie Lombardi in the eighth inning was the deciding blow in the Giants' 8-7 conquest of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lombardi singled to left to score Mickey Witek with the winning run after the Giants had knotted the count on Johnny Mize's single, Willard Marshall's double and Walker Cooper's single.

Witek provided the Giants with an early 2-0 lead by clouting an inside-the-park homer with one on in the second. After the Pirates tied it up in the fourth, the Giants came back in the bottom of the fourth with two runs on Cooper's twenty-seventh boundary belt.

They added another in the sixth when Marshall cracked his thirtieth homer of the season to up their lead to 5-2.

The Pirates tied the count in the seventh, scoring three times with Ralph Kiner igniting the rally with his thirty-sixth homer. Two less than Mize—who leads the majors—has hammered.

Pittsburgh went ahead by two runs in the eighth on Buddy Kerr's two-base error, a walk and Jack Lohrke's three-base wild throw on Clyde Kluttz' grounder, but the Giants came right back in their half to recapture the contest at the expense of Al Lyons, second Pirate hurler.

D. C. Insurance Sales Off 3% In 7 Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington sales of ordinary life insurance totaled $10,570,000 in July, a decrease of 10 per cent as compared with the same 1946 month. This brought aggregate sales for the first seven months to $74,642,000, off 3 per cent from the like 1946 period.

Slipping tendencies were general in Maryland, Virginia and throughout the Nation.

Maryland sales totaled $18,920,000 last month, off 20 per cent. The seven-month volume in the Free State was down 6 per cent. Virginia sales of $21,005,000 last month were 10 per cent lower, while the seven-month total dipped 4 per cent.

Nationally, life insurance sales aggregated $1,210,569,000, down 10 per cent for the month. Sales for the seven months were $8,597,391,000, a drop of 6 per cent.

Figures were reported yesterday by the Life Insurance Agency Management Association of Hartford, Conn.

STORE SALES: Washington department stores in week ended August 16 showed 3 per cent dip in sales as compared with like 1946 period. In four weeks ended same date, sales were off 2 per cent. Dollar volume of stores in Fifth Federal Reserve District slumped 11 per cent for week and was down 5 per cent for four-week period. Figures reported yesterday by Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

15TH STREET PERSONALITY: Landmark on floor of Washington Stock Exchange is Ralph J. Saffell, who's been all-around handy-man for the market since June 9, 1913. Ralph keeps in the background, just like the big blackboard and other fixtures of the exchange. But he's there to keep paper work of exchange running smoothly. Born in Washington, he started work for the market at age of 20. He's seen the local exchange pass through some hectic times—two wars and many ups and downs. His most vivid memory is Wednesday, October 30, 1929, when the local market in common with the Big Board had its biggest activity day—on the down side. A bachelor, Ralph is "rabid" about baseball but confesses his interest flags when Nats are in second division. Enjoys radio listening, especially when "funny men" are on. Gray-haired and of slight build, he's well-informed on local securities and admits "some investments" of his own. Modest to an extreme, he wouldn't permit picture of him to be made.

BULLS AND BEARS: In special survey of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., Fitch Investors Service comments, "Since sales and growth prospects of this well-entrenched department store are favorable, the shares have good speculative possibilities at prevailing levels for liberal yield and appreciation" . . . Bache & Co. lists 13 oil equipment companies whose outlook is considered favorable . . . Standard & Poore's declares: "Candy and soft drink makers have new worry. Sponsors of the excise taxes want to impose a levy of 1 cent a bottle on soft drinks and to tax candy and chewing gum at the rate of 15 per cent."

ODD LOTS: Life span of industrial workers averaged 65.57 years in 1946, gain of 19 years during past 35 years, reports Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. . . . Adverse balance of United States freight cars in hands of Canadian railroads was 7885 on August 20 (adverse balance is number of United States cars held in Canada in excess of Canadian cars held in United States) . . . Supreme Allied Headquarters transfered to Japanese government control over nation's silk which was "frozen" September 1, 1945 . . . Mexican Congress to consider revision of monetary laws to permit circulation of silver pesos . . . Consumers Power Co. of Michigan filed SEC registration for 25 million of 30-year first mortgage bonds. Price and underwriter to be determined by bids to be opened September 23.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Louis R. Koepnick, Trans World Airline's director of base engineering, named chief engineer to succeed J. C. Franklin who resigned to accept post with Atomic Energy Commission . . . Sidney Simon and Warren S. Stone, Washington representatives of New York Life Insurance Co., honored by membership in Nylic Top Club Council . . . N. Leonard Jarvis of Hayden, Stone & Co. nominated for presidency of the Association of Customers Brokers.

EARNINGS: Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. reported consolidated net profit for 26 weeks ended June 28 of $8,401,778, or $2.91 a common share, compared with $11,449,449, or $4.33 a share, for corresponding 1946 period. Other earnings reports yesterday included:

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Cotton futures were reactionary today on nervous selling induced by further rain reports from the Western cotton belt and an official weather forecast of rains averaging from light to locally heavy thunderstorms over the weekend in Texas.

Local and commission house selling met little trade support, with final prices 65 cents to $1.60 a bale lower. Rains would help the crop in drought-affected parts of Texas considerably, traders believe. On the other hand, a leading spot firm said, clear weather is urgently needed in the southeast portion of the Eastern belt with a possibility of serious crop damage there by additional rain.

Two Mobile Clinics for Alcoholics Approved

Final Word Monday Will Expand Work Of Part-Time Units; Wexberg Heads Plan

Operation of two mobile alcoholic clinics under the supervision of the District Health Department starting November 1, have been tentatively approved by the District Commissioners.

The cilinics, if formally approved at a regular board meeting, Monday, will augment two part-time experimental clinics already in operation and will extend the service to 40 hours a week per clinic. They now operate on a six-hour week.

Dr. Leopold E. Wexberg, director of the Bureau of Mental Hygiene, will head the program. Under him will be four psychiatrists, two doctors, two psychologists, and other employes to make a total of 17 additional personnel.

Financed by Liquor Tax

Treatment for chronic alcoholics will be financed by a 10 per cent tax on liquor licenses. District of Columbia Auditor A. R. Pilkerton estimated that the revenue would amount to $75,000.

Commissioner Guy Mason, who has been instrumental in sponsoring the program, said that an estimated $12,000 of this amount would be collected by end of October.

If personnel is available, operation should start by November 1. Chief problem is the difficulty of obtaining psychiatrists because of the shortage throughout the Nation.

The mobile clinics will visit patients at the Lorton Reformatory, at the workhouse at Occoquan and the jail.

The program, which follows closely that in Hartford, Conn. set up by Yale University Alcoholic Clinic, was authorized by act of Congress and signed by the President on August 6.

Personnel Needs Listed

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, acting health officer who set up the table of personnel estimated that the cost of operation for one year would amount to $74,691. Of this sum $3984 is for medical supplies.

The additional personnel need to operate the two clinics were listed as follows: one chief psychiatrist, two assistant psychiatrists, 2 psychologists, four social case workers who would supply information to the psychiatrists and carry out the instructions of the director in handling the patients, two physicians to give general examinations, one occupational therapist to help rehabilitate or reestablish them into gainful work, two medical attendants to prepare patients for examinations and routing through clinics, one additional psychiatrist to be stationed at Gallinger Hospital to help with the increased load that would be fed into the hospital from the clinic, and three clerical workers.

Dr. Seckinger said they would utilize some of the 115 field public health nurses for making home visits as follow up work in contacting patients family.

Death in Hotel Is Believed Due to Poison

Beside the body of a middle-aged man sprawled on the floor of a room in the Continental Hotel police late Thursday found a letter, which began:

"I am standing in front of a mirror watching myself die. . . . I will always love you, Helen. I am praying to God to look out for you."

The letter, penciled on two pages of hotel stationery, trailed off into an unintelligible scrawl.

The body was so decomposed Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy said a chemical ananlysis would be made of the stomach contents instead of an autopsy. Indications were that the man died of poison, police said.

Cards in his clothing identified the man as Charles Lewis Martin, 52, of Harrisburg, Pa. He had registered at the hotel as C. L. Masterson of Reading, Pa., August 12.

William H. Joyner, manager of the Continental, found the body Thursday, at 4 p. m., when he investigated a "please do not disturb" sign which had been on the room door for more than a day.

Martin was last seen alive Tuesday morning by a maid, Louise Batts, police learned.

In Harrisburg, Martin's former landlady, Mrs. Margie Boeckler, said he left Harrisburg August 4 to work for a Baltimore firm. She did not know the "Helen" mentioned in the note.

She said she had last heard from Martin, a former insurance company employe, about a week ago when he wrote he was sending a postal order for $35 which he owed her.

Land Sought For Streets In Southeast

Some 417,547 square feet of land in the Southeast section is sought by the District for street widening and extension under condemnation proceedings filed in District Court yesterday by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

The projected street improvement in this section is part of the District's 29 million dollar road program scheduled between now and 1956.

Streets which would be widened and extended under the plans for this Southeast project are Barnaby rd. from Southern ave. to Chesapeake st.; Barnaby st from Atlantic st. to Chesapeake st., and Chesapeake st. westerly from Southern ave. Also, Southern ave. would be extended southerly from Chesapeake st.

The property which would be condemned under the proceedings filed includes a one-story dwelling at Southern ave. and Bonini rd se., and some dozen sheds, stables, corn cribs and hog pens.

Inmate Escapes Va. Road Camp by Jump From Truck

An inmate of Camp 30 of the Virginia penitentiary near Fairfax escaped about 6 p. m. last night and at 10 p. m. had not been caught.

The prisoner, Lenwood Fitzgerald, police said, may have been met by "someone who knew he planned to escape."

He escaped, they said, by leaping from back of a prison truck returning to the camp from a work job.

Police described him as white, 33 year of age, slightly bald, about 5 feet, 10 inches in height, and weighing 180 pounds. He was clad in dark khaki and has a scar over his right eye.

Police said Fitzgerald had been at Camp 30 about eight months, and during that time had been a good worker. A party of eight or ten searchers, police said, were looking for him. He was serving time for auto theft, they said.

Transportation Study Unit Denied Kind It Wants

The only congressional group which planned to devote its overseas summer junket to a study of transportation proved yesterday to be the only unit of far-traveling Senators and Representatives unable to get the transportation it wanted.

A round-the-world flight of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee has been canceled, it was learned, because the committee members couldn't wangle sufficient air power for the trip from the Army and Navy. Earlier, the Civil Aeronautics Board had refused to let the group ask commercial airlines to give them a free lift around the globe.

Police Tests Today

More than 50 applicants for jobs on the Montgomery County police force will take civil service examinations at 10 a. m. today at Kensington Elementary School. The number to be hired as regular members of the force has not been determined as yet, officials said.

Clothes Still In Demand, Thefts Show

Flood of Reports To Police Describe Wearing Apparel Gone With the Heat

Clothing certainly must be scarce if larcenies are any indication of what's in demand hereabouts.

For instance Edward K. Malone, manager of Hoffman's Cleaners, told police that four mens suits, a boy's suit, and three ladies' dresses, valued at more than $48, were stolen from a delivery truck.

Driver of the truck, James William Wesley, told police the padlock on the truck's rear door was broken and the clothing taken while he was making a delivery.

Three residents of an apartment house at 5811 14th st. nw., reported thefts Thursday afternoon of ladies' dresses, housecoats, nightgowns, baby clothes, towels, pillow cases and slips from the clothesline in the building's laundry room.

Two Are Arrested

Police arrested Berniece Myers, 25, of 238 K st. sw., and Hazel Simms, 26, who gave her address to police as 84 I st. sw. Police charged the pair with three cases of petty larcency. All the clothes were recovered.

George Constantz of 226 4th st. ne., told police two suitcases of clothes, valued at $42, were stolen from his car parked at 4th and C sts. ne. between 12:30 a. m. and 10 a. m. yesterday.

A "pants burglar" entered the room of James C. Ledford, 1918 N st. nw., sometime Thursday night and made off with Ledford's wallet, containing $40. The wallet was taken from his pants pocket, police said.

Both Heard Noises

Ledford told police his two roommates heard noises during the night, but each thought it was the other moving around.

In other robberies:

Alex Downes, proprietor of the Nip Bar Restaurant at 3316 Georgia ave. nw., reported to police two men entered his restaurant about 1:15 a. m. yesterday, ordered two beers, then carried off $35 in change while the waitress wasn't looking.

Miss Shirley Nelson, a visitor from New York staying at 639 Monroe st. ne., reported the theft of a wrist watch valued at $35 from a table early yesterday morning at the residence.

Police later arrested a suspect who admitted the theft. Miss Nelson refused to prosecute.

The American Trailer Co., 4030 Wisconsin ave. nw., was entered and robbed twice recently, N. Francis Ladd, sales manager, told police yesterday.

Ladd reported a radio and two fans, valued at $48, were stolen last Saturday night, and Thursday night, he told police, the thieves returned and made off with two radios worth $49.

Mrs. Anna Mae Harris, of 1025 7th st. nw., reported $86 in bills and a radio stolen from a cedar chest in her bedroom sometime between August 15 and 20.

Auto Victim May Owe Her Life to Tricycle

Three-year-old Janet Beers of Arlington may owe her life to a tricycle she was riding Thursday evening when she was struck by an auto near her home at 2372 N. Quincy st.

Her mother, Mrs. Alice Beers, said her young daughter apparently was crossing the street when hit by the car.

I think the tricycle saved her," she said, by deflecting the blow.

Police listed the driver of the car as John A. Gauss, 23, of Culpeper, Va., and said he had swerved his car to avoid hitting a dog just before striking the child. He was released without being charged.

Janet Beers was taken to Arlington Hospital in a private car by her father, Henry Beers, a State Department employe. Suffering from cuts and bruises, her condition was listed last night as "good."

Washington Slumps To Sixth Place

Washington, which had the least traffic fatalities last year of cities with over 500,000 population, has currently slumped to sixth place, Traffic Inspector Arthur E. Miller warned yesterday.

Since January the city has averaged a traffic fatality record of 4.6 per cent per 100,000 population, he reported.

While more trucks have been involved in accidents than ever before, he pointed out the pedestrian fatalities have declined from 34 as of this time last year to the present 30.

There were 40 traffic fatalities in 1946 on this date; so far this year there have been 46.

Streetcar loading platforms and heavy bridge traffic during rush hours are some of the more difficult problems officials are now studying, said Miller.

"The time may soon come when it will be necessary," he added, "to hail into court drivers whose cars break down on bridges during rush hours."

Phone Rate Hike Plea Undecided

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. has not yet decided whether it will ask higher telephone rates in the District of Columbia.

This was the statement yesterday of J. B. Morrison, vice president and general manager of the company, following publication of increases in monthly rates for nearby Maryland telephone users, effective September 1.

Similar boosts in telephone rates now are pending in Virginia, it was learned .

Morrison declared: "As yet no conclusion has been reached as to whether or not filing with the Public Utilities Commission will be undertaken.

"How much longer," said Morrison, "we can absorb the higher wage costs without an adjustment in rates is the question we are now trying to determine."

The company has filed a revised schedule of rates for Maryland telephone users with the State Public Service Commission in its second rate hike for that State since February.

The monthly increases range from 25 cents to $8.75. Company officials stated that only 5 per cent of the telephone users in the Greater Washington area would be affected by these increases, however.

Wife Loses Wager, Pearson Learns Over Radio Waves

Drew Pearson was formally notified over the air waves yesterday he had won a bet he made with his wife.

In a recent column, Pearson related how he and his wife had made a bet as to which would be finished first, proposed expansion of Potomac Elementary School, or improvement of River rd., both of which are near his Montgomery County farm.

"I am betting on the school," he told coast-to-coast readers of his syndicated column which called for accelerated school construction programs.

During a 15-minute address over Station WGAY last night, Montgomery County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr said the school contract had been awarded, adding: "It looks like Mr. Pearson wins his bet."

He emphasized, however, the project "has been in the mill for years"—not since appearance of the column.

Father Will Press No Charge if Baby Is Returned Home

Waldo, Ohio, Aug. 22 (U.P.)—Charles Peterson, convinced that his missing 20-month-old daughter, Carolyn Jeanette, is the victim of kidnapers, said today he would "press no charges if they bring the baby back."

The little girl was last seen about 10:30 a. m. Wednesday when her mother let her into the yard to play.

A thorough search of Ququ Creek and the Olentangy River near the home failed to produce any trace of the blonde, blue-eyed child and strengthened the theory of the father and Sheriff Leroy Retterer that the tot was kidnaped, possibly by a childless couple who were attracted by her beauty.

High Court Ruling Asked On Covenants

First District Test Sought of Contracts Which Bar Land Sale to Negroes

The Supreme Court of the United States was asked yesterday to rule on the legality of restrictive covenants in the District.

In a consolidated petition, two groups of property owners asked the court to decide whether courts may enforce private agreements, which attempt to prevent persons from purchasing and occupying residences "solely on the basis of race or creed."

Two earlier cases involving the restrictions in other States have been accepted by the court for argument in the October term, Phineas Indritz, an attorney for the petitioners, said yesterday, but this is the first involving District residences.

Sold to Negroes

The District case involves Raphael G. Urciolo, owner of three parcels of improved residential land in the 100 block of Bryant st. nw., who sold them to Robert H. and Isabelle J. Rowe, Herbert B. and Georgia N. Savage, and Pauline B. Stewart. Urciolo is white and the others are Negroes.

Meanwhile, James M. Hurd, who says he is a Mohawk Indian, and Mary I. Hurd, purchased another parcel in the same block from Mr. and Mrs. Francis X. Ryan, which they now occupy as their home, Indritz said.

All of these tracts and 13 more are covered by a 1906 covenant in their respective deeds, as follows:

"Subject also to the covenants that said lot shall never be rented, leased, sold, transferred or conveyed unto any Negro or colored person under a penalty of $2000, which shall be a lien against said property."

The attorneys for the petitioners —Urciolo, the Hurds, the Rowes, the Savages and Pauline B. Stewart—declared in the pettiion that the remaining 11 lots on the south side of the street "as almost all of the contiguous area to the south and west," have been owned and occupied by Negroes for many years.

The proceeding originated when neighboring property owners obtained judgments in the District Court for the District of Columbia revoking the deeds held by the petitioners and enjoined Urciolo and Ryan from renting, leasing or selling the seven lots to any Negro or colored person.

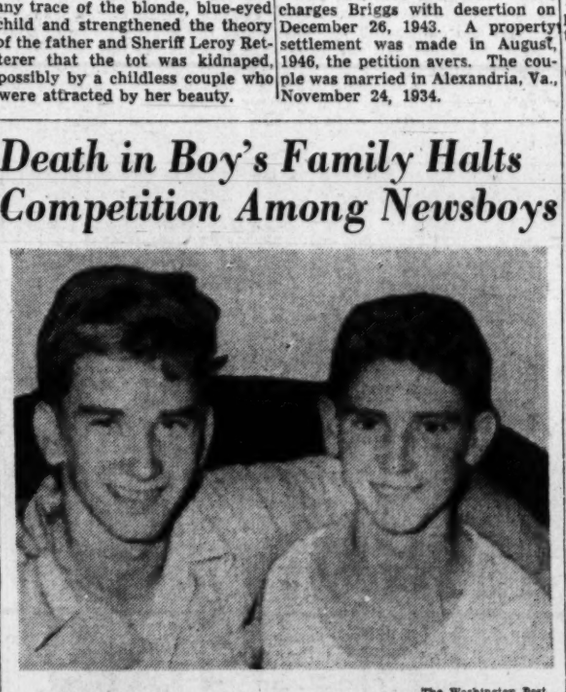
The Court of Appeals confirmed the decision, although Justice Henry W. Edgerton wrote a vigorous dissent.

Briggs Co. Executive Is Sued for Divorce

Southwick Walbridge Briggs, vice president of the Briggs Filtration Co., near Bethesda, Md., yesterday was named defendant in a suit for divorce filed on behalf of Lucy B. Briggs, 1421 Massachusetts ave. nw.

The suit, filed in District Court, charges Briggs with desertion on December 26, 1943. A property settlement was made in August, 1946, the petition avers. The couple was married in Alexandria, Va., November 24, 1934.

Death in Boy's Family Halts Competition Among Newsboys



The Washington Post

Competition is the life-blood of a newspaper, the saying goes. But not always.

Here's a case where The Washington Post and The Washington Times-Herald banded together to help The Evening Star.

It happened out in Cheverly, Md., where three teen-age boys deliver the papers for the local press.

One of the carrier boys, Ezio Rebechi, 15, of 6409 State st., Cheverly, who delivers the Star, was saddened early this week when his father, Claude, died.

The other two boys, Wesley Flippo, 14, of 6004 Reid st., Cheverly, who delivers The Washington Post, and Jimmy Lang, 16, of 1618 62d ave., Cheverly, who delivers the Times-Herald, got together and decided to buy some flowers for the bereaved family. But after they already had ordered the flowers, they decided perhaps the people on Ezio's route might like to do something for the family also.

So the two boys started out Wednesday night, the day after the elder Rebechi died, and finished the route by Thursday night at 7 o'clock. In all, they collected $41, and after they had paid for the flowers, had enough left over to give $25 to Mrs. Rebechi, her three sons and a daughter.

The three boys, all of whom attend Bladensburg High School, have been buddies for several years. Yesterday, "Flip" and Ezio were playing baseball on a homemade diamond near the Cheverly Church, Jimmy was off at Baldensburg High where he plays baseball every afternoon during the summer. All have been carrier boys for at least three years—but their rivalry is friendly.

Here's a New Slant on Hunt For Apartment in District

The Washington Post
Reporter Jack London, 6 foot tall, find the "short" apartment uncomfortable

The true dimension of Washington's housing situation was disclosed frankly yesterday—short and true

A furnished apartment advertisement specified a "short couple only" and only inspection of the haven would disclose the full meaning of the specifications.

It was an attic apartment, tucked up under the eaves in a Takoma Park residence. Standing room is available up to 6 feet and 6 inches in the center. After that, walking in any direction became a progression of (a) bended knee, (b) stoop, (c) crawl, and (d) stomach to floor.

"But it's really as handy as a pocket in a shirt," the landlady snickered. "After the first few head bumps you remember to sit forward a bit when getting out of bed."

Former tenants: A 6-foot Texas Army officer and his 5-foot, 11-inch wife; a midget wife (under four feet) and a normal-sized sailor husband.

There were 50 responses to the ad. The winner was a tall FBI man, who can sling if need be.

More of Same Is Weather Forecast Here

Washington weather, issued in duplicate for the weekend, would be a relief in the parched and sizzling Middle West.

Today's forecast, calling for about the same conditions that existed in the District yesterday, adds only a few degrees rise in temperature with a possible high of 87. Yesterday's high was 82 degrees at 4:32 p.m.

The Midwest's heat wave and drought has apparently anchored, clamping temperatures of 95 to 100 degrees on most parts of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas. Crop deterioration was rapid, with top soil moisture exhausted in the Great Plains States.

The only thing that saved Washington from the heat belt was a mass of air which skirted around the heat wave, cooled off in Canada and then moved down the East Coast, the Weather Bureau said.

Death toll from causes induced by the heat reached 32 in Chicago since Monday night and 80 since August 1. Since Monday midnight 21 persons have died in Ohio, three in Indiana and two in Minnesota from the heat.

Showers in New England, New York, eastern Pennsylvania and parts of Virginia yesterday cut temperatures to about 80 degrees.

Group Organizes In Silver Spring To Protect Zones

Thirty-five property owners of Silver Spring have formed a Citizens' Zoning Committee to protest to Montgomery County Commissioners the necessity of being "constantly alert to defend their homes" against encroachment of apartments and commercial areas.

A "public indignation meeting" has been called for 8 p. m. Monday in St. Michael's Parish Hall, Ralph D. Boyd, chairman, said yesterday. The Board of County Commissioners, Park and Planning Commission, and the County Supervisor have been invited to attend, he said.

The meeting also is open to residents of lower Montgomery County.

"The committee," Boyd said, "is not opposed to community growth," but it is against "special exceptions" made to master plans, once they have been adopted.

A principal source of irritation, he said, is constant re-applications for spot zoning of residential and for apartment and commercial areas.

Speakers at Monday's meeting will include Samuel H. Horne of Woodside Park, Dr. C. M. Derryberry of Woodmore, Victor J. Richter, president, Allied Civic Groups, and Frank Duane, of Seven Oaks Manor.

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—C. H. Morrissett, State tax commissioner, and J. Jordon Bennett, State auditor, discussed taxation and auditing matters at the afternoon session of a two-day meeting of the State Treasurers Association here today.

Area Counties Vie for Model Health Clinic

Arlington County in Virginia and Prince Georges County in Maryland are competing for the model mental health clinic which the U. S. Public Health Service will establish in this area.

The clinic in this area is one of three to be set up throughout the United States. One will be on the West Coast, a second in the Middle West and the third somewhere near Washington.

Each clinic will be backed by $40,000 in Public Health Service funds and they will mark the opening phase of the $7,500,000 PHS mental hygiene program which began July 1.

Arlington Favors Bid

Arlington has come out enthusiastically in its bid for the clinic, according to Charles R. Fenwick, who is chairman of the legislative committee of the Virginia Health and Medical Care Council, a member of the county's welfare board, and a member of the executive committee of the Tuberculosis Association of Arlington.

Similar assurances that Prince Georges is just as anxious to acquire the clinic were made by Dr. Thomas A. Christensen, president of the Prince Georges County Medical Society.

However, Dr. Mabel Ross of the PHS, who will head the clinic established in this section, said yesterday that the site still remains to be chosen.

She said she understood several communities in the Greater Washington Area are anxious to have the clinic, but that no formal applications have yet been submitted.

She added that a decision on the site of the clinic will probably be made next month.

Dr. Ross, formerly connected with the Harriet Lane Clinic at Johns Hopkins Hospital and a nationally known child psychiatrist, will have a staff of one psychologist, two psychiatric social workers and a public health nurse at the proposed clinic.

In Arlington, the County Board asked at its August 2 meeting that the State make formal application to the PHS to have the clinic located in Arlington.

Since that time, Dr. Joseph E. Barrett, commissioner of the Virginia Department of Mental Hygiene and Hospitals, has written Fenwick that "Arlington might be a very satisfactory location" for the clinic and praised its "exceptionally advantageous location."

The Arlington County Board has suggested that the new clinic could be set up in the Arlington Health Department's new building where, it is claimed, adequate facilities already exist.

If Prince Georges County is selected for the clinic site, it probably will be located at or near the University of Maryland, according to Dr. Christensen.

The Prince Georges County Medical Society issued a favorable report on the clinic after being asked by the Maryland Department of Health to investigate the matter.

Plans Drawn For 10 Plain, Utilitarian Type Schools

Terazzo Floors, Light-Hued Brick Omitted at Saving Of Six Per Cent

Plans for 10 schools designed strictly for use and minus any fancy trimmings have been completed for action by the Board of Education.

Municipal Architect Merrel A. Coe said yesterday that specifications for the proposed school construction call for a minimum of trim and a maximum number of classrooms.

But cutting down on such extras as terazzo-floored corridors, light-colored pressed brick and plaster, a saving of six per cent will be made.

This promised saving, the architect said, encouraged Congress to authorize a total of 16 projects in the 1948 budget.

'If we had asked for the extras we might have received one less building," he said, pointing out that doing without the trim saves nearly one sixteenth of the cost.

Corridors, he said, will have an asphalt flooring and the interior of classrooms will be cinder block instead of plaster. Bricks made at the Occoquan Workhouse will be used throughout, even for facings.

The 16 projects consist of four new elementary schools and five additions to elementary schools, two new junior high schools and the addition to a junior high school, one senior high school and an addition to a senior high school, the completion of three classrooms in an elementary school and extensive alterations to one high school.

Plans for 10 of the 16 projects have been completed and are ready for approval by the Board of Education, he said.

Alexandria Schools Due To Open Sept. 4

Two hundred and seventy-two teachers, including 28 new appointees, will be on hand in Alexandria schools September 4 to welcome some 7000 pupils.

The first day, September 4, will be a three-hour session from 9 a. m. to noon, the Alexandria school department announced yesterday. The full 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. schedule will start the second day.

Out-of-towners, the school office said, may enroll in Alexandria schools for tuition fees of $110 a year for elementary grades and $125 for high school. Annual textbook rentals for all will be $1.50 for high school students and $1.25 for lower grades.

All new students should register at the school they plan to attend before opening day. George Washington High School students may register there from Monday on. At other schools registration will take place from 10 a. m. to noon and 1 p. m. to 3 p. m. September 2 and 3.

First graders should have birth certificates to show they were 6 years old by September 1. Transfer students must present records from previous schools. Those not already vaccinated must be vaccinated by October 1.

The school office said plans are being made for a night school for adults. The project will be under supervision of Assistant Superintendent Theodore R. Sinclair.

Little Girls Donate Pennies

A group of little girls walked into Suburban Hospital at Bethesda the other day with 600 pennies to give 13-year-old Martha Jane Repass who was injured critically by an airplane propeller.

Hospital attendants forgot to get their names.

More than $800 has been collected from Montgomery County groups and individuals to help pay the hospital expenses of Martha Jane, a Gaithersburg Elementary School pupil and daughter of a tenant farmer.

Unconscious for more than a week following the accident, the girl has now regained consciousness "most of the time," physicians say. She suffered loss of one eye and will be unable to talk for about a month due to an injury to her speech center of her brain.

Md. Postoffice Breaks Investigated by FBI

Prince Frederick, Md., Aug. 22 (AP).—Maryland State police and FBI agents today joined an investigation of forced entries into two Calvert County postoffices and a real estate office.

Burglars carted off safes from the postoffice at Huntingtown and the office of the Western Shore Realty Co. last night. The postoffice at Dunkirk was entered for the second time this week also, but Postmistress Mrs. Inez Jones reported nothing missing.

Postmaster Vernon Jarvis at Huntingtown said his missing safe contained between $500 and $600.

The safe from the realty company, located on Route 2 three miles from here, was found rifled in the Prince Frederick baseball park one mile away. Almos D. Neald, office manager, said nothing of value was obtained and that the burglars even overlooked an envelope containing $100.

Collectors of Precancelled Stamps Hold Meeting Here

The Washington Post

At the philatelist's conclave in the Shoreham Hotel, Mrs. Anne Humbers of Arlington, Va., member of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade, digs into a million stamps

Genial, easy-going Floyd Shockley is a man with a passion—and a whale of a job on his hands.

His passion is collecting "precanceled" stamps, and he is looking forward to sorting "something like a million of 'em."

Shockley, an Indianapolis stamp dealer, is typical of the 300-odd members of the Nation-wide Precancel Stamp Society, who are meeting at the Shoreham in their twenty-sixth annual convention.

These men are stamp collectors with a difference. They aren't interested in stamps sold at the postoffice. The ones they want are those which are canceled before being sold to large-scale mailers.

Yesterday morning they visited the Bureau of Engraving and watched precanceled stamps being printed. Precanceled stamps receive two printings, the first for the stamp itself, and the second to print across it the name of the town and State where it is to be used.

Precanceling in the U. S. is more than 100 years old. It is believed to have started in 1844 by Hale & Co. in Boston. Its merit lies in that it precludes the necessity of canceling each stamp, thus saving a huge amount of time and labor.

Institutions with big mailing lists, such as mail-order houses and travel companies, employ precanceling on their second, third and fourth class matter.

Collection Is Valuable

C. C. Fisher, of 1206 N. Frederick st., Arlington, a member of Washington's Capitol Precancel Club which is host to the convention, estimated his 40-year-old collection to be worth $30,000.

"But it isn't necessarily an expensive habby at all," he added. It becomes so "only when you want a rare stamp." Most of the nearly 1000 country-wide members of the Society collect precanceled stamps as a hobby, he said. Only 24 dealers are present at the convention.

Stamp trading was lively yesterday—and perhaps a bit reminiscent of the art or horse trading. W. H. Perry of Abilene, Tex., reported his business 'pretty brisk" so far, with $2000 worth of stamps sold, and $1000 worth purchased. No single sales over $50 have been announced.

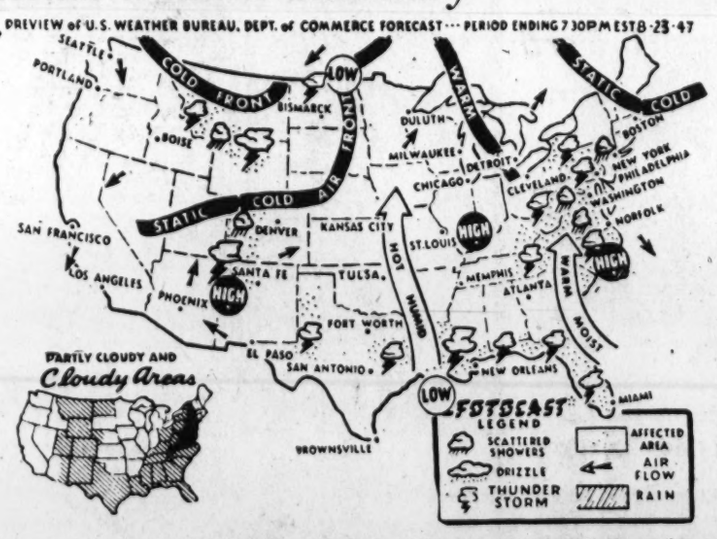
National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Wagner



24-HOUR FORECAST—It will be cool and rather comfortable in the Northeast today. Weather forecasters say, "A cool air flow off the north Atlantic will hold afternoon temperatures in the 70s in New England. Afternoon readings will be in the 80s from New York to South Carolina.

A persistent air flow off the Gulf of Mexico which has been invading the central United States will send the mercury to 90 degrees or higher from the Gulf States to the Plains States, the Mississippi Valley, the Lakes region and the lower Ohio Valley. This air flow or air mass movement will produce afternoon temperatures of 100 degrees from Kansas to Minnesota.

Warm air off the Gulf of Mexico will pick up moisture, rise into tall unstable clouds and release scattered thunderstorms over the Gulf States and the Rockies. Thundershowers are also pictured from Florida to New York and Ohio.

The scientists say warm, moist, cool and dry air masses which produce weather over the United States form over the oceans and central Canada. Moisture-laden air off the water rises into clouds and produces rains when it meets cool air near fronts. (See fotocast.) The weatherwise map fan and speculators have noticed warm southerly winds have been flowing over the Plains States for the past seven weeks without meeting cool Canadian air near a front. (Fronts denote the leading edges of unlike air masses.) According to the extended Weather Bureau forecasts, this picture will not change appreciably in the Corn Belt and Plains States drought area for the next five days. Hot weather with widely scattered light showers is the outlook for this scorched grain area.

Today's maximum temperature forecasts include St. Louis, 99; Kansas City and Tulsa, 98; Chicago, 96; Nashville, 94; Detroit, 93; Cleveland, 90; Detroit and Milwaukee, 88; Hartford, 86; Buffalo, 85; Washington, 82; Boston, 79; Philadelphia, 78, and New York, 75.

Holdup Slayer Asks Release From Lorton

In an almost unprecedented action yesterday, Thomas Jordon, convicted syaler in the sensational Garden T. Shoppe holdup murder here in 1931, asked Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court to grant a writ of habeas corpus.

Jordon, a 35-year-old bus boy, is serving a life sentence at the District Reformatory at Lorton for the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth Jaynes, 61-year-old cashier.

The petition for the writ was entered by John M. Holzworth, New York City attorney. The Supreme Court clerk's office said the Chief Justice would probably not act on the matter until Monday.

Charges Perjury

Jordon declared in his request that he was "unlawfully confined" in the reformatory and "has exhausted his rights undr habeas corpus in the lower courts."

Jordon charged that Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, then a sergeant in the District police, had committed perjury and instigated jury tampering during Jordon's trial. Superintendent Barrett could not be reached for comment on the charges.

He said that his detention was illegal for the following reasons:

1. He was denied right to compeeent counsel in various court proceedings.

2. His conviction was obtained by "suppression of vital evidence."

Sentenced Commuted

3. His conviction was obtained "by and through perjjury on the part of various Government witnesses."

4. "That during the deliberations of the jury on petitioner's trial such jurors were unduly influenced and tampered with by a Deputy United States Marshal, . . . for the purpose of having such jury bring in a verdict of first degree murder carrying the death sentence.

Following Mrs. Haynes' death in 1931, Jordon was arrested, but a grand jury failed to indict him. Rearrested in May, 1935, he was indicted, ried for murder and condemned to death a year later. Following a congressional investigation, the late President Roosevelt commuted Jordon's sentence to life imprisonment.

Attempted Rape Charged Against Washington Man

Frank J. Wentling, 32, 526 H st. ne., was held without bond for grand jury action on a charge of attempted rape against a 34-year-old Hillside, Md., woman.

The attempt was said to have taken place along Westphalia rd. near Forestville during the early evening of August 14.

The victim told the court Wentling had offered to take her home from a Hillside tavern, where he was employed as a bartender, about 5 p. m. Instead, she said, they were driven to near Forestville by another man, who then let them out.

Wentling ordered her to remove her refusal began to tear them off. her clothes, she testified, and upon

California, Florida Feud Hits the Sky

The California-Florida feud, historic as Balboa and Ponce de Leon, inevitable as rain, has hit a new high—namely, the sky.

Civil Aeroautics Authority plans to designate as "Skyway No. 1" a belt of building top identifications, for fliers, from Washington to Los Angeles.

Albert G. Brick, president of the Florida State Society, is laying down a barrage of verbal brickbats to deflect the terminus from Los Angeles to Miami, the base of Highway No. 1.

Brick, a Washington attorney, is furiously:

Flaying the CAA for "rank favortism and bureaucratic boondoggling."

Dispatching communiques to Florida mayors and chambers of commerce, Southern governors and Congressmen urging an all-out counter-attack for the glory of the South.

What Brick wonders is "Who will ever be able to see a skyway to Los Angeles, what with the iron curtain of California fog?"

Meanwhile, the CAA claims it has shown no favortism. California, CAA said, had just acted first but the CAA would be glad to cooperate in any Florida project to mark out a skyline to that land of sunshine.

Wright's Glider Desroyed on 'Brass Hat' Order

A replica of the last glider used by Wilbur and Orville Wright at Kitty Hawk in 1902, prior to their achievement of powered flight the following year, was destroyed during the war to make room for the expanding material command of the Army Air Forces, officials of the new National Air Museum revealed yesterday.

They described the glider—embodying all features of the world's first successful airplane except an engine—as a "priceless exhibit." Orville Wright, the sole surviving "father of human flight," passed many hours helping Army technicians construct it for the Wright Field Museum in 1936-1938.

They added they had learned of its destruction, "on orders of some Army brass hat," only when they sought the glider for permanent display in their museum. Wright, they said, still was unaware of its fate.

No one seemed to know who issued the order responsible or just how the Wright craft came to be demolished.

Vinson's Return Recalls Pre-Anniversary Party

By Marie McNair

CHIEF JUSTICE and Mrs. Fred Vinson, back from a visit to their home town in Kentucky, will be heading North next week.

They're going to New York on Wednesday—will take their younger son, Fred, jr., with them. And on the following day the Chief Justice is to receive the American Legion Medal of Honor at the Legion convention. According to present plans they will stay over Labor Day, so that Fred, jr., who's been studying in summer school, can have a little fun.

The Vinsons, one of the most devoted couples I know, will have been married 25 years come January 24. But they really celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at a party given by former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Davies January of this year.

Not a word of it got in the press and details of the occasion are being told now for the first time.

"You never know where'll we all be this time next year" Mrs. Davies had said at the time.

So-o-o- Roberta Vinson was presented with a huge cascade bridal bouquet of silver roses and lilies of the valley, made for Mrs. Davies by the former Follies costumer in New York. A silver coronet rested on her brown hair and a delicate veil fell to the hemline of her gown. Senator and Mrs. Millard Tyding's little daughter, Eleanor who's a granddaughter of Mr. Davies was a train bearer, as the "bride and bridegroom" entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march.

There was a magnificent white and silver cake ordered from the Davies' caterer in New York and a handsome silver tray from the Davies, among the gifts.

MONTHS ago I hinted that a presidential possibility for Panama was the present Ambassador to Washington, Dr. J. J. Vallarino. Now it's official that when he returns from the London Monetary Conference, it will not be to Washington. Instead the Ambassador and his family will go back to Panama City in preparation for his campaign.

Meanwhile charming Senora de Vallerino and her spritely daughter Hilda, are in the throes of packing for their European trip which will include visits to France, Italy and Spain.

And setting sail on September 18, on board the Queen Elizabeth is Helen Montfort Moodie, a delegate to the International Assembly of Women which meets in Paris from September 28 to October 2. Under the sponsorship of Mme. Auriol, wife of the French President, and of Mme. Ramadier, wife of the Premier, the French group known as L'Entente Mondiale pour La Paix, will be hostesses to the women delegates in the interests of world fellowship.

Mrs. Moodie proposes to see some members of her mother's family in London before she returns on the Elizabeth November 1.

TOWN TOPICS: Miss Freida Miller, director of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor, is expected back Tuesday from a holiday in Canada. She's been visiting the Czechoslovak Minister to Canada and Mme. Nemec, who are pleasantly remembered from a tour of duty in Washington a number of years ago.

"They" say that Walter Brooks, jr., son of Mrs. Alf Heiberg, will be walking the bridal path any day now with Ann St. George Thompson of New York.

Mrs. Borden Harriman, spending the summer at Edgartown, Mass., writing friends that she's anxious to get back to D. C. and her work with the United World Federalists.

And—returning to Washington on the same day—September 9—is Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Brand who're at the Lake Placid Club and Mrs. Claude Wickard, now at her home in Indiana.

(2) Are the following the usual categories: shelter, means, cleaning and personal laundry, church and charities, all insurance, vacation savings, permanent savings, Federal taxes, local taxes, clothing, pleasure, improvement, gifts, entertaining friends, stamps and stationary, doctors, dentists, and medicines? (3) Should Social Security be listed under savings or insurance M. M. G.

One budget expert suggests the following categories and subcategories: Shelter (rent or mortgage interest, taxes, insurance, improvements, repairs, transportation to business); Operating expenses (electricity, gas, fuel, telephone, garbage collection, water, ice, service, repairs, furnshings, household supplies, laundry); Taxes (Federal income, State income, others except auto and real estate); Food; Clothing (new and upkeep); Savings (reward fund, annuities or endowments, life insurance, Social Security, mortgage principal, investments, bank deposits), Advancement or Development (personal care, automobile, education, including newspapers, magazines and books); Health (doctors, dentists, medicines, hospital or health insurance); Gifts (contributions, gifts to friends); Special Expenses.

This seems fairly complete. However, a budget is a very individual thing. Each person may find it convenient to set his own up a little bit differently.

Budget experts no longer make tight little percentage patterns for each income level and say we should squeeze our expenditures into these patterns. However, they suggest the following approximate rations: Shelter, 20% of income; clothes, 15%; operating expenses, 10 to 15%; food, 20 to 35%; advancement, health, and recreation, 15 to 20%; savings, at least 10%.

How can I freshen an electric coffee maker (metal) that has been in storage for eight years? B. D. H.

If necessary, clean the metal with a good metal polish. Then wash well in hot water and soapsuds, rinse, and soak in a mild soda water solution. Rinse and rub dry. Brush the electrical unit out carefully with a soft brush.

I admit
Their nutritional merits—

But heavens,
I'm tired of carrots!

Then try cooking them THIS way, PETUNIA! Dice your cooked carrots, saute a few minutes in margarine with a bit of onion . . . season . . . and sprinkle with chopped parsley. They're good!

Two Church Youth Groups Plan Merger

The International Society of Christian Endeavor and the United Christian Youth Movement—the world's two largest youth organizations—are planning to merge.

Ernest Bryan, formerly of Washington and general secretary of the International Christian Endeavor Society, stated recently that all Protestant evangelical groups will be invited to participate in the organization that will grow out of the merger.

Among the leaders of the merger movement is Dr. Daniel A. Poling, pastor of Philadelphia's Baptist Temple and president of the International Endeavor Society, and well known to Washington church folks.

Plans for the united youth organization grew out of an informal meeting of leaders of the two groups in New York City in May, 1946.

Souvenir From Coventry . . .

IRON CROSS OF NAILS—Canon Merritt F. Williams of the Washington Cathedral who was chaplain of the carrier Wasp when it was sunk in the South Pacific, examines an unusual war souvenir—an iron cross—made from three of the hand wrought iron nails which supported the roof of the Cathedral at Coventry, England, destroyed in an air raid November 14, 1940. The giant nails, several hundred years old, were recovered from the rubble. The cross is a gift to the Washington Cathedral from the Coventry Cathedral, will be displayed in the war memorial chapel at the Washington Cathedral

Missions Council Urges Christian Legislation

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP).—The president of the Home Missions Council of North America today urged church groups to press for "a Christian legislative program."

Mrs. J. D. Bragg, St. Louis, Mo., speaking at an institute of world missions sponsored by the council and other Protestant groups, said:

The church has seen America through days of depression and war. It must not fail to see us through these troubled days of peace. Now is the time to register Christian influence on our Government to offset the trends of the Eightieth Congress."

She criticized the Eightieth Congress for budget-slashing which curtailed foreign broadcasts by the State Department, called for increased efforts to "raise our school standards by Federal aid to education" and urged prompt statehood for Hawaii.

Mrs. Bragg also asserted that "child labor exists in alarming degrees in out-of-the-way areas" and declared:

"That situation we must right."

She said, however, that juvenile delinquency "will not be settled on a State or Nation-wide scale, but first in every community."

Former Washington Student Is Spare-Time Missionary

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

A former American University student is mixing diplomatic service with voluntary missionary work in South America.

Miss Marcia Crouter, in a letter to this department, tells of her spare-time teaching work among the Indians of La Paz, Bolivia, where she is employed in the American Embassy.

"I always thought I would hate to be a teacher, but I am having a great time teaching these Indian boys and girls, through the Methodist Mission here," she wrote. There is widespread illiteracy, she noted.

Miss Crouter, who was active in religious work on the American University campus during the war years, informs us that she soon will honeymoon in the Amazon with a "red-haired Spanish-American I met in the States."

Miss Crouter is the daughter of the late Commander Mark Hanna Crouter, executive officer of the cruiser San Francisco, who died in action off Guadalcanal in November, 1942. Shortly after his death, Miss Crouter wrote an essay on the subject of "Resurrection." It was highly praised by Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of American University, and subsequently published in The Washington Post.

NEW CHAPLAIN APPOINTED

Maj. Joseph T. O'Brien, of Albany, N. Y., has been named base chaplain at Andrews Field, Md., replacing headquarters of the Strategic Air Command. He will replace Maj. William T. Bresnahan, who is returning to civilian life. Chaplain O'Brien is a graduate of Niagara University and the North American College in Rome, Italy. He served for 18 months in Panama and the Philippines as chaplain of the Thirteenth Air Force. Before entering the service, he was athletic director of St. John's Academy Rensselaer, N. Y.

NEW FACES

They will include Dr. Charles F. Leek, pastor of First Baptist Church, Thomasville, N. C., at National Baptist Memorial Church; the Rev. Donald S. McAlpine at West Washington Baptist Church; Army Chaplain Roy J. Honeywell at First Methodist Church, Bradbury Heights; the Rev. J. Aubrey Hughes, of Fredericksburg, at Eldbrooke Methodist Church; the Rev. Chester C. Hustead at Bethesda Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Albert L. Smith, of the New Hampshire Methodist Conference, at Hamline Methodist Church. All will speak at 11 a. m. Dr. Leek will also be heard at 8 p. m.

AUSTRALIAN VISITOR

The Most Rev. Howard W. Mowll, D. D., Archbishop and Metropolitan of New South Wales, Australia, will attend services tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Washington Cathedral, and will be conducted on a Cathedral tour following a luncheon in his honor at the British Embassy.

ADDITIONAL GUEST PREACHERS

Among other guest ministers who will appear in Washington and nearby pulpits tomorrow are the following:

Carpenter, chief chaplain of the Army Air Forces, at 11 a. m. at Petworth Methodist Church; Dr. Paul V. Galloway, minister of the Central Methodist Church, Fayetteville, Ark., at 9 a. m.; 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church; Dr. Charles T. Lax Deportment During Mass Draws Criticism

Portland, Oreg., (AP).—Careless deportment while participating in the mass drew criticism at the National Catholic Liturgical Conference here.

The Very Rev. Martin B. Hellriegal, St. Louis, said the sign of the cross is made carelessly, the Lord's Prayer mumbled and clergy too often lean against the pulpit while preaching and crack jokes in reference to the collection.

A speaker on church architecture, Barry Byrne, Chicago, was critical of what he called "a watered-down version of medievalism." The style, he said, might be called one by "architectural morticians. Enbalming has its place, but not among the living . . ."

Welfare Fund Exceeds Goal

Student welfare fund campaigns conducted by B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations in 56 colleges, have raised more than $135,700 toward support of major Jewish welfare agencies.

That report came yesterday from Dr. A. L. Sachar, national director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations, with headquarters in this city. He stated that the amount raised was more than $33,500 over the $102,000 goal established at the drive's outset.

Plans Two Sermons

Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol st., on "Peace of Mind" and "The Great Test of Life." The matin service will be held at 8:30 a. m.

Religion in Action

Atonement Church Aids Boys In Training School Project

Members of Atonement Lutheran Church are putting religion to work through their project for the National Training School for Boys.

Classes in religious instruction are conducted by the Rev. Paul F. Reaser, Atonement's pastor, and the boys are invited to church, Sunday School and youth meetings.

"The congregation has responded enthusiastically to the project," he said, "and frequently the families are Sunday dinner hosts to the youngsters. The boys have also attended movies we sponsored in the parish hall."

Reaser

According to the pastor, the project began about a year ago when two boys at the National Training School came to Protestant Chaplain Anders Andresen and expressed an interest in religion. Since the boys had a Lutheran background, the chaplain informed the pastor of Atonement Church.

"I found that practically none of the boys had ever had any religious training before entering the school, and that most of them came from underprivileged or broken homes," the pastor observed.

Several of the boys in whom Atonement Church members were interested have returned to their homes, but the pastor keeps up a steady flow of correpsondence with them.

"What these boys need most," he said, "is for someone to take an interest in them; for them to feel that they are wanted and loved. We want to help give them confidence to face society when they leave the school."

The pastor is planning a religious education course that will be conducted at the school in September and October. He also predicted an increased interest in the project by his church members.

"Most of our families have boys of their own, so they realize the importanee of helping less fortunate boys," he said.

Several of the boys taught by him have been baptized, confirmed and accepted into membership at Atonement Church, North Capitol st. and Rhode Island ave. nw.

"This is a wonderful piece of work Mr. Reaser and his members are doing," said Harold E. Hegstrom, superintendent of the National Training School, Bladensburg rd. and South Dakota ave. ne. "It is one of the most wholesome types of assistance we've had here."

'God of Creation' To Be Shown Here

"The God of Creation," a sound film showing scientific wonders, will be shown Monday at 8 p. m. at the Salvation Army Corps, 1075 Jefferson st. nw., Georgetown. Family Food Bill Jumps 32 Pct. in Year

By the United Press

The Government reported yesterday that the average family's food bill jumped 32 per cent in the year ending in mid-June, but one official offered hope that another cost of living item—housing—may drop in the next few months.

The Agriculture Department said the annual "market basket" cost for the average family was $636 on June 15. This compared with $481 in mid-June, 1946, when price controls still were in effect.

The department said the increase was paced by a 76 per sent increase in retail meat increases.

Farmers, it said, received only 52 cents out of every consumer dollar spent for food in June. This was a fohr cent drop from the figure in March.

Raymond M. Foley, head of the Government's recently reorganized housing agency, said he expected the price of houses to decline gradually in the next few months and stabilize at a lower level next year. He emphasized, however, that "it is still too early to tell definitely."

The Agriculture Deparment said the average family in June, 1947, spent an annual rate of about $182 for meat compared with $103 a year earlier. Of this $79 increase, $47 was returned to the farmer in the form of higher livestock prices while $22 went for higher marketing charges and $10 to replace Government subsidies.

Retail dairy prices jumped 17 per cent, poultry and eggs 20 per cent; bakery and cereal products 27 per cent, canned fruits and vegetables 37 per cent and miscellaneous food products 52 per cent, freesh fruits and vegetables dropped 5 per cent.

3 Prisoners Of Japs Hold D.C. Reunion

Three sharers of war-time suffering at a Japanese prison camp in the Philippines yesterday met here to share a happier peacetime experience.

Occasion for the reunion was the marriag of one of the three, with the other two acting as best man and minister.

Before being liberated by American Rangers in January, 1945, the three planned a reunion "some day." At that time, Army Captain Ambrose J. Wangler the groom, of New York, and Navy Lieut. Charles C. O'Lasky, also of New York, were prisoners of war on Cabanatuan. Col. Alfred C. Oliver, jr., of Washington, a veteran Army chaplain who had been on Bataan, was spiritual leader of the group of prisoners.

The meeting yesterday was at Walter Reed Hospital chapel.

The bride, Maude Plunkett Collister, is a New York dress designer, and the groom, now retired from the Army, is in the exporting business in New York.

O'Lasky, who was best man for his buddy, is still in the Navy. Mrs. Kaye Sarsfield, of Darien, Conn., sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

Colonel Oliver, who was permanently injured as a result of his two years and nine months in prison camps, has also retired from the Army, after almost 30 years as a chaplain. He lives with his wife at 1220 Floral ave., nw.

Following the wedding ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Wangler left for a two-week trip in Canada.

5 Universities Here Share in FWA Bonanza

Five District universities and St. John's College in Annapolis have received a bonanza in the form of more than 40,000 items of war surplus electronic equipment which originally cost an estimated $375,000.

The last of three carloads arrived yesterday at a siding at Georgetown University, where the radio, radar and telephone parts are being distributed to the other colleges. The six institutions are to pay only shipping costs, totaling about $750, and sorting expenses. The gear will be used in laboratories and shops.

The other recipients of the Army Signal Corps and Navy equipment are George Washington, Catholic, American and Howard Universities. All the schools have veterans' educational programs and have been given certificates of need from the United States Office of Education covering the equipment.

The Federal Works Agency, which provided the thousands of parts for the universities, received them from the War Assets Administration. The WAA had found much of the equipment not adapted to commercial use, according to Commisisoner George H. Field of the Bureau of Community Facilities of the FWA, directly in charge of the distribution.

Mrs. Hiett, 103, Rhymes Reply To Poetry of Mrs. Keleher, 100

A poem of cheer from a 100-year-old lady to a 103-year-old lady was answered yesterday by more poetry.

The literary exchange started when Mrs. Frances Reynolds Keleher, now living at the Kendall House Sanatorium, 1523 Ogden st. nw., wrote a poem to Mrs. Flora Hiett, Falls Church, Va., taking issue with the latter's statement on her 103rd birthday last Saturday that she was bored with life.

Mrs. Keleher's poem, published yesterday in The Washington Post, urged her senior to "search the rainbow for a much brighter hue," and said:

"O you can't be dull"—in spite of the fact that Mrs. Hiett had lost her eyesight during the past year.

Mrs. Hiett, chuckling over the wide interest aroused by her original remark, yielded to a newsman's request for a reply and dictated the following lines in less than a minute:

"I liked your thoughts of me,
My dear Mrs. Kelly Lee.
If by any means,
I could bottle up these themes,
I would say how do you do
Mrs. Kelly Lee, and toodle-do.'
I enjoyed your lines
They were very much better than mine"

Rev. Monks Takes Position as Canon

The Rev. George Gardner Monks, formerly headmaster of the Lenox (Mass.) School for Boys, has accepted an appointment as a canon of the Washington Cathedral, effective October 1.

The announcement came yesterday from the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington Episcopal Diocese.

A Bostonian by birth, Mr. Monks was graduated from Harvard in 1921. He studied at Union Theological Seminary; took his master of arts degree at Columbia University, and received his bachelor of divinity degree from the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge. He became headmaster of Lenox School when it was founded in 1926. He has been a member of the western Massachusetts Diocesan Standing Committee and has served other diocesan positions. He and Mrs. Monks have four children.

Frederick Hospital Drive Oversubscribed

Frederick, Md., Aug. 22 (Spl.).—The campaign to raise $600,000 to enlarge Frederick Memorial Hospital has been oversubscribed by $18,149, it was revealed today. Officials said that 5794 individuals, business, industrial and fraternal organizations contributed to the total fund of $618,149.

Under the plan of the hospital board of managers, the fund will be used to provide care for 1300 additional patients annually. A new three-story north wing will be constructed, and the entire third floor of the present building modernized.

Md. Tobacco Floors Jammed As Season Wanes

The southern Maryland tobacco markets rounded out their next to last week with warehouse floors jammed and prices in a slump.

The markets at Upper Marlboro, Waldorf, Hughesville and LaPlata were forced to close Wednesday while buyers removed their purchases from the crowded floors.

The price average had dropped to 37 cents a pound, about half last year's level.

While some growers were rushing to put their leaf on sale before the closing day, next Thursday, tobacco men said about 10 million pounds probably will be carried over until next year by farmers dissatisfied with current prices.

Truck Driver Fined On Traffic Charges

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 22 (AP).—William Ebbert, 27-year-old truck driver, was fined a total of $160 today by Magistrate Harry E. Snyder on charges of drunken driving, failure to stap after an accident, unauthorized use of the vehicle and failing to have a license.

Police testified Ebbert zigzagged the truck down a street, struck a parked auto and stopped only when he fell out of the drivers' seat. The truck rolled to a stop against a curb.

Catholic Group Says Hatred Against Church Still Persists

Chicago (AP).—The National Catholic Central Verein of America asserted that "it is an obvious fact that prejudice and hatred against the Catholic Church still persists."

In a declaration of principle adopted at the closing sessions of its annual convention, the Verein also condemned national military training and urged that the Nation extend to Europe's displaced persons "the help which their very human rights demand."

The section on tolerance and intolerance asserted that proof of the "hatred and prejudice against the Catholic Church" may be found in the "heated controversies aroused by such questions as the retaining of a representative of the President at Vatican City; exaggerated and untrue claims of certain Protestant leaders in regard to separation of church and state; released time for religious instruction, and the furnishing of school buses for children attending private schools."

The opposition to universal military training was based on four points: that "standing armies of unlimited size are not necessarily the most efficient or most adequate means of defense"; that large standing armies "usually serve to agitate and foment national enmities . . ."; that "mere physical preparedness is far from adequate," and finally, "the establishment of a large standing army would only confuse and complicate the already difficult social and economic problems of our Nation."

Granville Gude Will Head Group For Chest Drive

Granville Gude, president of Gude Brothers Co., florists, has been named chairman of Business Unit One of the Community Chest Federation. The unit will be composed of leaders of all Washington business firms with 10 or more employes.

Gude

Chairman for a second business unit, to be composed of leaders from small business, will be named in the near future by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Edward H. Foley, jr., general campaign chairman. The two-week Chest campaign begins November 12.

Gude's campaign unit will be one of 10 soliciting groups of several thousand campaign workers.

70 Years Ago Post Came Into Being

Seventy years and scads of reporters ago, The Washington Post put out its first edition, on December 6, 1877.

Today, we're up to issue 26,000.

By the time we get to issue 27,000, it'll be half past 1950 and we may or may not have:

Md. Revenue And Spending Show Increase

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 22 (AP).—The State closed its books on the 1947 fiscal year with less money in the bank but a larger surplus in its general fund.

Comptroller James J. Lacy issued Maryland's annual fiscal report today and it showed increases in both receipts and expenditures.

Figures on important sources of revenue reflected signs of the times.

Income tax receipts hopped to $15,346,497.09, a rise of more than five million dollars from the 1946 fiscal report. Much of the 1946 collection was on income from 1945, when payments were reduced.

Corporate taxes fell off more than $1,100,000. Deputy Comptroller Joseph O'C. McCusker attributed this to a slackening in the volume of business from war years.

Gasoline tax receipts expanded along with those for motor vehicle licenses and titles.

Alcoholic beverage taxes dropped almost one million dollars. McCusker cited the higher cost of living as pinching the money available for higher priced liquors. Most of the decrease was in liquor and wine consumption. Beer taxes fell only slightly.

Total receipts for the year were $93,286,760, as against $88,526,318.48 for 1946. Disbursements were $96,746,063.21, compared to $83,882,424.59. Cash on hand totaled $30,539,415.47. A year ago the account was $33,998,718.47.

Virginia Income Is Up 3½ Million for July

Richmond, Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—Virginia revenue for July, first month of the new fiscal year, showed an increase of $3,599,936.71 over the same month last year, State Comptroller H. G. Gilmer reported today.

Revenues totaled $18,542,128.14 last month, compared with $14,942,191.43 in July, 1946.

Taxes accounted for $5,328,812.04 of this amount, an increase of $1,132,772.90 over last year's collection.

Largest tax collected was the motor vehicle fuel tax, which brought $3,188,415.27, compared with $2,017,729.06 in July, 1946.

Of total revenue collected in July, $1,611,963.81 was applied to the general fund, an increase of $59,983.57. Taxes applied to the general fund, totaled $1,204,597.07, an increase of $65,868.21.

Health Studies Urged for Va. Universities

Richmond, Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—The introduction of a course in personal and community health in every college and university in Virginia will be recommended to the study conference of school and college personnel now in session at the University of Richmond, Dean Fred Helsabeck of Lynchburg College said today.

Dean Helsabeck is chairman of the group studying "what constitutes an effective program of physical and health education in the schools and colleges," one of five subcommittees engaged in the examination of educational problems.

Only 20 colleges in Virginia have personal health or hygiene courses, Dr. Helsabeck said, while 15 have none whatsoever. He added that the courses in some of the 20 do not include community health.

Others Make Reports

"Man does not live to himself," Helsabeck reminded. Community health problems are as vital as personal hygiene and health, the dean said.

Other reports were made by Dr. John Page Williams, headmaster of St. Christopher's School in Richmond, for the group studying means of increasing "spiritual values" in education; Dr. Edward Alvey, dean of Mary Washington College, for the committee studying "significant problems in developing the 12-year program in Virginia schools"; President J. Earl Moreland of Randolph-Macon College, for the group studying international and intercultural relations, and Acting Chairman Alonzo B. Haga, principal of Cradock High School, for the committee on strengthening professional standards.

Conference Ends Wednesday

Dean Alvey told the educators that Virginia is one of only three States which does not have a universal 12-grade standard.

Haga said Dr. William T. Sanger, president of the Medical College of Virginia, and Dean M. Ray Doubles of the University of Richmond Law School, have agreed to consult with the committee in its examination of strengthening professional standards.

The conference, which will remain in session through next Wednesday, is sponsored by the Virginia Advisory Committee on Schools and Colleges, of which Dean Raymond B. Pinchbeck of the University of Richmond is chairman.

National Guard Of Maryland Leaving Camp

Camp Ritchie, Md., Aug. 22 (AP). Maryland Guardsmen collected their pay today and prepared to break camp after their first postwar summer training exercises.

Their final day in camp here was punctuated by the roar of 105 millimeter mortars as the Twenty-ninth Division artillery units banged shells against a mountain on their 600-yard practice range.

It was the first time many of the recruits ever had heard artillery fire.

The 231st Transport Corps truck battalion from Baltimore, only Negro outfit in the Guard, took its turn on the rifle range today.

The 224th Field Artillery spent most of its last day in camp scouting out, selecting and occupying a firing position for a mythical battle.

The five-day training period ended tonight with varied campbreaking activities. Some of the men saw training films issued by the War Department's intelligence division. About a hundred traveled to Hershey, Pa., to a professional football exhibition game between the Baltimore Colts and the Buffalo Bills.

The Guardsmen will start pulling out in trucks at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. The Centreville contingent, which came the farthest, will be home by 6 p. m.

Auto-Truck Crash Crushes 2 to Death

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 22 (AP).—Collision of an automobile and a heavy truck-trailer on the Lincoln Highway early today crushed to death a young man and woman.

Lester Hoffman, 23, of Salunge, Lancaster County, died at a hospital without regaining consciousness. His unidentified companion, a woman about 25, was pronounced dead upon arrival at the hospital.

The two were riding in the automobile. The truck of J. G. Marshall, 32, Harrisonburg, Va., careened across the highway after the crash, jack-knifed and collided with the car of Henry Hill, Lancaster.

Marshall was discharged from a hospital after treatment for cuts and brush burns. Hill's 57-year-old wife was admitted to a hospital with a chest injury and bruises.

Woman Killed In Collision Near Warrenton

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 22 (Spl.). Mrs. Helen R. Wall, 49, of Upper Darby, Pa., was almost instantly killed here this morning when a car driven by her husband was in collision with a dump truck at the intersection of Routes 211 and 29.

State Trooper Sidney Secrist said the car driven by the husband, Richard E. Wall, 53, went through a stop street warning sign and was struck by a truck driven by Eastham A. Fincham, 27, of Remington, for E. L. Weaver of Remington.

Mrs. Wall was thrown from the car and across the highway for 10 feet, the trooper said. She died before reaching Physicians' Hospital here.

Wall is recovering from bruises and burns at the hospital. Fincham has been charged with reckless driving.

Ohio Cattle Win First Prizes In West Virginia State Fair

Lewisburg, Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—Sleek Jersey and Holstein dairy cattle were judged today as Governor Clarence W. Meadows paid his official visit to the West Virginia state fair.

The governor was accompanied by various other state officials. Again favored by clear, warm weather, the fair management said the crowd assumed record proportions.

The grand champion and senior champion female was shown by Walter L. Johnson of Endicott, N. Y., while Folck and Son sponsored the junior champion female.

The Folck firm won eight other blue ribbons in the Jersey show; N. C. Styles and Son of Rockwell, Md., won five; Walter L. Johnson, two, and one each went to Breezy Hill Farm Madisonville, Ohio, and H. F. Hupman of Springfield, Ohio.

Judge Is Help

Two Given 'Head Start' Elude Police

Baltimore, Aug. 22 (AP).—Two young cousins eluded the law today after a judge gave them a 15-minute head start and said he "didn't like it" when a swarm of cops besieged the courthouse and tried to arrest the lads.

The 15-minute handicap which Judge Michael J. Manley gave William H. Miller, 18, and George R. Miller, 20, of Manchester, Md., expired at 3:01 p. m. yesterday.

They and three others were arrested on warrants sworn out in Pennsylvania charging them with the theft of airplane parts at a Hanover, Pa., airport.

The Millers first won their way out of jail, where they had been held on extradition warrants, when Judge Manley issued a writ of habeas corpus. An assistant attorney general had told him he believed the Millers innocent and reported the victim of the theft had decided not to press the charges.

But prosecutors called in police and ordered the cousins' arrest as soon as they left the courtroom on fugitive warrants expected momentarily from Pennsylvania.

"You should have seen it," Judge Manley said today. "They had captains, lieutenants, detectives and about every cop in downtown Baltimore up here. They blocked the doors and the hallways.

"There wasn't any legal reasoning in what I did—just a practical spirit of fair play for innocent boys pestered by the police.

"I couldn't forbid their arrest, but I could give them a chance. Another judge up here did it once before."

Miller Urges Surplus Food Welfare Plan

Easton, Md., Aug. 22 (AP).—Representative Miller (R., Md.) launched a renewed attempt today to make surplus food available to small charitable institutions under the Government's price-support buying program.

In a letter to J. Milton Patterson, director of the Maryland Department of Public Welfare, Miller asked revision of regulations to permit sales in small quantities.

Patterson said earlier that while bulk purchases have been authorized for large institutions, the department does not have sufficient manpower ot process requests for less than carload lots.

Miller has been interested in securing some dozen bags of potatoes for the Eastern Shore Children's Home here.

Maryland officials of the Production and Marketing Administration said sales to charitable institutions must be cleared through a regional office of the Food Distribution Administration in New York, which in turn requires certification by the State welfare board concerned.

They added that present regulations permit the sale of potatoes for livestock feeding in lots as small as 50 bags.

Lightning Injuries Fatal to Woman

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Mrs. Marian Johnston, 51, died today of injuries received when she was hurled into the Scioto River by a lightning bolt that struck the West Board street bridge during a thunderstorm yesterday afternoon.

The lightning left gaping holes in the 852-foot span. Three other persons were rescued from the river after they were thrown from the bridge and injured.

Harrisonburg Schools To Open September 4

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—Harrisonburg Public Schools will open September 4 with all teacher vacancies filled, City Superintendent of Schools L. H. Bell announced today.

J. C. Myers, superintendent of Rockingham County Schools, said at the same time that county schools would begin September 8 and that several teaching vacancies existed in smaller schools.

Mayor Fires Cop-Sponsor Of Poker Game

Richwood, W. Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—Mayor N. R. Callahan asked permission of the city council last night to hire a new night policeman.

One of the councilmen wanted to know what happened to the one he had, and this was the story his honor told:

Callahan was awakened the other 4 a. m. by an anonymous telephone caller who said there was a poker game going on in his office.

The mayor hurriedly donned his clothes and rushed down to city hall.

Sure enough, eight men were seated around a table playing poker. The mayor said his office was littered with beer bottles and tobacco fumes were thick enough to cut with a knife.

Callahan said he scooped up what money he could from the table, then placed the whole bunch under arrest and imposed fines on the spot of $20 each.

Six paid off but two of the players ran away.

"I tried to hold them all there by standing against the door until the day policeman showed up," said Callahan.

What happened to the night policeman?

The mayor said he fined him $30 as an accessory to the poker game and suspended him from the three-man force.

Callahan said he was told that the night officer had given the poker players sanctuary in the mayor's office and was "chipping the pot" every hour for the privilege.

Nation Made Great By Faith in Bible, Conference Told

Massanetta Springs, Va., Aug. 22. (AP).—This Nation has been made great "by a system of conviction which constitutes American faith," Dr. Elton Trueblood, professor of philosophy at Earlham College, said here today.

Speaking at the annual Bible Conference here, Dr. Trueblood asserted that America's history, civilization, culture and democracy all were deeply rooted in the Bible and that America's glory consists primarily of spiritual resources.

The Bible Conference will end Sunday night.

Crash Injuries Fatal to Woman

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 22.—Mrs. Mary Frances DeMaster, 33, of RFD 1, Elkton, Va., died last night in Rockingham Memorial Hospital here of injuries suffered in an auto crash Wednesday night.

Virginia State Police said Mrs. DeMaster was injured when the car she was driving struck a culvert on Route 12, between Shenandoah and Luray.

There are also contractors on the property at all times; they will design, $1195 and finance your home now. See the homes already completed on Indian Circle. Unusually large waterfront lots. Fast paved highways right to our entrance. Mr. Smith is on the property at all times. Select your lot now. Directions: Drive out Penna. ave. se., left on Alabama ave. THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Memo to a Foolish Driver

Doris Murphy, who lives over in Arlington, has a message for a District motorist who drives a Hudson. She writes:

"His car bore D. C. license No. xxxx. We were going down Park Lane hill in Arlington when he overtook us.

"There's a solid white line in the middle of this dangerous road, and all traffic is supposed to keep to the right of it.

"But the Hudson zoomed past three cars by recklessly using the wrong side of the street.

"We found him waiting at the next traffic light. When it changed, he again shot off at high speed, and again we found him waiting at the next light.

"It was the same story all the way to town. With all his speed and recklessness, he accomplished absolutely nothing."

That's the way some people drive, Doris. He's an accident hurrying someplace to happen.

Last year the Viser Haut Dramatic Club of MacArthur blvd. gave a play for the benefit of Children's Hospital. The club later turned over $37.50 to that institution.

This year the group is again sponsoring a play for the same purpose. "Hansel and Gretel" will be presented Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 p. m. at 4482 MacArthur blvd.

The club members, who range in age from 8 to 17 years, have decided that 10 cents would be a fair admission price.

This is no doubt an answer to their elders, who contend that small coins should be taken out of circulation, since they no longer buy anything at current prices.

OPINION

Mrs. D. B. writes:

"A fellow came around today to take the school census. My husband answered the door, and supplied the requested information.

"As usual, my better half couldn't resist getting in a wisecrack at my expense. When the census-taker asked for my occupation, instead of saying that I was a housewife, he replied: 'unemployed.' What do you think of a man like that?"

Frankly, Mrs. B., I think you broke him in wrong. He wouldn't talk like that if you'd make him do the housework on his days off.

HOUSING NOTE

Sidewalk superintendents watching the construction of the new RFC building at Connecticut ave. and H st. nw. are puzzled by the way things have been going lately.

The second floor was finished a week ago, and immediately occupied. The third floor, which is partially completed, is already partially occupied.

But the upper stories aren't anywhere near finished, and neither is the ground floor.

NO HYDRAMATIC?

Terry Lorenz is one of those quietly efficient White House secretaries whose unruffled calm and dignity is equal to any occasion.

But when I called yesterday to ask her a question about something or other, Miss Lorenz answered:

"Si, si, senor . . . uh, what am I saying? . . . I mean 'yes sir' . . . oh dear."

"Hey," I laughed, "Whatsa matter with you?"

"You caught me unawares," explained Miss Lorenz. "I'm going to Mexico soon on a two-week vacation, and I've been boning up on my Spanish. I guess I must have answered the phone before I had a chance to shift my linguistic gears."

Porterfield Visions Congress Role

New York.—An unusual movie-theater-play deal now is in the making: Charles Feldman owns the film rights to Tennessee Williams' prize-winning play, "The Glass Menagerie." He's anxious for Helen Hayes to play the starring role. David O. Selznick probably will buy the movie rights from Feldman. And Miss Hayes yesterday indicated that she'd accept the starring role if Selznick would agree to build a summer playhouse at Nyack, N. Y. . . . Bob Porterfield of the Barter Theater, plans to run for Congress in Virginia. . . .

The estate of the late Julius Streicher, near Nuernberg, has been converted into an American Joint Distribution Committee agricultural training center for Jewish DPs. The bloodhounds which Streicher trained to leap at the stomachs of his victims now have been retrained by the DPs and answer only to commands given in Yiddish . . . The author of "Mister Roberts" is dramatizing it with Joshua Logan. . . .

Nelson Poynter, the publisher of the St. Petersburg Times, bought a copy of John Gunther's "Inside U. S. A.," and was anxious to concentrate on reading it. Poynter therefore took a plane from St. Petersburg to Nassau, spent three days there reading the book and then flew home to St. Petersburg.

John Mills, the British film star, is portraying explorer Scott in his next picture for J. Arthur Rank. The summer scenes were completed six weeks ago, and Mills came to America for a short holiday until the weather changed and the fall scenes in Scandinavia could be filmed. He returned to England last week—tanned and 10 pounds heavier as a result of his visit here. He'll have to reduce and recapture his pallor before shooting can be resumed . . . Ben Hecht is completing a new Palestine Pageant, for Carnegie Hall.

Each year, on August 12—the anniversary of the death of his son—Joseph P. Kennedy contributes $50,000 to a charity. This year, in commemoration of the common, interfaith cause in which his son lost his life, Kennedy contributed the $50,000 to a fund earmarked for use by the underprivileged Jewish children of Boston . . . Marc Connelly is working hard in preparation for his new job as a professor at Yale's drama school. His friends insist that Professor Connelly is so realistic that he's studying to be absentminded . . . When Noel Coward was congratulated for his performance in "Present Laughter" he said: "Why shouldn't I have been good in it? After all I wrote the play, for myself and about myself."

Mrs. Lloyd Lewis, whose husband is the author of the new book, "It Takes All Kinds," was lamenting the many years Lewis has been devoting to his biography of General Grant. She sighed: "I lost my husband in the Civil War" . . . Mrs. George Abbott will make her stage debut at Ogunquit.

After many years of observing Texans greet each other with Yippees, Hy'as and You-Alls, across the room at El Morocco, Macoco said: "Anybody who is from Texas thinks that everybody else cares" . . . Clifford Odets will have a new play on Broadway next season . . . Lena Horne is receiving $1000 a night for her current appearance at the Copacabana. This is the highest salary ever paid to an entertainer there . . . Betty Grable will return to the screen in "Lady in Ermine" . . . Judge Sam Leibowitz visited the courtroom set of "Daisy Kenyon" and was photographed sitting on the bench and swearing in the witness, Joan Crawford.

All Your Letters

I read your letters over when . . . I know I am alone . . . Because they are addressed to me . . . And they are all my own . . . They are not meant for other eyes . . . For they belong to mine . . . With their endearing sentiments . . . In every loving line . . . I read them, my beloved, and . . . I say them to my heart . . . For they are like a bridge across . . . The time we are apart . . . They fill the lonely moments that . . . Are empty of your charms . . . And seem to draw me closer to . . . The comfort of your arms . . . I treasure all your letters and . . . I read each one anew . . . Because, beloved, in a way . . . They are a part of you.

World Trade Draft Charter Is Approved

Geneva, Aug. 22 (AP).—The delegates of 17 nations, representing 63 per cent of world commerce, adopted unanimously today a draft charter for a proposed international trade organization for the broad purpose of reducing trade barriers.

The 4000-word document, hammered out in seven months of negotiations in London, New York and Geneva, is intended as a bill of rights for international trade. The draft is to be submitted to a world trade conference of 60 nations at Havana in November, when delegates will begin what may be an all-winter task of adopting a completed charter for submission to the member governments for ratification.

Objectives of the charter completed today by the 17 members of a preparatory committee are listed broadly as the increase of world production, employment and trade, the fostering of industrial and economic development and reconstruction, equal access of all countries to markets, and the reduction of tariff preferences and trade encumbrances.

Called a "Skeleton"

Dr. H. C. Coombs, of Australia, speaking on the adoption of the charter, called it a "skelton" and said "it remains for the governments of the world to put flesh upon its bones and breath in its nostrils."

L. D. Wilgress, Canadian negotiator, said the charter "represents a compromise between the conflicting views and diverse interests of the countries which have been members of the preparatory committee."

Originally projected by the United States Government, the ITO charter draft disapproves of subsidies on agricultural products, of internal taxes on imported products in favor of domestic products, antidumping duties and boycotts. A member may subsidize exports, however to offset a subsidy by nonmembers of the same product.

Under the charter all members agree to extend to one another equal treatment in trade, long espoused by the United States as the most-favored-nation policy.

The charter disallows quantity restrictions, or quotas, on imports except when the International Monetary Fund, in which the United States holds 31 per cent of the voting strength, decides a country is in difficulties in maintaining its balance of payments. ITO may also relax the regulation for economically undeveloped countries.

Enforcement Provided

As enforcement provisions, ITO may institute commercial reprisals or expulsion from the organization against members who violate the agreement or refuse to negotiate where negotiations are provided.

The International Court of Justice is established as arbiter in case of disputes, and the International Monetary Fund would pass upon the economic ability of members to carry out their membership obligations.

Important issues which go to Havana for settlement include:

Whether each member shall have one vote or a voting strength according to its population and volume of trade; relations of ITO members to nonmembers; makeup of the executive board; special arrangements for state monopoly systems such as Russia's; and whether voting shall be by two-thirds or simple majority on applications for relaxation of certain regulations.

The preparatory committee left the door open for Russia, who was not represented at the Geneva conference, to take a place on the permanent executive board.

Negotiations for multilateral trade agreement on tariffs, which have been proceeding simultaneously with the charter negotiations, remain to be completed.

Doukhobors Ask For Protection Against Radicals

Brilliant, B. C., Aug. 22 (AP).—Orthodox Doukhobors appealed today for police protection from naked, chanting and praying radicals of their sect who threatened to burn the entire village of Shoreacres.

The orthodox said the Sons of Freedom, a radical offshoot of the 10,000-member sect, were responsible for the firing of more than 20 community-owned buildings burned in recent weeks. Terror and virtual civil war prevailed in this mountainous region 270 miles from Vancouver.

The Sons of Freedom broke away from the orthodox after failing to obtain their demands for freedom from sect laws promulgated before the Doukhobors fled to Canada in 1899 from persecution in Russia. The radicals demanded individual ownership of land, among other things.

A group of 97 fanatics entered the Makertoff community house in Shoreacres last Tuesday and set it afire while some members chanted and others prayed. When the flames got beyond control, the entire group undressed and paraded naked around the blazing building.

Philadelphia City Hall Rocked by Explosion

Philadelphia, Aug. 22 (AP).—The massive walls of Philadelphia's 75-year-old City Hall shook today as a violent explosion blasted open a police bomb squad locker, injured several persons and echoed with thunderous roar through the downtown business district.

"The explosion was probably caused by some evidence in the hands of the city bomb squad which used the lockers in which it occurred," declared George Richardson, assistant superintendent of police in charge of the detective bureau.

The End of the Normandie . . .

ONCE A PROUD SHIP—The final chapter in the story of the ill-starred liner Normandie is being written. This was all that was left yesterday of the one-time queen of the Atlantic as wrecking crews completed the job of scrapping her hull. The former French luxury liner of 83,423-tons displacement was raised by the Navy after she burned and capsized at her New York pier during the war. She was sold for scrap last December

Jewish Refugees Still Defy British, Sail for Germany

Port de Bouc, France, Aug. 22 (AP).—The 4400 Jews of the Exodus 1947, blocked in their efforts to settle in Palestine, ignored a British ultimatum and sailed tonight on three British "cage" ships for Germany, many of them vowing they would not land unless forced.

An eleventh hour appeal for intervention by President Truman was cabled to Washington on behalf of the Jews aboard the transport at about the time they sailed.

The message, brought ashore and dispatched by French police and paid for by one of the Jewish relief organizations, said:

"We, Jewish survivors of Europe's crematoriums aboard the British prison ships at Port de Bouc, having been told by the British that we will be taken to Hamburg in the British zone of Germany, where we will be forced to disembark, call upon you, the President of the most powerful nation on earth, to help us in our hour of need.

"America has time and again, through your voice, put itself behind the cause of the just and the needy. We implore you to lend us your voice now, to use your great powers to intervene on our behalf and help us to get to Palestine."

As the transport Runnymede Park upped anchor, the Jews aboard it held aloft a huge black flag with a Union Jack in one corner and a large white swastika in the center.

Just before the transports steamed out of French waters, the Panamanian ship Andria sailed from nearby Marseilles carrying 100 legal Jewish immigrants to Haifa, Palestine.

Report Defiance

Spokesmen for the Jews aboard the Runnymede Park and Empire Rival, first and last of the ships to sail toward Gibraltar, declared the British would have to carry them off at Hamburg. Spokesmen aboard the Ocean Vigour said they believed they would create no disturbance because of the women and children aboard.

The return to Germany, which many of the Jews had left 10 months ago by various means in an effort to emigrate to the Holy Land, ended a 25-day stay in this French port where the Jews staged a "sit tight" rather than land anywhere but Palestine.

They had spent 42 days aboard crowded ships, having sailed secretly from Sete, France, July 11 for Palestine. Their one time back to France and reached here Chesapeake ferry boat, renamed Exodus 1947, was intercepted by British destroyers which put boarding parties aboard after a bloody fight. The Jews were sent July 29 where they had remained aboard since, only 100 of the original member consenting to land.

Appeal to Big Powers

The three-ship convoy and its escort of four war vessels had a four-day voyage to Gibraltar ahead, where a three-day stop will be made for supplies. Then will come a 10-day trip to Hamburg, where International Refugee Organization spokesmen said the Jews will be housed in a displaced persons camp near Belsen, former Nazi concentration camp in the British zone.

The sailing took place despite last-minute appeals by passengers of the Runnymede Park to President Truman for intervention, and a request by the Jewish Agency to the United States, Russian and French governments to prevent "an arbitrary action in regard to survivors of Naxi massacres."

Ask All Jews to Fast

The Jewish National Council in Palestine called on Jews throughout the world to go without food on Monday as a protest, and Palestinian Jews arranged for mass demonstrations and fastings the same day. The Jewish National Council also appealed in a cablegram to Trygve Lie, United Nations general secretary, to prevent the transfer of the Jews to Germany.

A French police official was warmly cheered today when he went aboard the three ships and repeated the French offer of asylum, but none of the Jews accepted the hospitality.

Head of B'nai B'rith Appeals to Truman

Terming the ultimatum of the British government to the Jewish refugees aboard the Exodus 1947 as "incomprehensible and shocking," Frank Goldman, Lowell, Mass., president of B'nai B'rith, last night appealed to President Truman to prevent the forceful removal of these refugees to Germany.

Potion Brings Virginia Hill Near Death

Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 22 (AP).—Virginia Hill hovered between life and the death she feared today, the victim of a mysterious potion which threw her into a comatose condition in the home which she had floodlighted and guarded against gangsters.

Miss Hill

A medical bulletin listed her condition as very critical and complicated by pneumonia. It was stated that "the outcome is in doubt at present."

Miss Hill had been bluntly warned by Police Chief P. R. Short that he believed her life in danger, and that the gangsters who on June 20 slew her boy friend, Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel, in her Beverly Hills, Calif., home also sought her life.

Chief Short said today that "as far as I could find out, she took an overdose of sleeping pills."

From best authority it was learned, however, that no pill box or other container remained behind in her luxurious home on Sunset Island No. 1 to give direct evidence that this was the cause of her critical illness.

"We can only assume that it was a matter of too many sleeping pills," this authority stated.

The 30-year-old girl friend of the late Siegel has been guarded day and night by private detectives and had an elaborate floodlighting system, activated by invisible "electric eyes," installed around her home. An alarm system connected with police headquarters was added.

Mrs. Roosevelt Won't Accept Farm Left Her

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, explaining she doubted she "could possibly make a wise choice" as to disposition of the property, said today she would not accept the 150-acre Tennessee farm left her by the Rev. A. B. Starns.

The former First Lady, writing in her column distributed by United Features Syndicate, said she had received many suggestions as to possible use of the farm and remarked "I never realized before how many people had plans into which a farm in the Tennessee mountains would fit."

Mrs. Roosevelt said the lawyer for the estate, which includes the farm and an adjoining church and graveyard, had notified her the property had a value of less than $10,000.

The Rev. Mr. Starns, who died early this month in Fredericksburg, Va., directed that Mrs. Roosevelt maintain the property in good condition, erect a monument to him on it to cost no more than $2000, and permit his niece, Mrs. Paul Jones of Fredericksburg, to live on the farm during her lifetime.

Mrs. Roosevelt wrote she was "deeply appreciative, of course, of the esteem which Mr. Starns had for my husband and of his kind thought of me" but she said "there must be members of the family familiar with that part of the country who could use it to greater advantage than I could."

1848 Land Grant Discovered in Sale Of Ancient House

Milwaukee, Aug. 22 (AP).—A weather-beaten house, believed to be about 110 years old, has been sold for $12,000, Realtor B. M. Boerke, who handled the transaction, said today.

Boerke said the attic refuse, being sorted by the two families occupying the dwelling, was found to contain a partially destroyed land grant of the property, made by the United States Government in March, 1848, and signed by President James K. Polk.

He said he believed the house was built some 10 years earlier, with the land grant issued in 1848, the year Wisconsin was raised from Territory status to Statehood.

Secret Talks Open Parley On Germany

London, Aug. 22 (AP).—Ignoring Russian protests, British, American and French conferees sat down today in secret talks on raising the ceiling for German industry, talks which some diplomats said could make or break any prospect of a Marshall plan for Europe.

The delegates met for three hours at their opening session to hear the French outline their objections to British-American plans for rebuilding west German industry, and at the end United States Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas reported only that the session had progressed "smoothly."

A noncommittal communique said French views were being heard on "the level of industry in the Anglo-American zones of Germany and the management and control of Ruhr coal mines."

Called Danger to France

Conference sources added that Rene Massigli, French Ambassador, had outlined his country's long-standing objections to reconstruction of Germany's industrial power as a danger to France, protesting particularly against a tentative British-American plan to raise Germany's annual steel production level from its present 5,800,000 tons a year to 11,580,000 tons.

French protests resulted in the plan being deferred and the calling of the current conference.

Massigli was said to have underlined, too, that France still stood on her demand for inter-Allied control of the Ruhr coal mines, now directed by the British in their zone.

The French in the past have called for a maximum German steel recovery, France aims at producing 15 million tons of steel annually by 1951.

Official British sources have said the talks held the key to success or failure of any Marshall plan because no scheme for European recovery would be complete without taking into account Germany's potential productivity. On the other hand, they said, to ignore French fears of a revived Germany could lead to a French boycott of the Marshall program.

Conference sources said Sir Gilmour Jenkins, British presiding officer, made the point at the opening session that the conference would hear the French viewpoint but would not be bound by anything the French said.

Other British sources said final decisions could only be made by the four-power foreign ministers council which is to meet in November. Russia, in notes to Britain and the United States, protested yesterday that the conference was sidestepping the Potsdam accord which made the level of industry in Germany a four-power matter.

Jurors Eat Too Much, State Examiner Says

Cleveland, Aug. 22 (AP).—Forty-nine pieces of pie and 88 cups of coffee are too much for 12 persons at one meal, State Examiner James E. Gallagher said today in ordering all payments of Common Pleas Court jurors' food bills held up pending completion of a current inquiry.

Gallagher started his inquiry a little over a month ago when the entire 1947 appropriation for jury meals became exhausted in six months.

Surgeon Dies of Cancer, Wills Body for Research on Disease

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 22 (INS).—Dr. Elliott C. Cutler, world-famed surgeon who died last Saturday of cancer, carried beyond the grave today his battle to help science find a cure for the dread disease.

Cutler

The filing of Dr. Cutler's will revealed that he had left his body to science for whatever might be learned from it to help in cancer research.

Dr. Cutler requested in his will that a complete autopsy be performed on his body at the pathological laboratory of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. The request was made in a codicil to the will dated last April 25.

The noted surgeon, who served as head surgeon consultant in the European theater of operations in World War II, directed his brother, Robert, and the Old Colony Trust Co., executors, to carry out his wish with regard to the autopsy.

Dr. S. Burt Wolbach, personal friend of Dr. Cutler, is head pathologist at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

To relieve Dr. Wolbach of any mental turmoil in connection with the autopsy request, Dr. Cutler said his dear and beloved friend might delegate the examination to anyone of his choosing.

In another unusual addition to his will, Dr. Cutler addressed a note to many doctors thanking them for thir kindnesses to him in the past two years of his life.

Paraguay Rebels Lose

Buenos Aires, Aug. 22 (AP).—Col. Rafael Franco, former President of Paraguay and a leader of the revolt in that country against the government of President Higinio Morinigo, said today the defeat of the insurgents "means the loss of one battle, but the war will continue as long as Morinigo remains in power."

Franco was interned in Argentina several days ago when he landed on Argentine territory in a rebel plane. He was on the insurgents' general staff and one of the chief military and political figures of the revolt.

He declared in an interview that the rebels received "valuable moral aid from all the American peoples, particularly from Uruguay," but he denied that they received any material help. The Morinigo government recently charged that Uruguay had sent arms to the rebels.

He said the rebel government headed by Col. Alfredo Galeano and Aureliano Mendoza still controlled northwestern Paraguay and would continue in existence.

Military Help To Greece Hits 50,000 Tons

By International News Service

The State Department announced yesterday that 50,000 tons of urgently-needed military supplies have been sent to Greece under the U. S. program to aid that country.

The department said 20,000 tons had moved in 12 Army transports as of mid-August and that an additional 30,000 tons got under way this week.

The announcement did not give details of the shipments, but added that additional assistance is being given the Greek navy in the form of spare parts for minesweepers. Greek waters are still heavily mined from World War II, only major harbors having been cleared.

Further aid to the Greek navy will be furnished by the U. S. Navy, which is refitting six 176-foot patrol boats to be turned over to Greece. Greek crews will arrive in this country within a week to be trained in handling the craft.

Included in U. S. shipments to Greece have been 1000 vehicles, including light and heavy trucks, ammunition and weapons carriers, ambulances and wreckers, 120 tons of ordnance spare parts; 14,000 tons of nonperishable foods and 5000 tons of perishable, refrigerated food items.

United States Army and private engineers who have been surveying Greek railroad, highway and port reconstruction will return this weekend to submit findings to contractors named to rebuild these vital facilities.

In addition, the Greeks will get 120 tons of ordnance spare parts, 14,000 tons of non-perishable foods, and 5000 tons of perishable foods and refrigerated items.

Premier Greets Flour

Athens, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Greek Premier Demetrios Maximos welcomed the arrival of a cargo of white flour from the United States today and said that American aid would enable his country to "heal its wounds of war, enemy occupation and Communistic rebellion."

Maximos and other Greek officials joined American aid mission members in special ceremonies at a Piraeus dock. The shipment was the first relief cargo since UNRRA aid was discontinued.
